Cancer team to check agent in meat coloring

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Agriculture Department established an advisory committee Friday to determine if cancer-causing agents are formed as by-products in curing processes used for ham, bacon and other meats.

Recent studies have brought nitrite under suspicion because of reports indicating that nitrosamines —known cancer-causing agents, or carcinogens —are produced when sodium nitrite reacts with acids contained in meat.

Dr. Michael Jacobson, codirector of the Washington-based Center for Science in the Public Interest, has said that bacon may be one of the most dangerous foods in production because nitrites are used in its curing process.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said that the government is worried about the safety of nitrite as a curing agent. Earlier this summer the Food and D r u g administration banned the use of sodium nitrite with spices after discovering that the mix contained nitrosamines, apparently produced by a chemical reaction.

The FDA ordered meat processors not to use such spiced curing mixes, used in production of lunch meat and sausage, but approved the use of the agents so long as they were handled separately.

There is now "a great deal of information in our hands," Butz said. "This panel will study the material and make recmmendations as to what action needs to be taken."

The advisory committee will be composed of Dr. Cecil H. Edwards of Howard University; Dr. Leo Friedman of the FDA's bureau of foods; Dr. Richard A. Greenburg of Swift and Co., Oakbrook, Ill.; Dr. Aaron E. Wasserman, of the Agriculture Department's Agricultural Research Center in Philadelphia; and Dr. John H. Weisburger, of the American Health Foundation in New York.

Libyan jets strafe Italian warship

ROME (UPI) —Libyan jets strafed an Italian warship guarding fishing boats in international waters off the Libyan coast Friday, slightly injuring two sailors, Italy's foreign ministry said.

The Italian news agency ANSA said a member of Libya's ruling Revolution C o m m a n d Council expressed his "profound regrets" over the incident to the Italian ambassador in Libya, Aldo Conte Marotta.

The agency said Libya had informed Italy that the attack had been a mistake and that Libyan aircraft have been instructed not to disturb the fishing boats and their escort ships.

Libya's official Tripoli Radio made no mention of any incident.

The warship, the De Cristofaro, a 246-foot Corvette-class vessel built in 1965, suffered only very minor damage in the attack, the foreign ministry said.

Service stations by the hundreds close their doors

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Service stations by the hundreds locked their gasoline pumps in Northern California Friday to protest the Nixon administration's Phase IV economic controls.

The open stations reported long lines of motorists seeking to fill their tanks so their cars will not be immobile during the weekend.

Policemen in many north state cities were called in to help traffic at the clogged stations.

The California State Automobile Association headquarters here reported that 90 per cent of the stations in the Bay Area were closed. And, a spokesman said, those still open were rationing their gas at between five and 10 gallons per visit.

The California Highway Patrol headquarters in Sacramento reported late in the day that officers have not come upon large numbers of drivers whose vehicles were out of gas.

But, officials said, all patrolmen were being alerted as to what stations were open so they could refuel their cruisers and give the information to drivers.

The closings were conducted by independent owners who rent their facilities from the oil companies. The independent owners met in Oakland Thursday night and agreed to participate in the boycott at least through the weekend.

The reason for the protest was this:

Dealers have been forced under Phase IV to cut their pump prices from one to three cents and, at the same time, absorb up to a penny wholesale increase imposed in the last two weeks by just about all of the major oil companies. The dealers charge that this has cut their profit margin. They want a complete eradication of all Phase IV guidelines.

They waved signs reading: "Let's Go Fishing," "Pump Power vs. Nixon Power" and "Food Stamps for Dealers."

Joe Huemmrich, executive director of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, told the dealers that his organization could not endorse the protest.

But, Huemmrich said, "if I see a damn service station open tomorrow, I'm going to be awfully disappointed."

Emergency landing fails

Search plane catches fire; all six aboard die

PORT ARANSAS, Tex. (UPI) —A Coast Guard plane searching for a man who fell off a fishing boat Friday caught fire, crashed during an emergency landing in the water and sank with six people aboard.

Coast Guard rescue workers recovered the body of Aviation Machinist Mate 1-C Harold D. Brown Jr. of Stonington, Conn.

Five other victims included Lt. Cmdr. Francis W. Miller, 31, of Needham, Mass., the pilot; aviation structural mechanic 2-C Benjamin R. Gaskins Jr., 24, of Buxton, N. C.; aviation electronics technician 2-C John F. Harrison, 24, of Washington; aviation electronics technician 2-C John P. Pledger, 24, of Salt Lake City, and Ens. Gerald Mack, 25, of Irving, Tex., the copilot.

Dave Cipra, spokesman for the Coast Guard headquarters in New Orleans, said two helicopters, two rescue boats and the cutter Point Baker were conducting the search.

"We had a helicopter and 44-foot rescue boat already participating in the search for the man overboard and they were diverted to the scene of the crash," Cipra said.

The pilot of the aircraft, a HU16E amphibious, two-engine craft, radioed the headquarters at Port Aransas and said there was a fire aboard. There was no opportunity to explain the nature of the fire.

"They said they would have to ditch," Cipra said.

The plane crashed in trying to make the emergency landing. Cipra said the seas were choppy, but the water would have provided no difficulty under normal circumstances.

"We won't know just what happened until we can retrieve the wreckage," Cipra said. He said the wreckage would likely be recovered by a barge crane.

The first body recovered was floating in the area of the wreck, perhaps thrown from the craft on impact. It was flown to the Naval Air Station hospital in Corpus Christi.

TUNNEY'S 'POOR MAN' DIET

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., on Friday began a $1.25 a day food diet for two weeks "to personally experience for a limited period what hundreds of thousands of Americans experience day in and day out." Tunney will introduce legislation next week aimed at helping stabilize food prices. For lunch he had an apple, celery and a cheese sandwich.

Projects discussed

G.M. holds talks with Russians

NEW YORK (UPI) —The overseas division of General Motors Corp. said Friday it was discussing a broad range of projects with Soviet government officials in hopes of developing commercial relations with the country.

Spokesmen for the General Motors Overseas Corp. declined, however, to confirm or deny a published report that negotiations are directed specifically toward construction of a large truck manufacturing complex in Siberia.

"A group of General Motors executives and engineers visited the Soviet Union in April this year to deliver technical presentations on GM products and to explore the possibility of developing commercial relations," said a spokesman for the overseas division.

"Discussions are still in the preliminary stage, and there are no specific agreements," he said. "There are discussions in a number of areas."

Business Week magazine said Friday that General Motors was involved in negotiations toward building a truck manufacturing complex in Siberia that would be even larger than the Soviets' $2 billion Kama River truck plant.

The Kama River plant, which is scheduled to begin production next year, is the biggest truck manufacturing complex in the world. Several American automotive supply firms are participating in the Kama River project under government licensing.

The General Motors spokesmen said current discussions with Soviet officials had ranged over a wide variety of products from refrigerators to electric locomotives and the means of putting them on the Russian market.

Three years ago Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., visited the Soviet Union and opened negotiations for Ford to build a truck plant there. The plan was dropped later in the year, however. Ford said the project was not feasible at that time, but there were reports that the Nixon Administration wanted the project halted.

Reagan to sign death measure

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan will sign legislation restoring the death penalty in California Monday in Los Angeles, his office said Friday.

Those invited to attend the ceremony at the Marriott Hotel include the measure's author, Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, Attorney General Evelle Younger and Assemblymen Mike Antonovich, R-Los Angeles, and Joe A. Gonsalves, D-La Mirada.

Action defended

MOSCOW (UPI) —Dissident physicist Andrei D. Sakharov Friday admitted he had sent unauthorized manuscripts abroad and defended his action as a basic human right.

Under Soviet law, manuscripts must be approved by the government before being sent out of the country.

2 more U.S. missionaries scheduled to be released

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Chile's junta government Friday released four imprisoned Americans including two graduate students held on subversion charges and plans soon to release two detained Maryknoll missionaries, the U. S. Embassy reported.

Released were Adam and Patricia Schesch in Chile working for the University of Wisconsin land tenure program, and John Ceretti, 22, and Henry Warlow, 22, occupations and hometowns unknown. All had been held in the National Stadium along with several thousand other persons being investigated for alleged subversion.

The embassy said that the government had asked the Schesch's to leave the country promptly and said they would depart today.

Release of Catholic missionaries Brother Joseph Dougherty, 29, and Seminarian Francis Flynn, 27, is "imminent," the embassy said. The spokesman had no information, however, on two other detained Americans, identified only as Carol Nesso and David Cusack.

The junta's president, Gen. Augusto Pinochet, announced Friday that the Marxist parties which formed Marxist President Salvador Allende's governing coalition had been outlawed.

In a wide-ranging press conference, the 57-year-old army commander also said that neither the U. S. or any other f o r e i g n goivernment had advance knowledge of the violent Sept. 11 coup which overthrew Allende.

"Not even my wife knew what we were going to do," Pinochet said.

Allende was ousted by the armed forces Sept. 11, and an official police report reiterated Friday that he had committed suicide while besieged by tanks and jet airplanes in the downtown La Moneda presidential palace.

"(The) death of Salvador Allende Gossens (was) caused by two suicidal shots in the chin..." the report said, adding that he killed himself with an automatic rifle given to him as a present by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Suicide disputed

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A Chilean refugee said Friday he was told by officials in the toppled government of President Salvador Allende that Allende "died fighting" troops as they attacked the presidential palace and did not commit suicide.

The exiled former official, Edgardo Arrive, was among 74 Chilean refugees who arrived in Mexico City Friday, the third airlift to this country since the coup by the junta.

Arrive, who said he had been executive secretary of Chile's nationalized pharmaceutical industry, said officials still trapped at the Mexican embassy in Santiago had said they witnessed Allende's death and that he did not kill himself, as the junta has announced.

5 Stanek infants growing stronger

DENVER (UPI) —Kicking their legs and turning their heads in heated incubators, the surviving Stanek sextuplets grew steadily stronger Friday in their fight against a lung disease that killed their sister.

Doctors said the condition of the four boys and one girl born Sunday night seven weeks premature was the best it had been since birth. They were fed milk kept cool by a Red Cross ice chest.

"All five of the infants are in stable condition," said obstetrician Dr. Tibor Engel. "There has been some steady improvement. We can't say yet everything is all clear but it is very encouraging.

"The problem is they can go momentarily from being great to a moment of crisis. We're grateful for every quiet moment that passes."

Edna Stanek, 34, who took fertility drugs before becoming pregnant, made her third visit to the obstetrics ward nursery to peek at the children. She said she thought they looked good, Engel said.

A medical bulletin issued by the University of Colorado Medical Center said the eldest child, John, was in good condition and was fed a halfounce of milk ever three hours. Stephen, Jeffrey, Nathan and Catherine all were listed as satisfactory.

The sixth sextuplet, Julia, died Tuesday night of hyaline membrane disease which prevents the lungs from furnishing oxygen to the blood. All the survivors except John and Jeffrey showed traces of the sickness earlier in the week but doctors said their vital signs — blood pressure, pulse and body temperature —had stabilized.

Waiting for county decision

Chino municipal court likely within 2 months

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

CHINO — A municipal court may be created to replace the existing Chino Justice Court here within the next two months.

County officials have stipulated the district's population now exceeds 40,000, which requires a municipal court.

"The only thing not determined is when that change-over will be made," said Paul Grube, deputy county counsel.

The order is now on a "hold over" basis while negotiations between him and county officials are being conducted.

"We have agreed in substance that the population requirement has been met, that the justice court be converted to municipal court, and that the incumbent judge be the new judge," said Reher.

"When the county pin-points the source for funding, they should be able to tie down the commencing date. I had hoped for an Oct. 1 date, but I would be happy if we are in gear by mid October."

Grube said he will stipulate with Reher next week on the date of the change-over.

"Changing to a municipal court means a higher judge's salary, a court reporter will be required on some proceedings, and the jurisdiction will be higher," he said.

Once a stipulation has been made with Reher, there will be only a legal formality of a Superior Court judge signing the order, said Grube. The change-over may occur within the next 30 to 60 days, he added.

Philip Schaefer, who was appointed justice court judge last July to replace Ben Burrell, is expected to transfer to the new municipal court.

Officials have indicated the municipal court will be located in the justice court building until a new court building is completed in a county city complex next year.

Praises Texas system

California prisons are failing: Richardson

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIMAS — Sen. H. L. Richardson criticized California's penal system Friday during a visit to San Dimas. He described it as a "failing system" that lacks security and lets idle men spend their time watching television instead of doing constructive work.

Richardson, R-19th Dist., told members and guests gathered at a breakfast forum of the San Dimas Chamber of Commerce that he made surprise visits to the California Institution for Men at Chino, and Folsom and San Quentin prisons on Sundays and late weekday afternoons. He also took a series of slides that he showed at the meeting.

His slides revealed unkept California prisons occupied by inmates who were standing or sitting in groups watching television.

Richardson said inmates, for the most part, wander about with little work to do in California prisons. He said Folsom Prison even puts television sets outside in the yards for inmates, and some prisons are permitting inmates to have individual sets in their cells.

He said some of the cells are furnished like motel rooms and showed slides of youth authority buildings that he said "appear to be more like college campuses than prisons."

The senators said he felt the 35 murders in California prison last year were the result of the freedom given to inmates. He said some prisons, including the Chino facility, offer swimming, shuffleboard and rehabilitation programs that include deep sea diving and the care of exotic birds while the grounds are overrun with weeds.

Richardson showed slides of a ladder that was learning on the outside of the fencing to the Chino prison and unuarded fences near the men's dormitories that could, he said, give easy access to persons who wanted to throw drugs over the fence to the inmates.

In comparsion, he showed slides of Huntsville Prison in Texas which is the oldest penal facility in the state. The slides showed an immaculate and smooth running operation that keeps inmates busy working a 40-hour week manning the many operations that keep the prison self-sustaining. Richardson said inmates raise all materials for food and make clothing and dental care items. They even make saddles for the horses that are used by guards on the prison property, he pointed out. They also operate all the computer record information for the state, make all boots and shoes for state institutions and repair all school buses in the state.

Richardson said this is not only a tremendous saving to the state but is rehabilitative to the inmate. He said each inmate leaves the prison with at least an 11th grade education.

"They are told if they don't want to go to school they can spend some time in the hole until they are ready to."

He said each inmate in the Texas facility has to work six months in the fields and can work up to another job from there. He said the working inmate system is succesful in Texas and it is supplemented by high moral standards and church attendance in the prisons.

Richardson said California once had a system that kept the inmates busy with constructive work with those similar to that of the Texas program, but he said these have been dropped in recent years.

He said he is working to "educate" the people of the problems that now exist in the system. He will introduce legislation to try to resolve some of the current problems.

He said California spends four times as much on its penal system program as the State of Texas. "There is very little that is rewarding about our penal system," the senator said.

Crippled ship due Tuesday

Astronauts expect to have safe return

HOUSTON (UPI) —Skylab 2 mission commander Alan L. Bean said Friday he was fully confident that his crew would bring their crippled Apollo spacecraft back to earth safely Tuesday and that all three astronauts would walkout of the rocket ship unaided to the deck of the recovery carrier.

Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma completed their last earth resources survey and sun photography and in the first televised press conference of man's longest space flight, said they would "dearly love" to extend the 59-day mission two more days.

"I don't think there's any question about the fact we could go more than 59 days," said Lousma. "We could go on working up here almost indefinitely. I feel we could do this and request to do so."

Bean said, "this would be the the perfect job if you could go home every night to your wife."

"We're certainly not bored," said Garriott, a scientistastronaut. "I would dearly love to have another two months in the spacecraft, with absolutely no requests from the ground, to do just the things that I would like to do myself."

Jury being selected in strangulation case

POMONA — Jury selection is under way in the second Pomona Superior Court trial of a young man accused of murder in the strangulation Jan. 19 of Cheryl P. Brown here.

The panel was being selected this week in the court of Judge Glenn M. Pfau with expectations that it might be complete by the first of next week. Lengthy arguments are expected then on defense contentions that the defendant, Lee Donald Lakey, 22, wasn't properly warned by police that statements he made after his arrest might be used against him.

The trial is expected to take about three weeks compared to five weeks consumed by the first trial. That case ended June 4 in mistrial when the jury could not agree on a verdict. Pfau presided over that trial as well.

Lakey, a bus boy, is accused of garroting the young woman in her new apartment next door to his. It was to have been the first night she spent there after moving from her family residence in Chino.

Miss Brown's body was found by her sister who went to the apartment at 759 E. San Francisco Ave. to see why Miss Brown hadn't arrived at their mother's home as had been planned.

Nader rapped by GOP, Demo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic chairman and ranking Republican of a House committee both Republican lectured Ralph Nader at a hearing Friday, calling him "ignorant of the legislative process" and prone to "tirades."

Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, and Rep. Frank Horton, RN.Y., criticized Nader for half an hour as he testified on a bill that would establish an independent federal consumer protection agency.

Nader said a bill Horton and Holifield proposed "isn't worth passing" as presently designed because even though it would create an agency responsible for protecting consumer interests in other federal agencies, the new body would not be allowed to intervene in informal proceedings where decisions are made on many consumerrelated issues, including auto safety.

Plan confirmed

Controls to end on soybean exports

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government Friday formally confirmed its plans to lift all export controls on soybeans and related high-protein livestock feeds on Oct. 1.

The announcement from Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent had been expected. He had announced his intention to lift the export restrictions Oct. 1 —as promised repeatedly by other officials —in a statement several weeks ago.

Sharp protest

The export controls, imposed early this summer, produced sharp protests from buyers in Japan, Europe and other areas who import American soybeans and related products to feed their livestock. Officials here took the action after soybean prices zoomed to record levels more than triple the year-ago rate.

Despite strong misgivings by some officials, the administration decided at the time it would be safer to risk foreign anger than a domestic supply crunch, adding more fuel to inflation in meat and poultry prices for U.S. consumers.

Lift controls

Almost from the start, however, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other top officials were promising that the controls would be lifted this fall unless the 1973 soybean crop was disappointing. Recent estimates have put that crop at a record 1.6 billion bushels, which Butz's aides estimate will be more than enough to meet all foreign and domestic demand in the 1973-74 marketing season.

The agriculture secretary, despite pressure from some processor groups who want exports limited in order to help hold down domestic food prices, has pushed hard for a free export policy.

Butz maintains heavy exports are needed to help protect the dollar's value and pay for growing imports of fuel and other products.

48 million see tennis match on television

NEW YORK (UPI) —The American Broadcasting Co. estimated Friday that 48 million persons watched the Billie Jean King-Bobby Riggs tennis match on television.

An ABC spokesman said a 26-market survey by Trendex Inc. showed that the Thursday night telecast attracted 52.4 per cent of the audience during the 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. EDT time slot.

The Columbia Broadcasting System televised the original Riggs-Margaret Court tennis match on a Sunday afternoon and, since it took a chance with that telecast, it expected to get the King-Riggs match, too. But CBS was outbid by ABC.

To try to counteract the tennis match billed as the "Battle of the Sexes," CBS ran the highly popular and critically acclaimed movie "Bonnie and Clyde" opposite the match Thursday night.

CBS said it did not have national statistics on how many viewers watched "Bonnie and Clyde," which was being shown on television for the first time, but said it did have regional figures for the New York and Los Angeles areas.

CBS estimated 27.7 per cent of the audience watched the movie in the New York area where it ran at the same time as the tennis match, and that 43 per cent of the audience watched it in Los Angeles. But in Los Angeles the movie was shown after the tennis match had ended.

Lawyer asks $10 million in damages

President named in law suit for Watergate burglars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has been named in a $10 million lawsuit filed by the former lawyer for four of the convicted Watergate burglars, who claimed his clients were pressured into pleading guilty.

Henry Rothblatt said he was fired when he refused to go along with the proposal.

In a suit filed Thursday in Suprerior Court for the District of Columbia, Rothblatt said the guilty plea strategy was designed to "obstruct justice by assuring that no testimony concerning the Watergate break-in would be offered at the trial" of the four defendants.

This was to prevent White House officials, including Nixon, from being implicated in the scandal, he said.

Rothblatt represented Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez, Bernard Barker, and Frank Sturgis —all of whom pleaded guilty at their trial in January.

But Rothblatt claimed his clients believed the Watergate break-in was committed in the name of national security and was not a criminal act.

Because of this, Rothblatt said he entered the original plea of innocent, which was later changed after he was fired as counsel.

In his suit, Rothblatt asked for $10 million in damages for "malicious interference with an attorney-client contract," plus $113,000 in fees he claimed his clients still owed him.

According to Rothblatt, Nixon and his subordinates must assume financial responsibility for activities undertaken in their name.

Also named in the suit as defendants were the Committee to Re-Elect the President, former Attorney General John Mitchell, President Nixon's personal attorney Herbert Kalmbach, and former White House special assistants, H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and Jeb Magruder.

Rothblatt also named as defendants G. Gordon Liddy, and E. Howard Hunt, who were convicted as Watergate conspirators by a jury.

Student, 17, stabbed during fight at school

POMONA — One Garey High School student was stabbed in the back and another arrested for assault with intent to commit murder Friday afternoon following a mid-day altercation on the school grounds.

Robert Reyes, 17, suffered a pair of two inch deep stab wounds in the back, but escaped serious injury. He was treated and later released at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Arrested and charged with assault with intent to commit murder was Samuel Davila Villeareal, 19, of 1893 Matthews Place, Pomona. Bail was set at $1,500

According to police, the stabbing followed a fight between members of rival Mexican-American gangs set off when a brick was thrown from the school grounds at Reyes' car.

Police said another juvenile student was arrested for possession of a switchblade knife.

Hatfield urges welfare reform

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (UPI) —Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., called Friday for the federal government to take its hand from the "people's pocketbook" and give control of welfare funding to local government.

During a news conference at Geneva College, Hatfield said welfare funds could be better administrated by decentralizing the power structure to what he called an "American town hall concept."

Some home costs up $50

By PAUL HILL
P-B Staff Writer

ETIWANDA — To err is not only human, it's also costly as residents of this small foothill community are presently learning.

Due to incorrect meter readings taken some time ago by an employe of the Southwest Water Co., many residents are now faced with abnormally high water bills.

The bills reflect not only the usage and charges for the current billing period (June 22-Aug. 29), but also for the time when the mistakes were apparently made.

As a result, the residents here have banded together and plan to flood the State Public Utilities Commission in Los Angeles with their payments and letters of protest on Oct. 1.

"Each person is going to write a separate complaint, make out a check to the PUC, and then seal the envelope," said Clarence Myers, who is coordinating the efforts of the angry residents. "I will pick them up between the 27th and 30th of this month, and then I'm going to mail them on the first.

"Our intention is to flood the office of the commission with letters all on the same day. We figure to have 300-400 letters when the time is up. Even the people who received small or normal bills are behind us."

He estimated that "at least 90 per cent of the Etiwanda community" had received the bills, which average about $50 more than normal. He said that he had received a water bill of $82.98, compared to bills for $18.72 and $23.85 he had paid previously.

Myers, who has lived at his present address for only eight months, claims that he and others are possibly being charged for water consumed prior to the time they moved into their homes.

However, Ken Dietz, a spokesman for the water company, said the meters were "underread only once," and that was during the previous billing period, which covered the month of May and most of June.

When asked how such mistakes could happen, he said, "The reader did not read what the meter indicated, but he read something less than that."

Dietz said the obvious increased differences in the bills were due to the hot summer months, when water consumption is doubled and sometimes tripled. He promised, however, that the company would "analyze each individual account."

"It's a very unfortunate situation, and we regret that it has happened."

Dietz also claimed that the water company has a right to adjust its bills to the correct meter reading under PUC regulations.

Residents first learned of the company's mistake when they received their bills early last week. Enclosed with each bill was a letter of explanation which said in part:

"Our company has recently replaced the regular meter reader in your area with a new meter reader. It appears from the large difference between the June 1973 reading and the August 1973 reading that your meter may have been underread during the last several months. Consequently, the current bill may reflect usage and charges from prior months as well as for the billing period June through August 1973."

Since then, the group has been actively pursuing course of action, which is to send letters of protest to the PUC.

"I don't know if this will work," Myers admitted. "But we do have to pay for the water or get it shut off."

And if it doesn't work, what then?

"We would go back around to the same people," Myers said, "and we'd ask them to donate about $5 each. With that we would be able to hire the best attorney in the state to fight them (the water company) again.

SAN DIMAS — The city's purchase of the former San Dimas Elementary School property for a park site got no close to reality Friday as state, school and local city officials again delayed any decision about the property.

Mayor Thomas Nuss said the gathering resulted in a discussion of the problems involved with the property but the sale price wasn't mentioned.

Nuss said the meeting was "very friendly" with each side listening to the other's viewpoint. He said the city now has the alternative of condemning the property or waiting until the new general plan for the city sets the zoning for the property.

The state board apparently won't change its opinion of what the land is worth which it values at $75,000. The city had offered to buy the land for $53,000, but that was before a fire destroyed the auditorium of the school Aug. 28.

The school district says it can find a buyer for the school property if the zoning is industrial but the city has taken a stand agreeing with residents near the school property who don't want a factory use there.

Nuss and Lough both said after the meeting that they don't want a manufacturing use at the school site.

"The school district has a problem. It wants to get as much money as it can out of the property to reduce its indebtedness. We also have a problem in what we feel is the best use of the land," Nuss said.

Johnson said the school district is "frustrated" by the property that he said is a maintenance problem for the district. He said vandals had broken into the property since the Aug. 28 fire and the buildings have to again be boarded up.

City Manager Robert Poff said he doubts that the city would condemn the property because of the cost and delay involved. Zoning for the school site will be determined when the general plan is completed in late October.

Lough said he has only a small hope that the city would continue with its plans to purchase the school site after Friday's meeting with state and school officials. He said he is still working with Parks and Recreation Director Bryce Bailey on a project to find suitable park sites in the neighborhood surrounding the school. Bailey selected seven possible sites and showed them to members of the Parks and Recreation Commission earlier this week.

The City Council will receive a report on Friday's meeting when it meets Monday night at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall.

School grievance plan for Claremont elusive

CLAREMONT — Two years after a Claremont Unified School District teacher group requested development of a grievance policy, the school board and the Certificated Employe Council still do not agree on who should serve as a neutral reviewing panel.

Back in March 1973, Supt. Richard Kirkendall reported to the board that he and the CEC had reached agreement on all areas of the policy except the "third party" reviewing group.

Kirkendall said that the CEC had recommended the American Arbitration Association, and that he recommended that it be a panel of district personnel.

Monday night Kirkendall reported that the teacher group still objects to the provision of review by a panel of district people. Kirkendall explained that the CEC wants an AAA review, that it occur before a review by the school board, and that it be binding.

Kirkendall also noted that both the CEC and a California School Employes Association (classified employes) committee were concerned about the length of the policy.

Walter Blair, president of the Claremont Faculty Association which occupies all the seats on the CEC, told the board that the proposed policy is a complicated item, and "it is hard for teachers to understand."

He explained that teachers who had worked on drafting the proposal 14 months previously "didn't recognize it." "It seems like working on a horse and it comes out a camel," Blair said. "We've tried to work on the best alternatives available."

As to the "disinterested" third person idea, board member Beverly Shacklett asked Blair, "Are you saying you don't have confidence in this board as to grievances?"

"There could be circumstances where there might be differences of opinion," Blair said.

"The courts have said that when you don't have a policy you are derelict, and we're two years behind," said board member Robert Stafford.

Blair said Thursday that he has received replies from 125 of the 321 district teachers regarding their opinions of the proposed policy. "Besides being cumbersome to read, some think that there should be some one to appeal the board's decision," he said.

FUN AND GAMES

Jamie Lowe, 3, left, and Wendell Chambliss, 3, right, work on paints and crafts with a little assistance from teacher-director Rae Harris of the Pomona Community Nursery School. The school will have open house Monday through Friday mornings from 9 to 11 for parents and preschoolers.

MSAC may lose sky-class identity

WALNUT — Mt. San Antonio College may soon lose control over the now nationally known phrase "Classroom in the Sky," because United Air Lines has reportedly applied for a government trademark, registering the name as its own.

College trustees reflected wistfully Thursday that the school should have applied for registration of the name a long time ago, and now admit that it is probably too late to begin a legal scramble for the ownership of the name.

Instead, the college is hoping to convince United, which has been used by the district as a charter carrier for "Classroom in the Sky" since it began in 1965, that it would be mutually beneficial to have MSAC connected with the registration in some way.

Both board chairman William Temple and college president Eldon E. Pearce said they preferred "not to jeopardize the relationship" which the college has built up with the air carrier over the years.

However, Temple said he felt the registration of the phrase should include a notation such as "as originated by Mt. San Antonio College, Walnut, Calif."

He said United has been in touch with the college, and a United official has suggested that in any "classroom in the sky" program the college might have a say in the type of material that is to be used.

The MSAC "Classroom in the Sky" received worldwide publicity last June and July, when it took students around the world in a chartered United plane.

The MSAC trustees now feel that United wants to use the phrase to offer several such flying programs a year under the same name but not under MSAC sponsorship. Their concern is that if the program is not properly monitored, its quality may drop.

But the board concluded that as long as the college could have a say about the material that will be used, and the registration could include the college as the originator of the project, it would not place any obstacles before United's plans to acquire the name.

The MSAC "Classroom in the Sky" program is conducted by Stewart Angle, chairman of the college's aeronautics and transportation department.

Nursery school in Pomona will hold open house

Visiting youngsters will be encouraged to participate in the activities at the playhouse, sandbox, water table, tricycle area, work bench and the two classrooms used for art, music, pupets, puzzles, literature and science.

The school offers enrollment for two, three or five mornings a week for children who are 2 years, 9 months to kindergarten age.

The school is now in its 18th year and is affiliated with the Pomona Unified School District through its adult education course in raising and educating preschool children.

The school is now taking applications for the fall semester. Thos wishing additional information should call the school, 627-4918; Mrs. David Chinn, 629-4740; or Mrs. Ronald Foreman, 624-8848.

POMONA — Two Pomona youths, arrested in the gang violence opening night at the Los Angeles County Fair, will be petitioned to Juvenile Court, police here said Friday.

The violence, confined to the Fun Zone, resulted in the stabbing of four youths. The incidents were blamed on continuing gang rivalries involving Mexican-American youths from Pomona, Chino and Ontario.

Most seriously injured was Michael Parra, 19, 13582 Central Ave., Chino. Para suffered a stab wound in his left chest, near his heart, and wounds in one arm. He was confined for awhile in Pomona Valley Community Hospital's intensive care unit, underwent surgery and was released earlier this week.

The youths arrested in the stabbing are 15 and 17 and were booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon — the charges they will face in Juvenile Court. One was seized by police who saw him kick Para as Para lay wounded near the zone's roller coaster. Ten other youths fled immediately after the incident.

Two Ontario men and a 17-year-old Pomonan were stabbed the same night in apparently related incidents, authorities said.

The victims were Anthony Villasenor, 20, 326 W. California Blvd., Ontario, Jose A. Salazar, 10, 1027 E. Philadelphia St., Ontario, and Steven M. Garcia, 17, 867 W. Monterey Ave., Pomona.

Villasenor was stabbed in the side and was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Salazar was cut on one arm and in one side and was treated at County-USC Medical Centerm Garica was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. He had a stab wound in his lower abdomen.

Police said that in most cases, victims in such cases are uncooperative and do not supply investigators with much information about their attackers.

Claremont school guess misses by 1

Kirkendall had projected that 6,528 students would be enrolled at the end of the first month of school, and the enrollment Monday was 6,529.

Enrollment on the sixth day of school in September 1972 was 6,767, a significant decrease of 238 students this year.

Following are comparisons of enrollments Monday by various groups of grades: kindergarten, 317, down 11 from last year; grades 1 through 3, 1,065, down 118; grades 4 through 6, 1,487, down 130; grades 7 through 8, 1,195, up 93; grades 9 through 12, 2,190, down 106; and San Antonio High, 115, up 26. Special education classes had 160 students enrolled, up 8 from last year.

Claremont to enroll in recreation classes

SAN DIMAS — Registration will be taken Tuesday from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. at City Hall for fee and charge classes for the fall, winter and spring recreation programs.

Instruction will be given in ballet, ballroom, folk, modern jazz, tap, polynesian and square dancing, acrobatics, backpacking, baton, children's theater, dog obedience, guitar, painting, sing and dance, sketching, ski, slim and trim and tennis.

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — City Manager Bob Fast pleaded a "prime need at this time for additional space in promoting the proposed new Civic Center to a gathering of 22 local businessmen friday.

Fast discussed the need of the Civic Center in a breakfast meeting sponsored by the Chino Valley Chamber of Commerce at Narod's Restaurant. The event was coordinated by Marv Patton, chamber vice president.

In a slide presentation with assistance by George Varela, administrative analyst, Fast explained the recent decision by the City Council to ask for a 25-cent tax increase per $100 assessed valuation in a tax override election on Oct. 23.

"Expansion is necessary to house those governmental facilties needed to provide services for not only the City of Chino, but for the entire rural community surrounding Chino," Fast began.

The Civic Center will house both city and county offices and be located west of Central Avenue on D Street. The city's first increment will cost between $1.5 million and $1.8 million with funds derived from revenue sharing, redevelopment and the tax override. The 25-cent override, if passed, is expected to raise $100,000 per year and would be implemented in the 1973-74 fiscal year.

The present center east of Central was built in 1953. The manager pointed out that parking is inadequate for both downtown workers and the visiting public. The Community Building at 10th and B streets currently serves as Planning Commission and City Council chambers; and meetings there are complicated by problems of acoustics and air conditioning.

Over crowding exists throughout city facilities with the worse situation existing in the police department, Fast said. He cited examples of this as duplicating machines in storage rooms, narrow hallways, a squad room too small and adjacent to the detective and juvenile office thus enterfering with official and confidential business at times, and lack of space for filing and storage of records.

The fire department has no room for additional fire equipment, including an aerial fire truck now on order and expected to arrive sometime next year, he said. There is also a need for additional dispatching with new business and industry moving into Chino, according to the manager.

Fast said administrative offices in each department suffer from lack of space and doubling up. "There is no uncrowded space. With the exception of one place, there is no conference room for general meetings. The annex (for the planning and engineering departments) is costing the city $6,500 a year. And already this building is overcrowded," he said.

The advanatage of locating the new Civic Center in the old downtown area, from 6th Steet to Central on D, is that redevelopment will occur, said Fast. The master plan for the city is projected to the needs of the year 2000.

The present city hall could be inexpensively converted into a community activity and recreation center, he noted.

The fire department would move into the existing police department and utilize every available square foot, he added.

The city tax rate of $1.55 has not increased since 1969-70. In response to a question by John Kropp, principal of the Community Adult School, Fast reported that the cost to each Chino citizen, if the override passes, would be a range from 40 cents to not more than $1.50 per month for a probably period of 25 years.

Harold Wilson, noting the plan would be done in phases, asked, "Does that mean the hat will be passed around later for another override?"

"The present council cannot predict what future councils will do. The intent is that this should in fact do it. As the base of the community expands we will be able to meet the needs with the 25 cents. . .Chino has developed only 25 per cent now of its expected expansion to the year 2000. It would be foolhardy for the city to totally build facilities for the year 1973. So it has to be a phased project. Within our best knowledge now this will be it," replied Fast.

Eileen Carter, president of the citizens committee for promotion of the override election, distributed cards to the businessmen for endorsements and donations. She reported that Sunday was the deadline for registering to vote.

People of Hungary determined to keep faith alive--Mindzenty

MONTREAL (UPI) —Cardinal Joseph Mindzenty is 82 years old. He has spent 23 of them either behind bars or in hiding.

In Montreal this week, on the first leg of his North American tour, the primate of Hungary spoke about the "undying determination of the Hungarian people," with the personal determination of a man who has been alternately jailed and persecuted, first by the Nazis in World War II, then by Hungarian Communists.

"Even though our priests and our sisters have been expelled from Hungary, and mental patients and other needy people go without the care of the church, the undying determination of the Hungarian people has allowed them to keep the faith alive," the cardinal said.

Asked if he could compare the Russian invasion of Hungary in 1956 to the recent military coup in Chile, Mindszenty replied, "I do not wish to make comparisons between world situations.

"But the ravages of the Second World War, in which the great powers sought to put an end to colonialism, were followed by an equally disastrous peace in which 120 million people in central and eastern Europe were sold into the worst form of colonial repression possible."

Mindszenty's slightly tanned face is bright, and his eyes clear and piercing. He likes to point and make emphatic gestures as he speaks —more than two decades of persecution seem to have left no mark on him.

His sermons to his Hungarian congregations —one of the reasons he was persecuted — repeated again and again man's right to "freedom of religious life and education, the right of political self-determination for the Hungarian people and dignity of the human person."

Wednesday he reiterated these "basic rights of man," and called the Hungarian government a "regime led by hatred," with the equanimity of a man who feels no hatred himself.

Mindszenty, the son of a Hungarian farmer, was arrested first by the Nazis in 1944 and jailed until the end of the war for running an underground railroad for Hungarian refugees.

Shortly after his liberation he was appointed primate of Hungary, but only three years later on Dec. 26, 1948, he was arrested by the Hungarian Communist government and sentenced to life imprisonment for "activities against the state" —running another underground railroad for refugeees from Communist purges.

He remained in prison until 1956 when he was liberated in the abortive revolution against the Communist regime. When Russian forces crushed the insurrection, he took refuge in the American embassy in Budapest, where he remained in total isolation until September of 1971.

At that time, the Vatican reached an agreement for Mindszenty's safe conduct out of Hungary, and he left his room in the American embassy, home for 15 years, to take residence in Vienna.

Finally, a free man, Mindszenty wrote his memoirs dealing with the difficult years of his enforced seclusion and the charges of the Hungarian regime. They are scheduled to be published next year.

The Hungarian ambassador to Italy has protested to the Vatican, saying the memoirs publication is against the agreement made for Mindszenty's release.

Asked about the protest Mindzenty's said "every man has a right to defend himself when he is attacked. I think even a cardinal has the same right."

Other stops in his tour of Canada, before he goes on to the United States, will be Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A government-sponsored entertainment program, intended to raise money for a cultural center, ended as a $30,000 financial failure.

The Southeast Community Cultural Center spent $70,000 to stage a gospel and rock concert recently at Candlestick Park and took in just $40,000 at the gate, Charles Countee, an official of the Model Cities Program, said Tuesday.

"We don't judge the success of this sort of thing in terms of money alone," he added, saying that those who did attend had a "lot of fun."

A weak promotional effort and a ticket price of $6.50 appeared to have resulted in the poor sale although the show had such stars as Ike and Tina Turner.

The center spent $21,600 renting the stadium and hiring guards, $32,000 for artists' fees and $16,400 for advertising.

Opposite sex dress ban struck down

CHICAGO (UPI) — Citing the violation of the equal protection provisions of the United States Constitution, a youth court judge Thursday struck down an ordinance forbidding persons from wearing the clothing of the other sex in public.

Judge Jack I. Sperling knocked down the 1943 statute in dismissing charges against four youths accused of violating the statute.

Sperling said "I take very seriously my responsibility to rule on constitutional matters. Where this may be a matter of laughter to some people it is a very serious matter to these defendants. I very much want a decision to be made by a higher court, because this could become a landmark case.

Sperling said his ruling would warn police not to bring such cases to his courtroom.

"We're concerned with serious crimes here—murder, rape, aggravated battery. I don't believe cases like this should be in the courts at law. We don't care whether a person wears lipstick or rouge on their face or what the person's style of clothing or hairdo might be," he said.

Authorities said the four defendants, ranging in age from 17 to 20, were arrested when they entered a police station dressed in women's clothing to file a complaint about a beating in a bar.

A spokesman for the defendants said the youths filed the complaint after they were accosted by patrons and employes of a South Side tavern when they entered the bar dressed in miniskirts.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Arthur Mooradian said no decision was immediately made on whether to appeal the ruling, but he said the decision could be overturned by another judge ruling in a similar case or through an appeal to a higher court.

Police seek identity of body in car

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Police are seeking to identify the murder victim found in the blood-spattered trunk of an abandoned car about 15 miles north of this gambling center.

Officers said Anthony Thompson of North Las Vegas was target shooting about a half mile west of the Apex turnoff near Interstate 15 when he sighted the vehicle.

The trunk of the 1955 Buick was partially opened. When Thompson investigated he found the body of a man covered with blood.

The victim, described as a white male in his 30s, apparently had been dead longer than 48 hours, officers said.

Thompson said the car which contained the body was in the same area as long as a month ago. Thompson said previously the abandoned vehicle was turned upside down in the desert area.

Rattles & straws

Make love, not war

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

I'm certainly glad the war is over and that we won.

Many people are not aware of it, but the United States of America was at war with the Sovereign County of Forgotonia recently, and after a spirited exchange of public relations bulletins, the enemy nation surrendered. Not only surrendered but vanished. Neatest trick of the week.

Forgotonia was the proposed 51st state of the Union, a loose amalgam of 16 western Illinois counties miffed because they weren't getting their share of federal funds for roads and recreation. The farmers figured if they united and marched on the state captial with harvesters and combines, they would be defeated and regarded as an—er, defeated nation and given all sorts of loans and war surplus pitchforks.

"Why shouldn't we surrender?" asked Neal Gamm, self-appointed governor of the would-be state. "Look what happened to the Japanese and German economies."

(Something in what the chap says, you must admit. Here are our two bitter, unconditional-surrender enemies booming with our aid and support, prospering, flourishing—while our recent Allies, England and France, are postively floundering.)

The nonwar started (and ended) in Concord, Ill. last week when Gamm fired a ceremonial shot. Whether he hit anything or not, the press reports did not make clear. After the opening barrage, he handed out a mimeographed release announcing the armistice, truce, terms of the surrender and bid for a foreign loan.

"After the stalemate in Korea and the disaster in Vietnam we decided the United States needed a clearcut victory, so we surrendered," Gamm said. Certainly lucky for us. If the world's most powerful nation can't subdue a passel of Orientals, I hate to think of them taking on the farmers, insurance salesmen and used-car dealers of western Illinois.

Sure, our ROTC boys would race into the wheatfields and pasturelands, shoot a few cows, capture a barn or two, and make out with the farmers' daughters, but it might be another case of bury my knee at Wounded Heart. "Here once the embattled farmers stood . . ." That was Concord, too, if my eighth grade American history course is to be credited.

Anyway, I'm glad the war is over and we got the boys out of the irrigation ditches by Christmas. Illinois can have its "reconstruction funds" and the ROTC chaps from Southern Illinois University won't have to miss the homecoming game.

It was a beautiful war while it lasted.

My parents think I am too young to even date. Seeing Luke is more than just a date to me. It is everything. Please help me.—15 in Virginia

(A.) Meeting Luke secretly is making you feel guilty. And if you keep on doing so it may lead to something much worse than guilt feelings.

Tell your parents about him. Ask them to meet him. They may like him as much as you do, but in a different way. Ask them to let him visit you at home until they think you are old enough to go out with him.

What I am suggesting is the positive, honest way for you and Luke. The road you are now taking is negative and dangerous.

INTRUDER: (Q.) My brother can't leave my things alone. He plays my records on my stereo without my permission. He ruins or loses the records. He takes his friends into my room and shows off.

He takes anything he wants and loses it, ruins it or uses it half up. How can I make him stop? He is 8. I am 14.—Bothered Brother in Massachusetts

(A.) You say nothing about your parents. To insist that they help you cope with your bothersome little brother wouldn't be either tattling or behaving in an unmanly manner.

Lay all the facts on the table for them and ask them to set up some rules that will keep your brother out of your room and away from your possessions except with your permission.

The rules should also protect your little brother from intrusions by YOU. Mention this to your parents.

Political defeat led to Agnew's rise to present post of Vice President

By United Press International

Spiro Theodore Agnew could be hearing divorce cases in a Maryland county court instead of holding the nation's No. 2 job as vice president—if he had won the only election he ever lost.

Twenty years ago, Agnew was defeated in a race for judge. The loss carried him into a political career based on crusading that eventually hurtled him from local office to within a heartbeat of the presidency in three years.

Agnew's rise in the rough-hand-tumble world of Maryland politics led to a struggle in his second term. A federal grand jury, examining political corruption —especially kickbacks paid by state contractors and consultants to elected officials —asked Agnew for personal financial records while he was governor of Maryland.

Give records

Agnew gave U.S. Attorney George Beall his bank books and other records, but he and many of his close friends and political supporters were accused of irregularities in news stories with little attribution. It was hinted that Agnew would be indicted. He reacted by proclaiming his innocence and vowing to fight.

Then, in another unattributed story, The Washington Post reported that Agnew had discussed resigning with a 'senior Republican' who tried to talk him out of it. Agnew would not respond —"it's not my practice to comment on stories from undisclosed sources," he said —and some of his friends felt the story was leaked by the White House.

To quit would imply guilt, said his press secretary, J. Marsh Thomson. "He's not a quitter. What would he do without a base of power? It would be a foolish move from one who is determined to win."

Agnew's criticism of the media, their "instant analysis" of presidential speeches and unattributed stories which led to the revelations of the Watergate scandal changed him from the "Spiro Who" that greeted him on his nomination and made him one of the most controversial —and well known —vice presidents in years. He was considered a contender for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination and it was not known whether the allegations of political illegality in Maryland hurt his chances.

Spiro Agnew's beginnings were humble—the son of an immigrant Greek restaurant owner named Theodore S. Anagnostpoulos. He married brunette Elinor Isabel Judefind in 1942, after dropping out of Johns Hopkins University to fight with the Army in World War II. On his return, Agnew worked his way through night law school at Baltimore University.

The young lawyer became a Baltimore County official in 1958, and won his first elective office, county executive, four years later in his first crusade.

Baltimore County was a Democratic stronghold, but despite its GOP minority, Agnew was elected. In 1936, Agnew was again running against the odds. But a split in the Democratic party put him in a three-way race and he won the governor's mansion.

When Richard M. Nixon set his sights on the 1968 GOP nomination for president, Agnew, who had originally backed Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, switched his support to Nixon and Nixon had fixed on Agnew as his surprise running mate.

Brazil road workers

How to meet Indians related in booklet

BRASILIA (UPI) —Jungle road workers in Brazil now are getting an illustrated booklet giving practical advice on how to handle contacts with wild Indians.

The 10-page booklet, illustrated with simple photographs, is part of the National Indian Foundation's (FUNAI) campaign to lessen the negative impact of a new Amazon region road on the estimated 20,000 Indians whose lands it will bisect.

The "Northern Perimeter," as the road is called, will run for more than 3,125 miles along Brazil's northern and western borders. Most of the Indians in the region have never had contact with civilization before.

Learned things

FUNAI Vice President Gen. Ismarth Oliveira said, "We learned some things during the construction of the Transamazonic Highway that we want to avoid this time".

FUNAI's responsibility during the road-building phase runs for 65 miles on either side of the construction line.

There will be FUNAI workers accompanying the construction crews to give advice as well as handle most direct contacts with tribes that are discovered.

Nevertheless, FUNAI recognizes that many of the road builders, who are often illiterate, will be coming into independent cohtact and thus the booklet.

Incidents during the building of the Transamazonic Road included several armed encounters. One road worker was wounded in the chest with an arrow.

The booklet the construction workers will receive is written in extremely simple language. Examples of the advice:

—Respect. "It is possible that the Indians will make a friendly visit to your camp. On these occasions they come accompanied by their women and children. But they also are very jealous of their wives. Because of this, do not stare at the Indian women and talk only with the men."

No defense

—Vaccinate yourself. "The Indian does not possess defense organisms against civilized diseases. You should therefore be vaccinated."

—Do not hunt. "The Indian has a need for his land and does not like the presence of strangers without his permission. Therefore, do not venture into the jungle to hunt. That is the Indian's last way of getting food."

—Understand. "If during a visit to your camp the Indians begin taking away tools, food, etc., do not impede them. They might not understand your attitude and become irritated. Keep all topographic instruments and other valuable equipment in closed boxes."

—Be calm. "If by chance an unfriendly encounter with the Indians takes place, don't strike back. Indians are by nature a gentle people and many times they are only testing the courage of the civilized man. If you strike back, the consequences can be worse."

—Clothing and disease. "Do not give clothing to Indians. Without knowing it, you may transmit some disease. A simple cold can provoke the death of many indians in a tribe."

Fight military

Diplomat says Chile won't accept coup

ROME (UPI) —The ambassador to Italy of former Chilean President Salvador Allende predicted today that millions of Chileans "will not accept the imposition of an ignominious tyranny" and will fight the military men who toppled Allende.

Ambassador Carlos Vassallo Rojas denounced the army coup in a statement at the airport where he met a group of Chilean leftwing politicians who flew in from Moscow.

Vassallo, who said last week he would refuse to leave his post unless and until Italy recognizes the military junta, declined further comment on his own position.

"On a day when the flag of our fatherland flies at half mast because of the tragedy hitting thousands of Chilean families, we are certain that... millions of citizens will not accept the imposition of an ignominious tyranny and that, inspired by the heroic sacrifice of President Allende, they will not give up the fight to defend out natural wealth and bring back to Chile legality, democracy and freedom," Vassallo said.

He said he canceled celebrations of today's 163rd anniversary of Chile's independence because "a day of rejoicing has turned this year into a day of national mourning. The democratic regime of Chile, the pride of the national and an example to Latin America, after more than 150 years of stability.

Russian art historian bares threat

MOSCOW (UPI) -- A Soviet art historian said that the secret police have threatened to jail him for sending manuscripts to the West.

In an outspoken statement in which he admitted sending underground articles, photos and poems to the West, historian Yevgeny Barabanov defended his action in the name of human freedoms.

"The West granted the sole opportunity to save these documents and preserve them from physical extermination." the 29-year-old art specialist said in a statement sent to Western newsmen.

Barabanov said the KGB, the Soviet secret police, searched his apartment Aug. 24 and called him in for questioning three days later.

You don't duck in grand slam

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Eric Murray and Sammy Kehela of Toronto are one of the best pairs in the world. Today's hand shows them playing against one another in a mixed pair event.

Sammy found himself on lead agains Eric's seven no-trump contract and opened the king of diamond just as any expert or beginner would.

Eric locked at dummy for a couple of seconds, showed my his hand and asked, "Do I make it or am I down one?"

It took Sammy even less time to reply, "Yes, you make it."

He put his hand back on the board, but East wasn't satisfied and wanted Eric to play it out.

There was nothing to the play. Sammy's lead had marked him with the queen of diamonds. Eric would win the first trick with dummy's ace of diamonds. You don't duck when in a grand slam.

Then he would cash dummy's ace of spades and proceed to run off all the hearts and clubs. This would leave him with two cards. Sammy would have to come down to two cards also. One would be the queen of diamonds; the other a spade.

The play wouldn't work if East held three spades. In that case Sammy would have told Eric he was down one.

He wasn't about to miss first meeting

TURLOCK, Calif. (UPI) — Mayor Enoch Christofferson, who has not missed a City Council meeting in his 17 years at the post, kept his record in tact even though he had to fly half way around the world to do it.

The mayor, in Edinburgh, Scotland for the Full Gospel Businessmens' Association, flew from Great Britain to Los Angeles on a Polar flight Tuesday and then caught a B & B Flying Service flight to Turlock, arriving with two hours to spare before the council session.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Tony Perez slugged a three-run homer in the top of the 10th inning Friday night, his fifth hit of the game, to break a 1-1 tie and send the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The victory increased Cincinnati's lead in the National League West to 5½ games with seven remaining.

Phil Gagliano led off the 10th inning with a bunt single and Charlie Hough replaced starter Claude Osteen. With one out, Joe Morgan singled and Perez, who went 5-for-5, hit his 25th homer into the left field stands.

The Dodgers scored in the second inning when starter Jack Billingham gave up a pair of walks and Von Joshua's ground rule double drove in Willie Crawford. The lead stood up until the ninth when George Foster led off with a home run to send the contest into extra innings.

Osteen was charged with the loss to make his record 16-11. It was his fifth straight defeat since Aug. 28.

Tom Hall, who took over for Billingham in the seventh inning, gained the victory in relief to make his mark 8-5.

WOLF AT THE DOOR

Claremont High halfback Joe Hillstock darts through the Bonita defensive backfield Friday night on the Citrus College field. Despite Hillstock's footwork, Bonita avenged last year's loss to the Wolfpack with a 14-0 victory in the season opener for both schools

Bonita defense stifles Wolfpack

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

AZUSA — A light is finally glimmering at the end of Pete Lopez' tunnel.

The second-year Bonita High head football coach has spent the off-season living with the memory of seven losses. His Bearcats erased one of the bigger memories off the ledger Friday night at Citrus College.

Two touchdown runs by Richard Ortega gave a consistently impressive Bonita defense all the scoring it needed to guarantee a shutout victory over the defending San Antonio League champion Claremont Wolfpack, 14-0.

It may not have been the same old Wolfpack that was beaten Friday, but by the same token it was not the same old Green Machine that got kicked around a year ago.

Claremont coach Esper Keiser brought a squad to Friday's game that for the most part had not earned its letter yet. That was the exact situation Lopez faced in '72.

Despite a strong game from 'Pack running back Joe Hillstock, the Bearcats consistently denied Claremont access to the end zone.

The first act of defensive heroism coincided with the first Claremont possession. Quarterback Kent Stalwick had the Wolves on the move after the opening kickoff and was on the Bonita 47. A third-down pitchout was knocked awry by a hand sticking out of a crowd of Bearcats, and sophomore Scott Johnson fell on the rolling football on the Claremont 38.

Claremont's Curt Vonder Reith recovered a Bonita fumble a few minutes later, but the mold for the game was set.

The two squads wrestled around for the remainder of the first quarter, but Bonita's junior quarterback Harold Drake got a drive put together on his second possession of the next 12 minutes.

Starting from his own 43, Drake alternated between Ortega, Bob Rees, and himself on the ground before Ortega plunged in from one yard out for the first score of the game. Drake made the biggest gain of the drive on a 13-yard keeper. After gaining the 'Pack 24, Reese made a pair of nine-yarders, and a short one-yard gain to get to the five.

Drake carried twice to set up Ortega's TD, and then kicked the extra point.

Stalwick got Claremont dangerously close in the third period. Moving from his own 38, Stalwick hit Matt Weinberg with an 18 yard pass, and Hillstock contributed an 11-yarder on the ground. The 'Pack was on the Bearcat 22 before the defense stiffened and stalled the drive.

Lopez didn't start breathing easier until early in the fourth quarter when Ortega put the game on ice, breaking off a spectacular 29-yard touchdown run.

Claremont was in the middle of a desperation drive within the Bonita ten when the final gun went off.

A similar drive had failed at the end of the first half when defensive back Marty Schroedter picked off a Stalwick pass on the Bonita five.

Saints pull off another upset

By KEVIN CLOE

LA VERNE— San Dimas continues to be amazing in its season openers.

The Saints, who stunned the valley with a 33-27 upset over Damien in the season opener last year, did it again Friday night.

A 23-yard field goal by quarterback-place kicker Dave Maloof in the first quarter, and a three-yard run by running back Jerry Levreau in the fourth gave the amazing Saints a 10-7 win over favored Damien in the 1973 season opener.

Not only did the San Dimas victory make it two in a row over the Spartans in the openers, but it also spoiled Damien's opening night in its newly lit stadium and ruined Spartan coach Ron Smedley's debut at the parochial school.

The winning touchdown came with a little under seven minutes remaining in the game, after the Saints were given a little life following a Damien pass interception.

San Dimas started the drive on Damien's 29 yard line after the Spartans were forced into a bad punt.

Minutes later, Maloof connected with his tight end John Brahs for 28 yards to put the ball on the one yard line. But a five-yard penalty pushed San Dimas back to the six, and it looked as though the Saints would have to settle for its second field goal.

On the fourth-down play, San Dimas coach Bob Baiz went for broke and had Maloof go for a pass in the end zone.

The pass dropped incomplete, but accompanying the incompletion was a red flag charging Damien with pass interference.

The penalty gave the Saints the ball on the three yard line with a first down. And on the first play, Levreau plunged over the goal line.

Starting at their own 48 yard line, the Spartans moved down to within the 30 yard line in San Dimas territory. But Saint defensive back Jim Richards picked off a Damien pass to give San Dimas possession at its own 30 yard line with only a minute and ten seconds left in the game.

Right then it looked as if the Saints had wrapped it up, but Damien wasn't through. A San Dimas fumble on its own 38 yard line with 34 seconds remaining gave the Spartans another shot at pulling off a come-from-behind victory.

Smedley sent in Larry Pekarcik in hopes his pass accuracy could get another six points for Damien. But there wasn't enough time on the clock as Pekarcik threw for only one completion.

Neither team could really do any damage for the first 18 minutes of the first half.

San Dimas started a drive on its own 33 yard line and marched to the Damien 13 before fumbling the ball to the Spartan defense.

The key play on the drive came when Maloof connected with Brahs for a 30-yard pass play to put the ball deep in Spartan territory.

Damien, taking over on its own 13 after Tony Allen recovered the fumble, failed to move the ball and was forced to punt after four downs.

San Dimas put a heavy rush on punter Bob Lamb, pressuring his kick to float out of bounds on the Damien 27.

Vikings, Brea play to 20-20 tie

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

BREA — The Garey Vikings were fit to be tied Friday night at Brea-Olinda High School—and that's exactly what happened, as the host Wildcats scored a last-minute touchdown to leave the 1973 opener for both clubs in a 20-20 standstill.

The game also marked the coaching debut for Garey's Lawson Bush and, as promised, the Vikings this season will be a more exciting club to watch.

Specifically, the game featured the fine running of speedster Derrick Daley, who scored two TD's for Garey; a tremendous performance by defensive middle guard John Jones, who was constantly wrapping his arms around the Wildcat ball carrier; and the "do-a little-bit-of-everything" style by Scott Roque (rhymes with croquet) who handled the quarterbacking job, did all the kicking and also threw the Brea quarterback for major losses on four occasions from his defensive end position.

Garey, which suffered a 26-7 opening defeat against Brea last season, started quickly Friday as sophomore Stanley Webster sprinted around left end, broke a tackle at the line of scrimmage and then raced 75 yards to a score, the first time he handled the ball in high school. The game was just 54 seconds old but already people could see the speed that had been advertised on the Garey squad.

One of the most glaring Viking weaknesses also came to light at this moment—the lack of a strong kicking game, as Roque's extra point was low.

Brea, whose strongest point is the kicing game, pulled ahead on a 27 yard field goal by all-CIF performer David Donk, and a 4-yard scoring pass which was set up when Roque suffered his first of three interceptions.

But following the touchdown, Daley started the Brea fans by taking Donk's kickoff on the five, slipping slightly on his takeoff, and then slipping through the entire Brea team for a 95-yard scoring scamper which gave Garey the lead at the half, 12-10. This, despite the fact that the Vikings had only two first downs in the opening 24 minutes.

The third big play for Garey came in the middle of the third period after Greg Johnson recovered a loose ball for the Vikings. On a second and one situation at the Wildcat 24, Roque crossed up the defense by using Daley on a quick pitch reverse with the senior speedster dodging the only man in his path for the score.

The only extra point for Garey turned out to be an important one as Dana Hutchison ran over for two points, giving Garey a 20-10 lead.

But from there on it was a matter of trying to hold on, and the Vikings couldn't quite do it as Donk connected again from the 32 and then with 40 seconds remaining, Steve Seeba, the hard running fullback for B-O smelled the goal line and rammed over from the two with Donk's extra point knotting the score.

MIAMI (UPI) —Three Texas fumbles led to three touchdown plunges by junior tailback Woody Thompson Friday night and the upstart Miami Hurricanes upset the fifth-ranked Longhorns, 20-15.

In addition to all the Miami scoring coming off drives that began with recovered fumbles, a last-ditch Longhorn drive died when quarterback Marty Akins fumbled.

Miami rolled to a 20-6 third quarter lead on touchdown bursts of one, eight and one yards by the 214-pound Thompson. Fiery Hurricane quarterback Coy Hall engineered the marches.

UCLA wants redemption against Iowa

LOS ANGELES — When the Big Ten and Pacific-8 Conferences get together in football, it is either in the Rose Bowl or an important intersectional test.

Well, tonight at 7:30 before some 35,000 to 40,000 fans Iowa and UCLA hook up in a crucial early-season meeting in the Los Angeles Coliseum for both the visiting Hawkeyes and host Bruins.

The Bruins hope to redeem themselves for their disappointing 40-13 opening loss to Nebraska two weeks ago; ditto for the Hawks following their inaugural 31-7 setback to Michigan last week.

Both coaches, UCLA's Pepper Rodgers and Iowa's Frank X. Lauterbur, have indicated earlier this week that they have high hopes their respective teams have re-grouped and are ready for improved performances.

The Bruins are the solid favorites, but the underdog Hawkeyes have lots of incentives to put together a big one, including the prime objective of beating UCLA for the first time ever. They've met four times previously, with their last meeting coming 18 years ago in 1955 when the Bruins won to give them a 4-0 series lead.

Both teams hope to come up with more balanced attacks than they flashed in their openers. Iowa outpassed Michigan, 115 yards to 35, but couldn't contain the Michigan backs who netted 440 yards to only 118 for the Hawks.

The Bruins' powerful Wishbone ground game netted 251 yards to 324 for Nebraska. But their passing attack is expected to be much better tonight than their 2 of 9 for only 20 yards against the Huskers.

In other words, the Hawks have been working on their running game, the Bruins on their aerial attack. Iowa's big rushing threat is fullback Phil Hayman, who averaged 6.4 yards per carry against Michigan.

As for the Bruins, quarterbacks Mark Harmon and John Sciarra have been passing well in practice while Kermit Johnson and James McAlister, of course, are two exceptional running backs. The former averaged 8.2 yards against the Cornhuskers, including one for 43 yards; the latter 3.7 per carry even though the Huskers keyed on him all day long.

Giant Wishbone rips Azusa, 25-7

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Ganesha High, running from a Wishbone-T offense, slashed Azusa, 25-7, Friday night in the season opener at Cal Poly University.

The Giants of head coach Garry Norvell ripped the Aztecs for 248 yards on the ground, and an additional 64 through the air, including two touchdown passes from quarterback Tracy Cowger.

It was a fine opening for the Giants, who are early season favorites to win the San Antonio League title.

With a lean and mean offensive line opening holes in the Aztec forward wall, running backs Jim Maniaci, Ron Jacques, Rick Sanders and Rob Garrish chopped out chunks of real estate enroute to the victory.

"I didn't think we looked too bad for an opener," said Norvell. I hadn't planned on doing much passing, but it worked pretty well, didn't it?"

Maniaci was the leading ground gainer, carrying 10 times for 93 yards and a touchdown — the first score of the evening, with 0:59 left in the first period.

Jacques set it up with a 42 yard run from the Giant 28 to the Aztec 30. Maniaci got the call on the next play and he took it in from there. Dave Segura booted the extra point.

On the first play from scrimmage following the kickoff, the Giants had the ball again at the Azusa 32 on a fumble recovery.

The Giants moved on the ground to a first down at the 20, where Cowger threw his first pass of the evening, complete to Brian Thornbaugh, who took it into the end zone for a touchdown, and a 13-0 lead.

Ganesha iced it in the third quarter, running, and passing when it had to, on the first series of the second half.

Cowger clicked with Paul Madrigal for 36-yard gain through the air, and Maniaci churned for 16 on the ground to set up Cowger for a four-yard touchdown pass to Cameron Rawlings on a fourth and goal situation.

The drive used up almost half of the third period, and the 19-point lead looked better than healthy.

The Giants added an insurance score midway through the fourth period, as fullback Nick Petersen and Sanders threw key blocks for sophomore Rob Garrish, who scampered down the north sidelines, 35 yards for a TD with 7:32 left in the game.

Azusa took advantage of a Ganesha fumble to set up Jeff Snyder's two-yard TD run with 3:07 remaining. Keith Potts kicked the point to make it 25-7.

McKay claims spread, 'wrong'

ATLANTA (UPI) —Southern Cal Coach John McKay has been trying to convince his topranked Trojans that the oddsmaker was wrong when he made them 21-point favorites for today's game with Georgia Tech.

"Georgia Tech should be much better than Arkansas (17-0) loser to Southern Cal)," McKay insists. "Even though they got off to a bad start against South Carolina (which beat Tech 41-28), I would be surprised if they are not one of the better teams in the country by the time the season ends."

McKay also insists that Atlanta weather may be in Tech's favor.

HOUSTON (UPI) —Quarterback D. C. Nobles rushed for one touchdown and directed two other scoring drives to lead the University of Houston to a 27-19 victory over stubborn South Carolina Friday night.

Nobles, setting up the Cougar drives with precisely timed pitch outs to backs Leonard Parker and Regie Cherry, scored on a three-yard burst in the second period. Parker sprinted from five yards out and Cherry scored from 10 yards out late in the third quarter.

Walnut uses aerial attack for 30-24 win

By TOM FAHEY
P-B Correspondent

LA PUENTE — The Walnut Mustangs used a devastating aerial attack to defeat the Nogales Nobles, 30-24, Friday night at Nogales, in the season's opener for both.

Lance Parrish piloted the Mustang attack completing 18 of 36 passes for 325 yards and five touchdowns. Most of his passing came in the wild first half when he threw for 237 yards.

Nogales set the stage for the evening on their first play from scrimmage. Noble quarterback Walt Stahl hurled a 41-yard touchdown pass to Napolean Sparks.

Walnut however was not to be outdone and came back in a blitzkriege. Parrish started hitting on his passes, and as a result, the Mustang marched down the field with ease.

Parrish hurled a 20-yard pass to Kirk Christ on a fourth-and-goal situation to ignite the Mustang attack. From then on, the ball was always to be found in the air whether it be Walnut's or Nogales'.

Tight-end Mike Pfeil found out what it was like to score as he caught his first three receptions for touchdowns of 56, 46 and 8 yards respectively.

Nogales quarterback Walt Stahl also had a productive night, tossing for 239 yards, although he was only 9 for 24.

The fact that it was the first game for both teams was quite evident as 155 yards worth of penalties were called, 75 for the Nobles, and 80 for the Mustangs.

Walnut also fumbled twice and threw away four interceptions. The Nogales offense was responsible for four fumbles and three interceptions, two by Mustang Linton Nolan.

Huskies trip Chino

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Correspondent

CHINO —South Hills High converted two critical penalties to score a fourth-quarter touchdown, breaking open a tight 7-6 defensive battle and paving the way to a 21-6 victory over Chino High here Friday.

Lady Luck play a major role in the season's opener for both schools, as fumble recoveries set up the two first hall scores. Cowboy quarterback Jerry Belmudes fumbled on the second play from scrimmage in the game, and Huskie lineman Mark Vargas pounced on the loose ball. South Hills signal caller Brian Bethke struck pay dirt in a hurry, as he lofted a 25-yard scoring strike to wide receiver Rex Fehr, Bethke's conversion giving the Huskies a quick 7-0 lead.

Chino had some trouble getting its' offense untracked, but got a break of its own when Scott Richartz recovered a Huskie fumble on the Huskie 16 on the last play of the 1st quarter.

A running play lost a yard for the Cowboys, but on the next play quarterback Belmudes found running back Rick Riedel in the open and hit him for a 17-yard TD. Stan Surina's PAT attempt was wide, but Chino's defense held and the Cowboys went into the locker room down by a slim 7-6 margin.

Both defensive units played tough in the third quarter, South Hills losing its only scoring chance when Mark Roberts of the Cowboys recovered a Huskie miscue after South Hills had penetrated inside the Chino 20-yard line.

South Hills cashed in two big fourth-down penalty calls against Chino to finally break open the defensive struggle in the final quarter. After it looked like the spirited Cowboy defense has stopped the Huskies on the 40, a roughing the punter infraction gave South Hills new life on the Cowboy 25.

Once again the Chino defense stiffened, but on fourth down a pass interference call gave the Huskies the ball first and goal at the three. From there quarterback Bethke punched it across in two tries, the missed PAT leaving the court at 13-6.

Huskie John Bates closed out any hopes of a Cowboy comeback with his twisting 85-yard punt return for a TD late in the last quarter. Bethke and receiver Fehr teamed up for a two point conversion on a pass play to close out the scoring for the evening at 21-6.

Glendora nips Upland in final 21 seconds

"We beat ouselves with penalties," said Upland coach Bob Holycross after the Highlanders had dropped a close 21-14 decision to Glendora Friday night.

Glendora's Tom Reck scored on a 21-yard pass from quarterback Tim Hopkins with 21 seconds left in the game to spoil Upland's 1973 grid debut.

The Highlanders jumped off to a 14-0 first period lead on touchdown runs of one and two yards by Jim Christensen and Mark White, respectively. Dean Kawasaki added the extra points.

Upland was still holding its 14-point advantage when Glendora erupted for a pair of scores in the third stanza.

Halfback Joe Baldwin tallied on a 44 yard run and Reck and another six-pointer on a 52 yard pass from Hopkins. Jim McCadden added the PAT's to knot the game at 14-all late in the third period.

Chaffey High started the campaign on a bright note with a 15-14 win over Anaheim at Graber Field Friday night.

The Tigers were the recipients of a safety with 4:17 left in the game in what turned out to be the margin of victory.

Christensen, in completing five of 13 passes for 91-yards, connected on six-pointers to Don Warren (2 yards), Ron Schweinsberg (13 yards) and Marcus Monson (3 yards).

Don Hall led Roman rushers in accumlating 110 yards on carries while Christensen added 21 yards on the ground.

Penn State faces former assistant

By United Press International

"George Welsh had as much to do with the success of the Penn State football program as anyone."

The man who made that statement was Joe Paterno, Penn State head coach. He was talking about his longtime assistant who was leaving. And ordinarily, those words probably would make George Welsh feel a great sense of pride— except that this weekend he may have to eat his old boss' praise.

Welsh, you see, left Penn State last spring to return to the Naval Academy where he still ranks as one of the greatest players in Annapolis history. And last week, as his Middies were opening up his initial season as head coach with a 37-8 whipping of VMI, it almost seemed like 1955 again— the year that quarterback Welsh directed Navy to a 6-2-1 record and a 21-0 win over Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl.

Unfortunately, however, VMI isn't Mississippi and 1973 isn't 1955. And Penn State is coming to Annapolis this weekend just in time to show Welsh how much he did for Paterno's program at University Park. The oddsmakers like Penn State by three touchdowns.

Elsewhere around the country, top ranked Southern California is a 24-point pick over Georgia Tech, No. 2 Nebraska is favored by 21 over 16th-ranked North Carolina State in an interesting inter-conference matchup, No. 4 Alabama is a 24-point choice over Kentucky, No. 6 Michigan is rated 21 over Stanford, No. 9 LSU is listed 17 over Texas A&M and No. 10 Tennessee is likewise rated 17 over Army.

Welsh, who served as Paterno's backfield coach at Penn State for six years and had a hand in developing the likes of ex-Nittany Lion standouts as Franco Harris, Lydell Mitchell, John Hufnagel and Charlie Pittman, is well-acquainted with Paterno's latest edition which opened up last week by sacking Stanford 20-6 on the west coast.

Of particular concern to Welsh will be fullback John Cappelletti, who scored two touchdowns against Stanford and is expected to receive a lot of attention from the All America selectors this year.

Welsh has a back to matcm Cappelletti though. That would be Cleveland Cooper, the 5-foot10 speedsters who broke all of Joe Bellino's one-year Academy rushing marks last season. Cooper ran for 172 yards against VMI and scored two touchdowns to earn a place on UPI's backfield of the week.

Sadly, Welsh does not have a quarterback of the calibre of George Welsh. Fred Stuvek, the first string signal caller for Navy for two years, is still out with an ankle injury, leaving the job to Al Glenny, who performed better than adequately against VMI while Cooper was running wild.

No doubt, should Penn State's always-stingy defense led by linebacker John Skorupan (who scored the final TD against Stanford with a 32-yard interception) begin to wear down the Middies along about midafternoon as the oddsmakers predict, Welsh will indeed remember one particular day in that 1955 season. That was Oct. 15 and Navy beat Penn State 34-14 as Welsh passed for 285 yards, completing 15 of 20 attempts.

Hand wins for Angels over Texas

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) California's Rich Hand allowed his former Texas teammates just four hits in seven inning Friday and got relief help from Aurelio Monteagudo to hand the Rangers their 100th defeat of the season, 6-1.

Hand, traded to California in May, got two run-scoring doubles by Bob Oliver in pushing his season's record to 6-6. Hand allowed Ranger runners no farther than second base through seven innings but was hited in the eighth when Alex Johnson and Bill Sudakis got back-to-back hits. Johnson scored on Monteagudo's wild pitch after the reliever had gotten the first two outs.

Ironically, opposing pitcher Dave Clyde pitched the farthest he had all season but lost for the first time to the Angels who he had beaten twice. He was pulled with two out in the ninth inning after Oliver's second double and had his record drop to 4-7.

California backed Hand with three runs in the first three innings and came back for three more in the ninth. Second baseman Bill Parker rapped a run-scoring double in the second, and Oliver doubled in another in the third after Frank Robinson's fielder's choice drove home Mickey Rivers.

Eagle in Flight snaps loss skein, wins Brummel Stakes

POMONA — Sledge Stable's Eagle In Flight, four-to-five in the wagering, ended a long streak of losing favorites by scoring a hard-earned victory in the $11,075 Beau Brummel Stakes Friday.

With jockey Ismael Valenzuela getting his first stakes win ever at the half-mile oval, Eagle In Flight hit the wire a length in front of the speedy Port Of the Sea. Another length back at the wire was Five Crowns. Final time was 1.11 3-5.

Eagle In Flight paid $3.80, $2.80 and $2.20 to give relief to the favorite players who had seen six straight public choices—five of them less than even money—go down to defeat. The favorites in the Appaloosa and quarter horse races also were unsuccessful.

Will the real Cal Poly team show up?

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — "I'm anxious to see which Cal Poly team shows up tonight," said head coach Roy Anderson. "The team that beat Fresno State or the squad that lost to Southern Utah."

Anderson will be attempting to put his team back on the winning track tonight when the Bronco football team opens its home schedule against Sacramento State in a 7:30 p.m. kickoff at Kellogg Field.

After a stunning upset of Fresno State, 17-9, two weeks ago in the season opener, the Broncos suffered a 35-18 loss at Southern Utah State College for a 1-1 record.

Tonight's foe, Sac State, has dropped its first two encounters, 22-0 to Pacific and 17-0 to the University of Nevada at Reno, but the Hornets are still regarded as a strong, aggressive and physical team with a good running game.

The Hornets, of the Far Western Conference, posted a 2-8 mark but were considered to be a hard luck club after narrow losses to Santa Clara, Humboldt, and UC Davis.

"This year should be one of rebuilding," said head coach Ray Clemons who is starting his 13th season at the SS helm.

Among the Hornets' problems is that of finding a passing QB. Senior Mike Teresa is a rabbit runner, but his arm is lacking. He hit only on 33 of 88 passes a year ago and yielded eight interceptions.

Clemons is in need of a passer to take the pressure off his triple option offense. He's got some horses in Joe Perez, 5-9 175, Steve Cobine, 6-3 215, and Teresa.

Defensively the Hornets are in trouble. Despite the presence of All-FWC cornerback Bobbie Jackson, 6-9 210, most of the linebackers have departed along with five deep backs.

Quarterback Jim Zorn has shown the ability to be a capable leader. The southpaw has completed only 17 of 49 aerials, while yelding two interceptions, for 267 yards and four TD's.

He has also run the option well totaling 109 yards on 22 carries for a five-yard average . . . tops on the club.

Cruz has hetted only 89 yards in 23 carries while Robinson has gained only 41 yards on 26 totes. Cruz has also caught three passes or 13 yards and a touchdown, while Robinson has grabbed four for 28 yards.

Ron Tatum leads the receivers with six catches for 136 yards and three scores while Joe Fabian has plucked down four for 90 yards.

Defensive corner Paul Russell may have finally reached his expectant 'star' form. The kick return specialist has totaled 100 yards on six returns and didn't allow a pass reception in his zone in the Southern Utah game.

Zorn is doing better than expected in punting for a 30.7 yard per kick average. Dennis Amador and Lonnie Mahi have one interception each while Tatum leads the Broncs in scoring with 18 points.

Anderson is hoping the kick will be back in the Broncos tonight.

Mounties face tough test

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT Mt. San Antonio is going to find out what it's made of tonight in its home debut against Golden West College of Huntington Beach.

Head coach Mal Eaton knows it, and therefore is taking lightly the first weekly community college grid poll which lists the Mounties No. 5, and GW No. 8.

"One corn stalk doesn't make a corn field," Eaton advised. "We haven't proven anything yet. We'll really find out what kind of team we have against Golden West."

The Mounties are coming off last weekend's 34-0 victory over old rival Citrus. Golden West pulled out a 28-27 win over highly regarded Orange Coast, after spotting the losers a 27 point lead.

In seven previous meetings between the clubs, GW has a 5-1-1 edge, including a 33-21 victory in 1972. Most of the games have been high scoring affairs, with the average point-spread being 38-18.

This year's contest should be no exception. The squads are remarkably similar, and both expect to do big things this year.

MSAC will field approximately the same starting lineup it did last weekend against Citrus. A new guard, Keith Keating, a 6-4, 240 pounder, who prepped at Bishop Amat two years ago and spent a year at Washington State, is expected to see action tonight. Keating was a late arrival and has been working with the team for only about two weeks.

GW has a quarterback who can run and pass in Danny Accamando. He gained only 37 yards on the ground, but they were key yards last week. Through the air the freshman completed 8 of 18 attempts for 196 yards.

Of course, the Mounties have a proven thrower in Steve Myer, a sophomore who led the nation's community college quarterbacks in passing a year ago. Myer passed infrequently, but effectively against Citrus—7 to 12 for 39 yards and two short touchdowns of five and six yards.

Myer is likely to go to the air more this evening if 1972's returns are an indication. Myer, playing in only his second game, completed 22 of 35 passes for 230 yards and a touchdown last year against GW.

But a strong running attack, which the Mounties put together against Citrus, may be the most effective weapon against GW.

The Mounties can match that with sophomore tailback Teddy Farmer (15 carries, 97 yards) and his understudy John Huston (9 carries, 59 yards, 1 TD) operating out of a new I-formation offense that gained 197 yards total on the ground a week ago.

'Free football' opens college football season

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — Today is free football day at the Claremont Colleges.

Both the Claremont-Mudd and Pomona-Pitzer season openers will be open gate affairs with no admission being charged. C-M takes on the University of San Diego at 1:30 p.m. and Pomona-Pitzer hosts Whitman College at 7:30 p.m.

Meanwhile La Verne travels to Whittier for another dual season and conference opener at 7:30 p.m. Azusa Pacific is at home to Occidental at 1:30 p.m. Redlands is at Cal Lutheran to round out the schedule.

The 5-11, 185 Schoenlaub is listed as a probable starter tonight at defensive end against the Sagehens. He said he is not very selfconscious about playing his first collegiate game before hometown fans.

"I'm not worried as much about playing a terrific game as I am about just playing at all," he said. "I want to play as much as I can and help the team to a maximum."

Schoenlaub said that for the Wolfpack last year he "almost never left the field" while playing center, linebacker, and being on the kickoff, punting, point-after-touchdown, and field goal-kicking units.

"I may not be playing as constantly in college as I did in high school," he said. "But I'm helping the team and that's what counts."

Jensen brought some bad news for Sagehen coach Walt Ambord. "One reason I've been looking forward to the trip and start of our season is because we have one of the best football teams at Whitman since I've been here," he said.

But Jensen added quickly, "Pomona always plays tough football, especially early in the season. I can remember when Hastings (Neb.) College traveled to Pomona early in the season. Hastings lost."

This afternoon, John Zinda unveils the 1974 Stags. Billy Nash, who ran for 822 yards last year, leads the ground attack. Sophomore Jaime Opatrny, in his first start, directs the C-M aerial and overall attack.

A year ago USD lost its opening game to Riverside and then rebounded to stun the heavily-favored Stags 14-6. This year the Toreros opened with a 20-16 loss to UCR and again are playing C-M in the second game.

Quarterback Bob Dulich again directs coach Andy Vinci's multiple set offense led by tailbacks Rich Paulson and Sammy Croom. Paulson had a 73-yard touchdown jaunt against Riverside. Croom picked up 30 yards to break the career rushing mark with a total of 1,207 yards.

Play begins tonight in Mission loop

Citrus and Chaffey colleges open Mission Conference play tonight in games against Palomar and Saddleback. The Owls face the Comets at Escondido High, while defending champion Saddleback hosts the Panthers. Both games get underway at 7:30 p.m.

Citrus is coming off last week's 34-0 loss to Mt. San Antonio, while Chaffey was a 31-7 loser to Cerritos.

The Owls got a 94-yard rushing performance from tailback Doug Hopper in the loss to MSAC, but will have to erase turnovers to stay in tonight's game.

Both Saddleback and Palomar were winners in Season openers. Saddleback back topped Cypress, 24-0, and Palomar up-ended Glendale, Ariz. 16-7.

Mountie poloists enjoy 17-5 win

SANTA BARBARA — Mt. San Antonio College's water polo team trimmed Hancock, 17-5, in the first round of the Gaucho Invitational at UC Santa Barbara Friday afternoon.

Ron Strain, Oscar Rodriguez and Bill Carleton scored four goals apiece to lead the Mounties. MSAC plays the UCSB junior varsity at 8:30 a.m. today with the championship game slated at 2 p.m.

Ruth's finale

NEW YORK (UPI) —Babe Ruth hit the final three home runs of his 714-career total in the same game in 1935 while playing for the Boston Braves against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Montclair vs. Alta Loma at Upland, 8 p.m.

No one disputes the Braves' ability to win. Under question is their ability to do it week after week. Alta Loma was brilliant sporadically last season and a more consistent showing this year could result a trip to the CIF playoffs.

Last year's game represented one of three Montclair victories, 13-7, but the Cavaliers hope tonight will be the start of better things. Transfer Ken Green in the backfield supplements an already strong array of Filbert Gonzales, John Surby, and Mike Hartsfield.

Montclair has definitely improved over last season, but then so have the Braves.

Rowland vs. Yucaipa at Nogales, 8 p.m.

The only was the Raiders can go is up following last season's 1-6-2 season.

Coach Gary Rawls is optimistic about Rowland's fortunes for '73 and has a good young crop of gridders to work with. Quarterback Flavio Garcia and tailback David Pearce leading the offense.

Rowland opens its season tonight at Jack Jolley Stadium against a team it tied last year, 7-7.

Other top returnees will be split end Don Pearce, and Lance Little, Tom Chambers and Rich Dubo is on the offensive line.

VCT scores hit with 'Butterflies'

By VONNE ROBERTSON

POMONA — To open its 1973-74 season, Valley Community Theater has chosen an excellent play and presented it superbly with a talented, well-rehearsed cast.

"Butterflies Are Fee" by Leonard Gershe has been produced as a prize-winning motion picture and stage play. It adapts itself especially well to the small community theater with a cast limited to four, and a single set which avoids the often-distracting set shuffling sometimes associated with theater-in-the-round like VCT.

Thurman Brown, a veteran actor, director and producer, directs this play with a skillful blending of humor and sensitivity, never letting either district from the other.

Opening night's performance was flawless. No missed cues or stepped-on lines. It would indicate hours of rehearsal and concentration.

Ed Abry plays Don Baker, a blind young man seeking to break the bounds of a protective mother by moving to his own apartment in New York City. Abry is convincing and expremely skilled in the portrayal of a difficult role. He uses his hands and feet to guide himself about the stage with the blend of grace and awkwardness typical of the sightless.

The role of Jill Tanner, a blond divorcee who lives in the next apartment is played well by Judy Kellem. In the play Jill describes herself as an aspiring actress who "would have gone to UCLA but couldn't find a place to park." She hasn't succeeded at much else in life, either, it appears, until she meets Don.

As Mrs. Baker, Martha Fuller turns in her usual excellent performance. A versatile actress, Mrs. Fuller can always be counted on to do a good job. In this play, the role is well-written, and Martha handles it with sensitivity. The mother is not a witch, but rather a devoted woman with a handicapped child who needs to seek his own life.

Tom Schultz, as Ralph Austin, represents a play director who offers Jill a role in his off-Broadway show. His part is small, but nicely handled.

"Butterflies Are Free" will be presented tonight and on the next few weekends at 8:30. If Valley Community Theater continues the caliber of show it has opened this season with, it should be a highly successful year for the group.

The theater, located at 132 E. Third St., is being renovated with the addition of new sound and lighting equipment. Reservations may be made by calling 622-6954.

Gallery to present 'Cheaper'

ONTARIO — Gallery Theater at C Street and Lemon Avenue will present the comedy, "Cheaper by the Dozen," at 8:30 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays for eight weeks beginning Oct. 5.

Others in the cast are Dave Baker, Larry; Steve Curci, Joe; Lynn Lander, Miss Biell; Kalo Piequet, Mrs. Fitzgerald, and Dwight Larrick, Dr. Burton.

Gallery Theater is currently showing the musical, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," playing at 8:30 Friday and Saturday nights through next weekend. Reservations can be made at 982-5357.

OUT-ON-THE-TOWN

Entertainment

BLONDES PREFERRED — Carol Channing stars in the musical comedy, "Lorelei," opening Oct. 10 at the Shubert Theater in Century City. Jule Styne has written 17 new songs for the show, a remake of the musical, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," in which Miss Channing gained stardom on Broadway.

Seven performances are scheduled featuring top magicians from around the world.

Headlining this 20th edition is the former star of America's first television show about magic, Mark Wilson. He appeared for five years as the star of "The Magic Land of Allakazam," and on many "Magic Circus" specials.

From Holland comes Fred Kaps, considered by magicians to be the slickest sleight-of-hand master. England's contribution to the festival is Jerry Bergman, who delights audiences with his comedy and baffles them with his magic at the same time. Other top magicians will be announced later.

Tickets for "It's Magic" may be obtained from the Wilshirt Ebell box office, all Mutual and Liberty ticket agencies, or by writing "It's Magic," care of The Magic Castle, 7001 Franklin Ave., Hollywood 90028.

Performances are nightly at 8:30 and at 7:30 on Sunday. Matinees on Saturday and Sunday are at 3:00 p.m.

'Mikado' plans move to Ivar

HOLLYWOOD — "The Incommunicado Mikado," Watergate satire based on the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta which had its world premiere recently aboard the Queen Mary at Long Beach, will reopen Oct. 12 at the Ivar Theater.

Masks caricaturing current political personalities are worn by the cast of young Southland singing actors and actresses.

In the spotlight at the Ivar will be Ned Romero as the Mikado; Jack Mette as Jo-Jo, the Lord High Attorney General; Nick Davis, as Sam-Sam, Chairman of a Senate Select Committee; and Darrell Sandeen as Pooh-Bah, Chief of the Domestic Council.

Tickets are available by mail order for opening night and subsequent performances at Blackfriars Productions, 6533 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood 90028, and at Wallich's Music City and all Mutual and Liberty agencies. Ticket and group sales information may be obtained by calling (213) 877-1054.

Lobber vs. Libber

Tennis courts bigtime TV with Billie-Bobby battle

By RICK DU BROW

No matter that the whole shebang was one grand stunt — it was still great show business, a harmless yet enticing entertainment that allowed televiewers to put aside their mundane doings for a while and have some marvelous fun. At the same time, although traditional tennis purists may have been cringing at the atmosphere of the match, the Riggs-King showdown dragged the sport, in one night, out of its essentially country club image and into the domain of popular mass appeal. Without television, that wouldn't have happened.

Just as Riggs' easy victory over Margaret Court really didn't prove much—except that he was, and is, a super hustler —neither did his decisive loss to Mrs. King prove to be of any enormous significance in terms of topflight tennis competition. But the quality of tennis wasn't really the important thing in all the pufféry and nonsense preceding the Thursday match at the Houston Astrodome— after all, in both the Court Riggs and King-Riggs contests you had a 55-year-old man playing women a quarter of a century younger. And there isn't much doubt that Stan Smith could dispatch them all in a day.

No—what was happening amid all the razzmatazz, amid the absurd claims of a "Match of the Century," amid the manipulation of public emotions because of a "Battle Of The Sexes," was that tennis had finally found its key to mass popularity via television—and played the game beautifully. This was Joe Namath making the upstart football league a contender; Bobby Fischer putting chess on page one; Muhammad Ali, then Cassius Clay, getting people interested in boxing even though they weren't interested in boxing.

Riggs was, of course, the key. With a hustler's feel for the right vibrations, he capitalized on the themes of Age vs. Youth, Men vs. Women and Traditional (male superiority) vs. Madern Thinking (women's liberation) —and hit paydirt, touching public chords more profitable than probably even he imagined. He achieved the hustler's dream—building the pot to the point where it was so big that, win or lose, he could cash in very handsomely. And it might be noted that, by doing so, a lot of people, now and in the future, are going to make a lot of money because of him.

That is the bottom line. And if ABC-TV's spot ratings reports Thursday night should stand up, the network—and tennis—will have achieved a rather amazing audience for the once-exclusive sport. And the quality of ABC-TV's coverage would surely be a factor. The network's cameras caught all of the circus atmosphere at the Astrodome preceding the match—the huge (for tennis) crowd, the band playing as if at a football game, the earthy printed signs that one would usually expect to see at a New York Mets' baseball game in Shea Stadium, the show business celebrities with their usual useless chatter. Gorgeous.

Brisk business

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Dennis Piatt made one mistake when he closed his service station in a protest against gasoline price controls—he forgot to lock the pumps.

Four hours went by before police discovered the brisk business going on at the unattended self-service operation.

Rosh Hashanah . . .

By DAVID HENDIN

Celbration of the Jewish New Year or Rosh Hashanah, is a far cry from the celebration that takes place during the final hours of every Dec. 31.

We celebrate the calendar New Year with scores of soon-to-be broken resolutions, parties where booze flows like water from open hydrants (later manifested in thousands of traffic deaths) and the strains of Auld Lang Syne.

It is a time of merriment and mischief, midnight kisses and caviar on saltines.

The holiday of Rosh Hashanah, on the other hand, is one of the holiest days in the year for observant Jews throughout the world. It is a time of prayer and meditation. Services in the temple or synagogue are marked by deep solemnity.

The closest parallel to any music at all is the blowing of the shofar, or ram's horn. Its call is sounded as a summons to the worshippers to look within — to search their consciences and then to come to sincere repentance.

For to Jews of the world, Rosh Hashanah is considered the annual Judgment Day. On this day all men, like sheep before their shepherd, pass in review before the all-seeing eye of God.

This year, the New Year on the Hebrew calendar will be brought in on Wednesday evening. It is the New Year of 5734.

While the Old Testament does not specify that New Year should be celebrated on this day, Jewish tradition holds that this is the day on which God created the world. The Bible states, "In the seventh month, in the first day of the month shall ye have a sabbath, a memorial of blowing of trumpets, an holy convocation."

There has been some change in the exact time of celebration of Rosh Hashanah. In the ancient Israel, during Biblical days, the holiday was celebrated for one day only. But when the Romans put an end to the ancient Jewish State and its inhabitants were scattered across the world, the Talmudic sage, Yohanan ben Zakkai, added a second day.

This was done because of the great time differences throughout the world. He wanted to insure that all Jews would be able to observe together at least one day of this true holy day. Today Reform Jews everywhere, as well as the Jews living in Israel, have returned to the old custom of celebrating only the first day of Rosh Hashanah.

The Jewish New Year is also the first day of the Ten Days of Penitence. Jews believe that on Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement) nine days later, the celestial book of accounts will be closed and judgment reached.

Hence the traditional Rosh Hashanah greetings are exchanged: "Leshanah tobah tikkathebu," — "May you be written down (in the book of life) for a good year!"

It is a heartfelt and healthy greeting, and one that would benefit all of us if it were offered not only among Jews, but among all people of this Earth.

Thoughts

From the living Bible

God formed a man's body from the dust of the ground and breathed into it the breath of life. And man became a living person. Then the Lord God planted a garden in Eden, to the east, and placed in the garden the man he had formed. The Lord God planted all sorts of beautiful trees there in the garden, trees producing the choicest of fruit. At the center of the garden he placed the Tree of Life, and also the Tree of Conscience, giving knowledge of Good and Bad.

Genesis 2:7-9.

He narrowly escaped death in the treacherous rapids of the Congo, which took the life of British explorer Jack Yowell. Seven in seminar end 4-year study

CLAREMONT — Seven students attending seminar for educational assistants at the School of Theology at Claremont completed a four-year course of study for certification as associates in Christian education.

The two-week seminar was directed by R. Harold Hipps, Associate General Secretary, Division of Higher Education and Ministry, United Methodist Church, Nashville, Tennessee and Allen J. Moore, Professor of Religion and Personality, School of Theology at Claremont.

Hipps explains that the course is designed for persons without a graduate theological degree to participate in one seminar a year for four years. Each seminar provides one unit of seminar credit toward the four required for certification as an associate in Christian education.

The four-year-cycle of seminars is designed to cover "Foundations of Christian Education," "Bible," "Theology," "Developing the Educational Ministry of the Congregation." After completing the four-year course of study the student is then certified to work with the educational development of the whole congregation in the local church and direct the church education program.

Traditional family fighting seen for Episcopal parley

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The intramural bloodletting, officially known as the 64th General Convention of the Episcopal Church will take place in Louisville, Ky., Sept. 29 through Oct. 11.

On hand will be about 200 bishops and 896 elected "deputies," half clergy and half laity, representing the 112 Episcopal dioceses of the United States.

About 30,000 other Episcopalians will show up to lobby for pet causes, attend side meetings of women's and mission groups, or simply to watch the action.

The most important business will be transacted away from the convention floor, in smokefilled hotel rooms. It is the choice of a new Presiding Bishop of the church —the American equivalent of England's Archbishop of Canterbury.

A nominating committee headed by Bishop Robert F. Gibson of Virginia will suggest three incumbent bishops as possible successors to the Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, who is retiring after ten stormy years as "P.B."

Hines has been an ardent exponent of church involvement in social problems and the use of church funds for such causes as promoting economic and political power among blacks, Indians, Chicanos and other minorities.

His attitude toward social action has not endeared him to conservatives who will make a mighty effort at Louisville to insure that his successor will be of different kidney. Thus the lines are drawn for a major battle between two equally militant factions which favor and oppose social action.

Unfortunately from the viewpoint of Episcopalians who would like to minimize the tearing and rending, there is no one outstanding bishop whose claim to election as Presiding Bishop is so clear as to make him the obvious choice.

Ambassadors hosted

WALNUT — Members of the On Going Ambassadors for Christ, a youth organization of 30 Lutheran churches, are spending this weekend at Christ the King Lutheran Church.

The young people will participate in Bible study, witnessing and will canvass the community.

The Rev. Ben T. Bauer, pastor, will speak on the topic "Young People Are Priests, Too" Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. worship service.

The annual church picnic will be held at Cortez Park, West Covina, at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

QUITE AN UNDERTAKING — Mrs. Otto Perry of Norwalk, Ohio, is looking for a buyer for this coffin her daughter made in her high school shop class. Mrs. Perry here is trying it on for size.

Californians get cut on income tax

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California income tax payers will be granted a $380 million "discount" on returns filed next April, under a tax rebate plan proposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and accepted by the legislsature.

The same legislation also will cut back the newly increased state sales tax to five cents on the dollar (5½ cents in Bay Area Rapid Transit District counties) effective Oct. 1. The levy will return again to six cents April 1, and 6½ cents in the BART counties.

While the tug-of-war between Reagan and Democrats over how to return an unprecedented $826 million surplus to taxpayers highlighted 1973 fiscal issues, more traditional controversy also swirled around the state budget.

Reagan signed a biggest-in-the-nation state budget totaling $9.4 billion on June 30, a few hours before the spending plan wa sto take effect. But first he voted $80 million from the bill sent to him by the legislature 13 days after the required deadline for enactment.

Assail cuts

Democrats assailed the budget cuts as "cheap hypocrisy" and noted the deepest reductions occurred in the areas of welfare and day care centers for children of low-income working mothers.

The same day he signed the budget bill, Reagan vetoed Democratic sponsored legislation to delay for six months the scheduled July 1 penny sales tax increase. He objected to a feature which would have provided an income tax cut of up to a maximum $200 per couple.

Democrats led by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti rejected a compromise proposed by Reagan. But lawmakers eventually accepted the proposal on Aug. 16.

It provides a onetime income tax reduction ranging from 35 to 20 per cent. It also temporarily cuts the sales tax.

The measure gives a typical family of four earning $15,000 a year a $60 tax cut, the same family earning $25,000 would save $137 while that family earning $50,000 would save $583.

Kill Reagan plan

In another tax matter, the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee killed the legislative version of Reagan's tax ceiling plan.

The legislature also passed a bill (AB6) by Assemblyman Robert C. Cline, R-Canoga Park, giving divorces and widows with children a $14 million a year income tax break.

That measure would affect unmarried heads of households with dependents-such as divorcees, widows and widowers-and would tax them at the same rate as married couples up to an income level of $6,000. Beyond that point, the rate of taxation would approach that of married couples but not to the level of complete conformity.

For example, an unmarried person with a dependent and a taxable income of $8,000 a year now pays $140 a year in state income taxes while the married couple filing a joint return pays $80. Under the bil, the unmarried breadwinner would pay a tax of $95, for a tax cut of $45.

City loses lawsuit over woman's electrocution

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — The city of Bellevue must pay $353,000 to the family of a woman who was electrocuted as she tried to rescue her six-year-old son from an electrified creek.

A jury in Pierce County Superior Court has ordered the sum paid to Robert D. Campbell and his two children.

The suit said that Mrs. Campbell suffered fatal injuries while trying to save her son, Eric, from Kelsey Creek, which runs behind the Campbell home.

Eric recovered from the shock and burns he suffered in the electrically charged creek, but Mrs. Campbell died Aug. 7, 1971.

The electricity came from yard wiring installed by a next door neighbor, George Schafer. The jury said Bellevue city officials were negligent for not ordering the improper wiring removed from the creek as soon as it was discovered.

Schafer and his caretaker, James A. Struebling, were each convicted of manslaughter and given two-year deferred jail sentences in connection with the incident.

The caretaker had inadvertently turned the power on after city officials had ordered it turned off.

Indian kivas

AZTEC, N.M. (UPI) — The New mexico community has 52 Indian kivas or ceremonial lodges, which makes it of real importance to students of Pueblo history.

The group of kivas at Aztec is the largest of all the Southwest Pueblos and shows the influence of both Chaco Canyon and Mesa Verde Pueblos. The ruins were discovered in the late 1700s by Spanish explorers and were probably built before the 1300s.

Environmental measures approved by legislature

By ROBERT E. SWEET

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The legislature passed a score of bills this year to clean up California's environment, ranging from the scenic Sierra timberlands to the smog-ridden Los Angeles basin.

One measure sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan would impose strict new logging standards on the $1 billion-a-year California timber industry to protest forests from massive overcutting.

Passage of the compromise bill by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, culminated an often bitter two-year fight between environmentalists and loggers over regulations for forest practices on 8 million acres of privately owned timberland.

New board

The measure creates a new state Forestry Board dominated by members representing the public. It also provides for specific restocking standards and on-site inspections before, during and after logging operations.

The bulk of antismog legislation passed this year was aimed at the South Coast Air Basin, including a bill to create the state's first mandatory car inspection program for pollution control devices.

If signed by Reagan, the bill by Sen. W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, would establish a pilot program which would expand to cover annual inspection of all vehicles within the six-county basin.

The vehicles' smog control equipment would have to be in top shape before they could qualify for registration.

The legislature also passed a bill by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, to establish a single pollution control district in the Los Angeles smog belt. Currently, smog is handled by six different district agencies which often conflict with one another.

The bill also would shift the cost of fighting smog in the basin from property taxpayers to motorists and to stationary sources of air pollution based on their emissions of pollutants.

A proposed constitutional amendment which cleared the legislature would help reduce automobile pollution by unlocking gas tax funds to construct new rapid transit systems.

$50 million

The legislation by Senate President Pro Tem James R. Mills would divert about $50 million a year in gas taxes, long reserved strictly for highway projects, for use in rapid transit programs. The measure will appear on the June, 1974 ballot.

Another major measure passed by the legislature would create a new statewide commission with broad powers to cite nuclear power plants and ration fuel supplies if a critical energy shortage occurs.

The Energy Resources Development and Conservation Commission also would conduct experiments to enhance the efficiency of electrical products with the aim of reducing California's energy demand.

The measure, coauthored by Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, and Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, is supported by the Sierra Club and strongly opposed by utility companies and the General Electric Co.

Under a bill by Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park, petroleum companies would be required to screen oil sumps to protect birds which now die in uncovered oil sumps. The measure is awaiting Reagan's signature.

Other bills

Other environmental bills which cleared the legislature would:

—Regulate commercial fishing of herring in Tomales and San Francisco Bay (Sen. Peter Behr, R-Tiburon).

—Provide $10 million for the state to acquire land around Lake Tahoe to prevent overdevelopment in the region. (Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento).

— Declare a five-year moratorium on dam construction on sections of the south and middle forks of the Kings River. (Sen. George N. Zenovich, D-Fresno).

Many conservation measures failed and will reappear before lawmakers when they reconvene in January for the second half of their two-year session.

Major unfinished business includes bills that would:

—Impose stiff fines on pollution-belching industries in the South Coast Air Basin. (Moretti).

—Appropriate $155 million to protect the environment, including fish and wildlife habitats. (Mills).

Old West artifacts auctioned

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — More than 1,000 items were sold during a three-day auction of Old West artifacts at the Sotheby Parke Bernet galleries with some items going for as much as 10 times the amount gallery experts had predicted.

The auction which ended Wednesday grossed $523,650 with a six-shooter Wyatt Earp supposedly wore while tracking outlaw Curly Bill going for $20,000.

"They went crazy. It was unbelievable," said Peter McCoy, president of the galleries.

The hottest items, aside from guns and knives, were Indian artifacts, and virtually anything with "Wells Fargo," "Pony Express" or other western sounding names appearing on them.

Life and art inseparable,

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN
P-B Staff Writer

Life and art are inseparable, according to pretty Bernadette Gravette, French-Canadian artist whose life is enriched by her chubby 1-year-old son, Lindsay, and whose art has been recognized in the current show of the Traditional Artists of Southrn California, recently on display in the Fine Arts Gallery of the National Orange Show fairgrounds in San Bernardino.

"Your life, family and general happiness have a lot to do with your feeling for art," she said in a recent interview in her handsome home in Pomona's Ganesha Hills.

"I don't think you can keep from reflecting your life in your work. There's a lot of you in what you do. If I were unhappy, I don't think I could paint or draw. My life gives me a reason for doing what I'm doing."

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nye, also of Pomona, she came to the United States at the age of 9, attended St. Joseph's Elementary School in Pomona and Ramona Convent in Alhambra. She had been painting and drawing all her young life, but her first direction and real interest in art came from Sister Mary Martha at the convent. Since that time she has hardly had a paint brush or charcoal pencil out of her hand.

She continued her art work while attending evening school at Mt. San Antonio College and working as receptionist for the California Credit Union League. She dropped it briefly during a year as stewardess on PSA, and resumed it when she became executive secretary of the Claremont Chamber of Commerce.

Four years ago she married Larry Gravette, personnel director of Tex-Fi West, and with the advent of young Lindsay she became, in her words, "full-time mother and part-time artist." Now she works in a large, walk-in closet when the baby is napping, and in the evenings and on weekends.

Mrs. Gravette works in oils, pastel, charcoal and some acrylic, plus collage. Her pieces are largely still lifes, animals and children. Many of her works are done from photographs she has taken or cut from magazines. All of her work is detailed, realistic and representational.

"I don't understand modern—impressionistic—art," she admitted. "I'm primarily interested in representational works. Impressionistic, abstaract artists are saying something, but it's not for me. I like a painting that says something clearly so I don't have to study to find its meaning."

What lure does art have for a contented housewife?

"Everything!" said Mrs. Gravette, with a smile. "I find it very inspiring. I don't know if it's because I'm involved in it personally, but anyone who puts something on canvas or paper has to come away inspired."

The creation of art is both challenging and rewarding, she said.

"It's such a challenge," the artist said. "You have something on your mind and you just can't let it go. I turn to my art work because I have a feeling to do it, a yearning. It's not a substitute for anything."

Mrs. Gravette plays the piano, sings, loves to cook ("I'm a very good cook—we all love to eat!") and tends a menagerie of a dog, three cats and three goldfish ("I love animals—the more the merrier") but art is her consuming passion.

"It's with you all the time," she said. "Taking a drive, you are looking at colors, studying dimensions, always on the lookout for beauty. Everything has beauty—it only needs the recognition. To feel warm about a scene, to create that feeling and to have others feel the same way from your work is very rewarding."

The diminutive (5-2) blonde painter looked over a number of art clubs before applying for admittance to Traditional Artists. She submitted four paintings to a board of judges and was granted membership. In the six montly competitions since then, she has been judged Artist of the Month four times. To have one of her works, a soft pastel of a decanter, wine glass, grapes and old books titled "The Values of Age," accepted for the San Bernardino showing was a thrill. Only 100 of some 400 works sumbitted were chosen for the show.

"I'm going on with my work," Mrs. Gravette said with determination. "I'm very encouraged by the reception of my paintings. Next year I want to win something. Some day I want to enter big shows and win prizes."

Talent, perception, sensitivity and dedication add up to very good chances for just that sort of recognition for the young artist who can't extricate art from life.

Caribbean island touch of France

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

FORT-DE-FRANCE, Martinique (UPI) — It's not true that when you've seen one Caribbean island you've seen them all.

There are differences.

Take Martinique. This exotic island in the sun is as French as it could possibly be while separated by more than 4,000 miles from its mother country on the European continent.

There's good reason. The French tricolor has flown over the island —which was discovered in 1502 by Columbus — since 1635 except for three brief periods when it was ruled by Britain.

French is the official language although English is spoken in tourist spots and the islanders converse mainly in a Creole patois. The famed haute cuisine of France shares honors with delectable island dishes and modern miniskirts are as common as the traditional ankle-length petticoated gowns.

Most of the islanders are descended from French settlers, African slaves and East Indians brought in as indentured servants by plantation owners when slavery was abolished in the 1840s.

Empress Josephine, wife of Napolean I, was born in Martinique and the women of the island still have a reputation for beauty.

I made my first visit in about five years to Martinique during the maiden Caribbean cruise of the Norwegian America Line's supurb new liner M-S Vistafjord with other American travel writers and guests.

A late starter in the tourist competition, Martinique is making gains. New hotels, resorts and other facilities have been constructed to accommodate the increasing flow of visitors by air and sea.

There now are more than 30 hotels, inns and guest houses of various categories which can accommodate about 2,000 overnight guests. They include the 140-room Martinique Hilton, the 99-room Bakoua Beach and smaller hotels such as Le Lido, Anse Mitan and Calalou.

Martinique is the site also of two resort villages different in ambience from each other: the 90-room family-style Latitude-Martinique and the Club Mediterranean's Buccaneer's Club for swingers which can accommodate 600 persons.

We stopped at Bakoua Beach for a cold drink (it is reputed to have the finest dining on the island) and lunches at the Buccaneer's Club (an excellent buffet with all the wine you can drink) during a bus tour of the southern part of Martinique.

The tour also included a visit to the birthplace of Josephine at Trois-Islets across the bay from Port-de-France. There's a ferry service. Only ruins of the de la Paglue family home remain but there is a small interesting museum which houses many mementos — including love letters, paintings, her childhood bed and a death mask of Napoleon.

Lack of time — the women wanted to shop — ruled out a revisit to St. Pierre, the "Pompeii of the New World," about 25 miles north of here. It was the thriving capital of the island until Sunday, May 8, 1902 when Mt. Pelee erupted without warning. The entire city was destroyed and about 30,000 persons killed in three minutes.

A new city has risen on the ruins of the old but there's a museum which displays remnants of the day of death and destruction.

The shops and boutiques in Fort-de-France offer wide selections of the finest perfumes, crystal, china, wines, and other luxury goods from France and other countries.

Scientist feels A-blasts could free Colorado oil

CHICAGO (UPI) —Dr. Fred Holzer, director of a nuclear energy program in Livermore, Calif., told a regional energy conference that there is a "very exciting possibility" that nuclear explosions can be used to free vast amounts of oil from the underground rocks of western Colorado.

"It is really a very exciting possibility," Holzer said. "It seems to me at least that methods of processing in the ground have an awfully lot of promise."

Holzer said there is twice as much oil in a 25-mile area of Colorado as there is in the entire Middle East.

He said several plans have been tried to free the oil, but proved too expensive since the rocks had to be brought to the surface, heated, and the ground leveled again.

Using nuclear explosions, Holzer said, it is possible that the rock could be reduced to rubble while still underground. Fire could then be injected into the earth to melt the rocks, and the oil would be forced out.

He said the oil is located between 500 and 2,500 feet underground in an area 50 miles north of Grand Junction, Colo.

Holzer is director of a program called "Plowshares," which is funded by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Films have been made in almost every state and in 40 foreign countries. Subjects have included the lynx, aardvark, ocelot and many other hard-to-photograph animals. Each new story is seen by some 40 million people!

If you asked 40 million people about us, most would say they never heard of us! But around these parts, the people who deal with us are glad of it. Rush time again at Claremont Colleges

CLAREMONT — The pace of activity is building up as the six Claremont Colleges gear up to welcome some 5,000 students next week for the start of another fall semester.

To the steady drone of motorized lawnmowers and the pizzicato snippings of hedge trimmers across the colleges' 457 acres, the small groups of the 500-member faculty are in evidence as they check their offices, straighten out their class schedules and make sure the books they've ordered are on hand in the Huntley Bookstore.

The bookstore itself looks deceptively quiet. But preparations for next week have been under way since the start of summer, when orders went out for some 80,000 textbooks, most of which will be sold within the first 10 days of school by the regular staff of 12 salespeople and another dozen temporary workers.

The store's six cash registers will be jingling throughout the initial rush's 12-hour daily operation schedule. In addition to the thousands of books, student consumers are expected to clear away $10,000 of paper alone, along with numberless pens, pencils, notebooks, art supplies and just about everything else they might need in the way of class and personal supplies.

Across the street, Honnold Library's 50 regular staff members and 35 part-time student workers (who will increase to 120 by next week) have been dusting off their 900,000-volume collection and refreshing their memories on where everything is, so they can conduct twice-daily tours during the next two weeks for newcomers.

Just behind the bookstore, the colleges' 11-man security force is readying for the task of registering nearly 2,000 cars and probably as many bicycles during the first five days of school. Many of the officers will be putting in a lot of overtime as this is the first year bicycle registration is being required.

Other behind-the-scenes workers, like the 126 men who make up the physical plant crew, are busy with last-minute housekeeping details. Twenty-five groundsman are patroling the campuses — manicuring lawns and sprucing up the foliage, while 55 custodians tidy up the residence halls, polishing floors, cleaning windows and installing light bulbs.

Dorm supervisors have distributed the last of the mountain of linen that is required to furnish each room. At Pomona College, for example, washday for some 1,080 on-campus students means 4,600 sheets, 6,900 towels and 2,300 pillow cases.

Meanwhile, 46 plumbers, carpenters, electricians, painters and other tradesmen are finishing up renovation projects, refurbishing offices and classrooms, making keys and renovating athletic facilities.

A thousand or so administrative staffers are preparing to conduct class registration for freshmen on Monday and upperclassmen on Thursday. The 14 regular telephone operators and four part-timers are coping with the ever-increasing number of calls. Even the auditorium staff is busy interviewing students for stage crew, box office and 40 usher jobs in Bridges Auditorium and Garrison Theater for the year's seriees of concerts, plays, lectures, movies and other events.

The colleges' 100 food service employes are opening up 10 kitchens, 17 dining halls and five snack bars to handle some 62,000 meals a week, a million and a half during the entire year. Nearly 600 students also will be supplementing their incomes through some type of food service work.

Even as the physical facilities are being readied, plans are moving forward on a series of welcoming activities at each of the six campuses. They include orientation lectures, faculty meetings, tours and open house, dinners, parties and dances.

Preparations also extend to the community. The Claremont Chamber of Commerce will be doing its share with "Operation Brown Bag." Some 2,500 brown bags filled with gift coupons, small gift items, informational material and discount offers from 35 participating merchants will be distributed to new students at the time they register for classes. A downtown street dance is also planned next Saturday night.

A good deal of time, effort and people have gone into the preparations for the coming term. And if new students find nothing else, they'll at least find that the colleges' are ready to launch them on their educational careers.

ON THE COVER

Orlando's is tradition

POMONA — Orlando's has been helping Pomona Valley residents get married, as well as helping them celebrate a variety of other special occasions, for many years with its banquet facilities and services.

According to Ruth Stromquist, Orlando's banquet hostess, family members through different generations have set a tradition of celebrating their special occasions at Orlando's. These events include wedding receptions, anniversaries and Bar Mitzvahs.

Along with the family celebrations, Orlando's banquet facilities are used extensively by major industrial plants, service organizations, clubs and political groups for luncheon and dinner meetings, cocktail parties and hors d'oeuvre parties. If more than 25 people are served during an event there is no charge for the use of the facilities.

Various organizations hold regular monthly meetings at the restaurant which offers a public address system, piano, stage, bar facilities, dance floor and an equipped dressing room for use during fashion shows. Recently redecorated with mural wallpaper, modern lights and new drapes, three banquet rooms are able to serve a maximum of 300 people.

Banquet facilities are available Sunday through Friday for private parties. A dinner dance open to the public is featured in the banquet area on Saturday nights with entertainment by Lou Dokken.

Banquets at Orlando's, which begin at $2.85 for luncheons and $3 for dinner, feature the same entrees available in the restaurant's main dining room and the same quantity of food, according to Mrs. Stromquist. Service, also, is the same, even down to salad dressing set on the table for individual use.

Entrees at both lunch and dinner are served with a tossed green salad with a choice of roquefort, wine vinegar and oil or French dressing, a vegetable, baked potato, hot cheese bread, dessert and coffee or tea.

"We get a lot of compliments on our banquets," stated Mrs. Stromquist, "and not just on the food, but on the service, too. Many of our customers comment on our waitress' courtesy and pleasant attitudes."

The banquet hostess, who has been involved with Orlando's banquets for 10 years, stated that only the finest china, linens and glassware are used at Orlando's, and added that the food "is always hot when served."

"One organization which had been meeting each month at Orlando's left to go to another local restaurant. I knew they would come back, and within a few months they were meeting at Orlando's again," Mrs. Stromquist said.

Mrs. Loretta Rudnick, wife of the Orlando's owner, Bill Rudnick, also works scheduling the banquets. Rudnick has owned and managed the restaurant since October 1972.

Orlando's, at 1700 W. Holt Ave., is open seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. The restaurant's dinner menu features such meals as prime rib, lobster tails, beef rolls in burgundy wine sauce, and steaks as well as continental foods.

Loretta Rudnick, an owner of Orlando's at 1700 W. Holt Ave., welcomes diners to the restaurant. Mrs. Rudnick also assists in coordinating banquet events.

Symbolic story calls for restructuring of society

By LANGE WINCKLER

WORLD WITHOUT END, AMEN, by Jimmy Breslin, The Viking Press, $6.95

The first part of the title, the part Breslin didn't use, is a short prayer: Glory be to the Father, the Son, and Holy Spirit, as it was in the beginning, is now, and will be forever, world without end, amen. Breslin's use of the phrase is an anti-prayer, an abjuration.

If the Catholic Church continued use of its list of forbidden books, the Index, Breslin's yarn would join it with Descartes. This is a bittersweet tale of paradise lost, a story of an Irish Catholic New York cop who takes a trip to find his vaguely-remembered father and maybe find salvation. For Dermot Davey, there is no salvation.

Here is a book of two parts, the first about Dermot's shoddy career, his predestined decline to alcoholism and malformed principles. In the first part we see slumlands in the borough of Queens laid open in the eyes of a cop who characterizes everyone in the worst possible terms he can imagine: Dope-using longhairs, "nigger" women, commies, rapists, and foul-intentioned liberals. Only his corner of the world is decent—but he himself is aware of that fallacious feeling.

In the other part, we are with Dermot Davey on an Irish excursion. It is more like Dante's Inferno, every block of the Ulster cities a further circle in hell. Dermot, like Dante on his figurative tour, was guided by the only bright light in the story, a Communist-Socialist-Irish nationalist named Diedre. And, like Dante's guide, she is doomed.

This is a book to inflame passions. Each experience Dermot has is a foil to carry Breslin's message of injustice. Anyone who has strong opinions — in either direction — about racial tensions, minority oppression, police abuse of power, economic injustices, just about any of the powerful issues of this time, will find a source of anger in these pages.

There is a direct conclusion here, too. No improvement in the general condition of men in either America or Ireland will ever happen without massive social restructuring. Anyone who can read these pages and not agree, after the picture has been so well-painted, must be insensitive, according to Breslin's characters.

Well-crafted, the book pulls no punches. Breslin issues a warning partway through when he has a small boy explain, "All the stories is wrong . . . You want to read things you know is true . . .The way all the picture shows should end, the people should be all together in the house ready to live happy forever and then they should go to sleep and then the house should catch fire.

"And then all the people is burned alive."

Well, everybody burns alive. Some, however, are not aware of it, such as Dermot's companion on the force, Johno. Johno stays the same, drunk and miserable, all the way through, a figure Breslin uses to characterize those who cannot relate to the brutality in his text.

Throughout the second half of the book, Breslin's style becomes confusing. Conversations are recorded in snatches, without real attachments, to make them whole. scenes are those of the stranger, signs jumping out, smells "attacking like an opponent."

This is a special part of the author's craftsmanship, conveying very well the impact of new people, events, and places on a stranger. Anyone who has traveled much can remember that same strangeness, that out-of-place sensation.

Breslin has made an excellent start as a serious novelist with this book. He comes off the comedy circuit well-tuned for probing, bitter commentary, almost as if he were a comic on a dark night.

History of chess offered by book

By MURRAY PROJECTOR

"The World Chess Championship" is a new history of the championship itself, of the games played in championship matches, and of the players themselves.

World champions and challengers go back over 100 years. Their common denominator for their personalities.

Some of these players have been many sided, others with only their chess skill to distinguish them from mortals. Some needed prize money, but none became chess professionals because of the money in it.

The author quotes William Steinitz, when asked why he played tournament chess at an advanced age and after a lifetime of glory. "The glory I can spare, but I need the prize money."

Then there is the anecdote about Bobby Fischer, who was offered $100,000 to advertise a hair lotion. He rejected the offer with the unanswerable argument: "I cannot do it. After all, I never use it."

These men do not fritter away their lives making money. All of them—including linguists, physicians, lawyers, engineers, alcoholics, journalists, mathematicians—they are immortalized because of their recorded chess games.

Horowitz includes over a hundred of these games, the move-by-move record that permits leisurely studying of brilliancies (and blunders) played under competitive time pressure.

This is championship chess as it is actually played "by two fallible human beings with imperfect understanding and strictly limited time at their disposal."

The World Chess Championship also explains the procedures now used for selecting challengers for the world title. Fortunately, it is not like it used to be.

Originally the world titleholders "owned" the title and chose the challengers. The best were often avoided, the second best often chosen. It was an unsatisfactory arrangement, much like the present arrangement with professional boxing.

Since 1950, however, the International Chess Federation has been in charge. There is a three-year tournament schedule for producing the logical challenger. Bobby Fischer went through this schedule before meeting and defeating Boris Spassky in 1972.

The tournament grind for selecting Fischer's 1975 opponent is well under way. By the end of 1973 the field will be reduced to eight, and by 1974 reduced to one. Then, in 1975 comes the second match of the century.

The World Chess Championship is Horowitz's posthumous publication, after a lifetime devoted to the cause of chess, as a player, columnist and author.

This final work has multiple appeal; it may be enjoyed for its entertaining biography, its brilliant chess games, or its chess history.

Aerial ripoff charged by ex-flying ace

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Dream of Eagles turned out to be somewhat of a flying nightmare for World War I flying ace Ralph A. O'Neill.

His object was to start the world's first intercontinental passenger airline — from New York to Buenos Aires in flying boats. But the airline, established finally after overcoming tremendous odds, was taken awsy from him by Pan American.

"A Dream of Eagles" is the title of O'Neill's book about this adventure, published recently by San Francisco Book Company and Houghton Mifflin Company $8.95.

Any of the three titles O'Neill first had for the book would have told the story better to those who have not opened the book. His first title was "The Shotgun Wedding," his second "Rape Of an Airline" and his third "The Hijacked Airline."

The author's airline was called the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires Line and the

Malamud stories take in wide area

By SAMUEL I. BELLMAN

REMBRANDT'S HAT. By Bernard Malamud. Farrar, Straus, Giroux. $6.95.

It has been many years now since Bernard Malamud burst on the literary scene with his novel about a poor little New York storekeeper, "The Asstantant," and his collection of short stories about poor, downtrodden New York ghetto Jews, "The Magic Barrel."

Earlier he had done a baseball novel—The Natural—but, that one lacked a vital spark and was merely clever, allegorical tentative

Now, many books and prizes later, Malamud has produced another story collection, eight little tales that have much in common with his earlier New York pieces. But they reveal Malamud himseelf to be locked into his own tight little unhappy neighborhood, unable or unwilling (like so many of his characters) to break out into the sunlight of a larger, better world.

Probably the best story in the group is "Man in the Drawer," a sad account of a Jewish taxi-driver in Moscow who attaches himself to an American tourist—someone very much like Malamud himself.

Playing on the American's sympathies as a Jew and a writer, the taxi driver seeks his help in smuggling his unpublishable stories (they do not adhere to Soviet realism as the Party defines it) out of Russia and gettiing them printed in the West.

After many misadventures and impasses the American writer does smuggle them out of Moscow. The story ends with a summary of several of those offensive or at least officially unacceptable fictions, one of them an autobiographical account of the taxi driver's life, ending with his burning the unprintable writings, which to him means burning his integrity, talent, and heritage.

Quite possibly this typical Malamud story is an allegory of the difficulty of publishing in the U. S. A., where commercial realism, favoritism, and the vagaries of the Power Establishment determine who shall be "made" as a writer and who shall remain a nobody. Like Chekhov, Malamud specializes in lonely, solitary figures facing a bleak future. Like Dostoevsky, he has an affinity for the insulted and injured. Like Kafka, he may venture into the grotesque, writing about mythical monstrosities caught up in nightmarish situations.

The title story, "Rembrandt's Hat," is a little vignette about two neurotics, an art historian and a sculptor, who have a bitter quarrel over nothing very measurable.

Another tale is about a man whose father is dying and who lets himself get conned into paying a fortune so a rabbi can make a magic crown that will save the old man's life.

Recalling Malamud's early story, "The Magic Barrel," this one also leaves the reader wondering about the probity of the holy man who behaves so oddly and about the sanity of the normal character who gets taken so outrageously. And, like "The Magic Barrel," "The Silver Crown" seems a Malamudian concoction from bits and pieces of cabalistic lore, Talmudic footnotes, and Old Country tales his elders handed down to him.

Suggested by a line from T. S. Eliot (quoted as an epigraph to the volume of stories). "Talking Horse" is about a poor oppressed man named Abramowitz who finds himself imprisoned in a horse

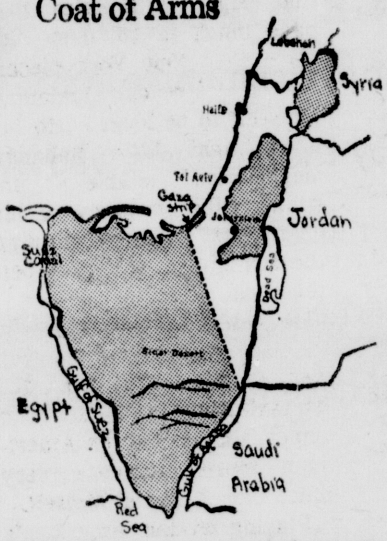
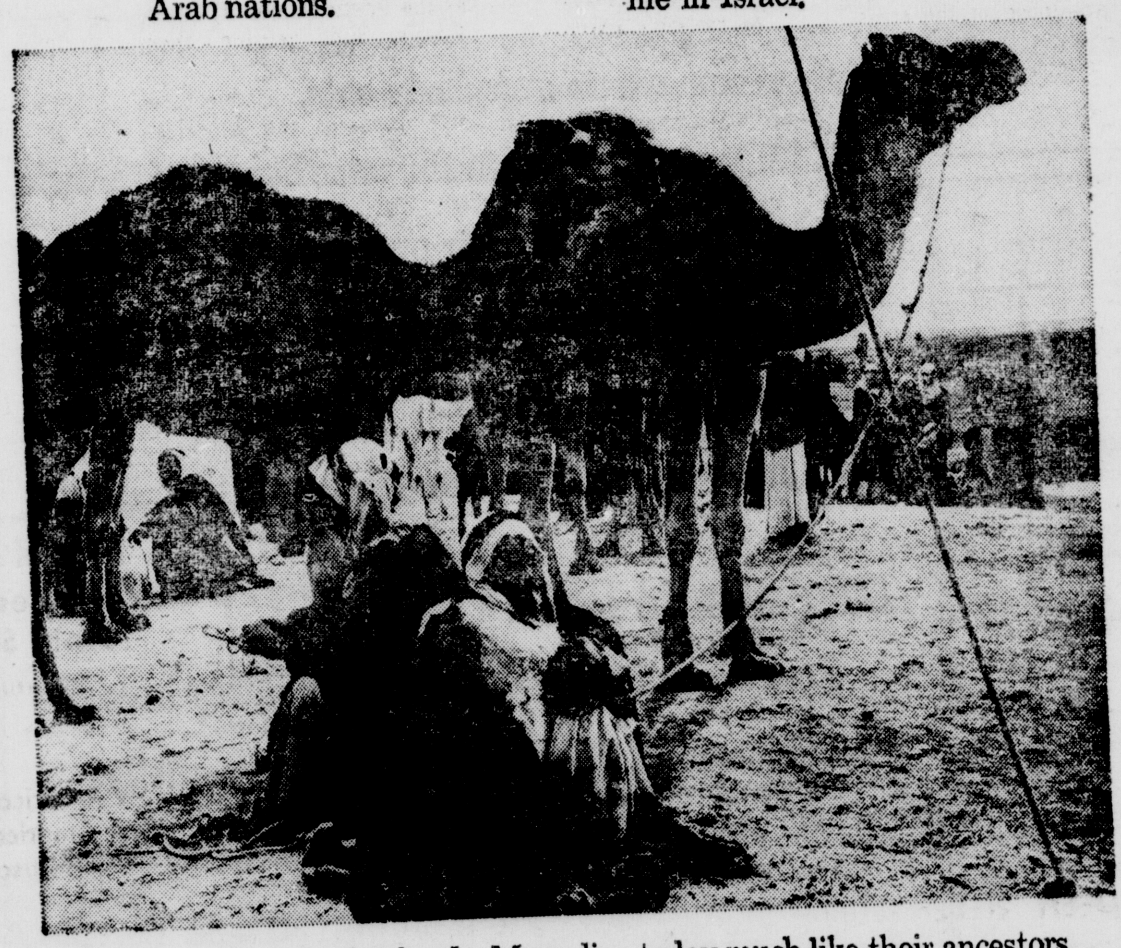
Israel Celebrates Its 25th Birthday

The Israeli flag and Coat of Arms



The shaded part of the map above shows the territory that Israel occupied as a result of her wars with the Arab nations.

All unmarried girls of the age of 18 or older must serve in the armed forces. The Arab-Israeli conflict is an important part of everyday life in Israel.



The Bedouins are shepherds. Many live today much like their ancestors did back in the days of the Bible. They live in the desert raising sheep, camels and goats.

It has been said that the Israelis built their country with a plow in one hand and a gun in the other.

Israel declared itself an independent nation in 1948, 25 years ago. Its founding was the result of a long struggle for members of what was called the "Zionist Movement." Zionists wanted to set up a national homeland for the Jews.

Israel was created out of the country that had been called Palestine. The Arab nations did not like this. They felt that Palestine was Arab land.

The Israelis have had to fight three wars in order to save their country from Arab attack. The Arab-Israeli conflict is a part of everyday life. All men over the age of 18 must serve in the armed forces. The country must be able to defend itself at a moments notice.

The progress that the Israelis have made has been remarkable. The problems of handling many immigrants with different backgrounds is a big one. The Jewish population of Israel has grown from 760,000 in 1948 to 2,384,000 in 1968.

Today, Arabs account for about 10 per cent of the Israeli population. Most of them are farmers. They have equal rights with Jews, but they cannot serve in the armed forces. There are some Arabs who are members of the Israeli parliament.

When the State of Israel was founded in 1948, it was an agricultural, underdeveloped country where most of the manufactured products were made for local sale. Today, the country has many new factories that produce goods for export to other countries.

The Israelis have made great progress in turning dry desert land into cropland. By using advanced methods of farming, they have tripled the amount of cropland.

Jews from all over the world have contributed money to help make many of these improvements possible.

According to Prime Minister Golda Meir, the country has been concerned with four main efforts: to defend itself and survive as a nation; to become a homeland for Jews from all over the world; to develop a society that preserves the ancient Jewish values; and to develop resources to give the people a better quality of life.

Israel has come a long way in 25 years. It is hoped that the future will bring peace to the troubled area.

Would you like to live on a kibbutz?

A kibbutz is a type of community in Israel where everything is owned by the members who live there. Cows, orchards, farm machinery, houses and everything else is jointly owned. You cannot just go and live on a kibbutz. You have to be asked to become a member.

All members must work. They do not get salaries, but receive a place to live, clothing, medical attention and schooling for their children. There is one dining room where everybody eats.

Children do not live in the same houses with their parents. They live in their own part of the kibbutz. They spend the Sabbath and a few hours every day with their parents. As the children grow up, they begin to do more and more work around the kibbutz.

Education in Israel

Free education is offered to all children from the ages of five to 15. There are religious and nonreligious schools. Arab children can go to nonreligious Jewish schools or they can go to their own schools. Parents make the choice. Arabs and Jews alike must pay low tuition fees to go to high school.

Super Sport: Johnny Miller

Johnny Miller isn't a magician, but he played golf like one in the 1973 U.S. Open. His 63 on the last day of the tournament was regarded by some experts as the greatest round of golf ever played. Naturally, Johnny won the tournament and $35,000. It was his first major championship in four years as a professional. Johnny is a lean, blonde-haired, 26-year old who always attracts a large gallery of female fans. Miller grew up in California and earned money as a caddy. Later, he became one of the best teenage golfers around. Now he's one of the brightest young stars on the pro tour.

Claremont opens

New faces, campus changes seen as summer ends, school starts

By DAVE NIMMONS
Claremont Reporter

In spite of fervent prayer on the part of both students and faculty it has once again come to pass. School.

As of 8 a.m. Sept. 11, summer officially ended for those here at Claremont High!

As always, confusion reigns, and it's taking a while for everything to get organized. Student comment on our return ranged from: "It's so nice to be back!!" to: "AAAAAAAUUUGH!!".

Welcoming us back this year are many changes, the most notable being newly-landscaped areas. Over the summer, bushes, trees, flowers, and planting boxes magically appeared in various places around the campus.

The project, the brainchild of two CHS science teachers, John Lillie and James Trautner, is part of an effort to beautify the campus and create an atmosphere to facilitate learning.

The idea began with $200 earmarked for campus "beautification" left in last year's senior gift. This money was used to purchase plants from local nurseries. Forty-two students then spent a good part of the summer digging, raking, planting, and watering, with some help from teachers, administrators and a few of the school's maintenance crew. The Kimura Nursery in Pomona supplied some of the plants used.

The result is that we now have some greenery and color in what had been empty ground on the campus, and that students have been learning about ecological planning in the process.

The maintenance and repair work on the areas throughout the year will be done entirely by students. Says Lillie: "This all depends on the kids. The only way this will work is if they show enough interest. It's up to them." The teachers hope that the project will give students a chance to study ecological management on a small scale.

Further work in Field Biology classes is planned along this line. Campus interest in the idea is growing, and both students and teachers have expressed interest in seeing the plan expanded to other areas in the school. All in all, it's a very nice coming-back present.

Among other surprises this year is the lengthening of the school day by 25 minutes. The new schedule is intended to ease scheduling problems, and reduce class sizes. So far, the new system seems to be working well, and belive it or not, students and faculty alike are satisfied with the change. (Will wonders never cease!?!)

In addition this year, CHS has many new faces on the teaching staff. They include: Donald Brinegar, vocal music; Anne Damico, opportunities; Robert Deacon, orthopedically handicapped; Baldwin Eckel, science; Barbara Hinkle, business education; Drew Lawlor, home economics; Timothy Pike, guidance seminar; and Leslie Wessman, English.

Movie review

By ELLEN GONZALEZ
Chino High Reporter

Have you ever wondered why your parents and grandparents sometimes talk about the depression? They refer to it as the "good old days."

Watching "Paper Moon," a new film by Peter Bogdanovich, is like taking a trip back in time to the era of radio and FDR, truly showing what the "good old days" were all about.

Starring Ryan O'Neal and his daughter, Tatum, the movie follows the hilarious adventures of Moses Pray, a Bible-selling con man, and Addie, his nine-year-old apprentice. Together they cross a depression ridden Kansas, selling cheap Bibles, stealing moonshine, and generally never giving a sucker an even break.

As Addie, Tatum O'Neal steals the show, playing the precocious daughter of a dead hooker, who smokes and swindles better than any adult. Ryan O'Neal is great as the fast talking, crooked, moustachioed Moses Pray. Also excellent is Madeline Kahn who plays Pray's "winky tinking," belly-dancing girlfriend.

In order to make the film more realistic, "Paper Moon" (which was shot entirely in black and white) used professional actors for only the main characters. All grieving widows, red-neck sheriffs, and other assorted hicks are portrayed by the citizens of the different Kansas towns where the movie was filmed.

As a result, Peter Bogdanovich has captured the exact nostalgia of smalltown midwest life during the thirties.

Chino dope poll says 1 out of 3 is a user

By ELLEN GONZALES
Chino High Reporter

"But I would not feel
so all alone
Everybody must get stoned."
Rainy Day Women
Bob Dylan

We live in a drug oriented society. Anyone who doesn't believe this needs only to flip on the T.V. and watch the parade of commercials advertising sleeping pills, tranquilizers, and alcohol.

In many American families daddy drinks his Budweiser while mommy takes her "little blue pills" (to relieve excess tension).

Our society is also obsessed with polls (no, not Pollacks — a poll is a sampling and study of public opinion). The only thing is that it seems the more we sample and study public opinion on a certain problem, the less we do to solve the problem. How many polls have been taken on pollution, crime, and President Nixon?

Recently, at CHS, students were given a "Dope Poll." We were asked to fill out a form posing such questions as "Do you know one, two, three, or more people who use alcohol?" "Have you ever used marijuana?" The results of the poll: one out of every three CHS students take dope.

Why was there even a need for a poll? Anybody who wonders if we have a drug problem at CHS should walk out to our field during lunch time — and inhale very deeply. This reporter can guarantee you won't smell tobacco.

When asked if he even answered the poll truthfully, one student replied, "Nobody answered it honestly. I know I didn't. My biblical literature teacher was watching!"

Still another student said "I think you should give the teachers the Dope Poll. Would they answer it honestly?"

The administration of CHS should stop taking polls and start some positive action. A good beginning would be a complete revision of the drug education section taught.

The material the class is being taught now is outmoded and downright laughable. Intelligent books on drugs (e.g. "Go Ask Alice" and "A Separate Reality") should be required reading.

How about scheduling some rallies with speakers from Teen Challenge? Instead of merely condemning drugs, the administration should offer alternatives to drugs — religion, philosophy, music, and sports. Above all, the administration (both school and government) should realize that some kids are going to take dope no matter what ways are taken to stop them.

Not splinters, but for safety

FT. HUACHUCA, Ariz. (UPI) —A new $25,000 reviewing stand is being built at this Army post not because anyone has gotten splinters on the old wooden one but because it has been declared unsafe, a fort spokesman said.

Paul Stoll, a civilian public affairs officer at the fort, said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., was "misinformed" that the new concrete reviewing stand was being built because some generals and their wives have complained about splinters.

It was unlikely officers made such complaints because they always sat on steel folding chairs erected on the wooden bleachers, Stoll said.

Aerial ripoff

first flight was made with a co-pilot, mechanic, radio operator, Standard Oil representative, O'Neil's first wife and Jane Gabraith, a former Boeing Company empoye who became the word's first "flying secretary" and later O'Neill's second wife.

These are the heroes of the book. The villains are all from Pan Am.

"Juan Trippe, Sonny Whitney and Richard Hoyt are the ones that did me in," says O'Neill, who lives in retirement in Atherton, Calif. "The political back-biting and corporation infighting were unbelievable"

"But they just used him for publicity purposes," says O'Neill. "I have no rancor towards Slim Lindbergh. But towards those others especially Trippe . . ."

O'Neill's flying boats made the 9500-mile trip from New York to Buenos Aires in six days at a time it took 18 days by ship. And he proved passenger lines could be operated between continents.

He says he would still be operating the NYRBA today if it had not been taken away from him. But if that had been the case, he would not have made a fortune in placer gold in Bolivia, as he did.

"But that will take another book," sayd O'Neill.

Malamud

This bit of foolery isn't what might be called American frontier humor of the 1970s, it is gothic allegory, a Malamudian beast fable about oppression. When poor Abramowitz finally escapes from his heartless master and from his horse's body, he canters "across a grassy soft field into a dark wood, a free centaur." Hmmmmmm.

Less easy to comprehend or even discuss are stories such as "The Letter"—which concerns a mental defective trying to get a "normal" person to mail his letter (which is blank and lacks an address)—and "notes from a Lady at a Dinner Party," about an old professior's young, seductive and unbalanced wife and her flirtation with a former student of her husband.

One of Malamud's recurring themes is the father-son relationship particularly in terms of the ungrateful son. A little sketch about a neurotically alientated son, "My Son the Murderer," exemplifies this clearly. Loneliness (as seen in "In Retirement") is another basic concern. Where, one wonders, will Malamud go from here.

It Happened in Pomona

Historical highlights

Down through the years our pioneer forefathers had much to brag about when recounting for the edification of less fortunately situated individuals the many outstanding advantages connected with living in Pomona and the great Pomona Valley.

So just in case you are unaware of or have forgotten how important this city really was in the days of its infancy, here are a few historical highlights which should prove conclusively that early day Pomona was a city of more than ordinary importance in California's Southland.

First, and perhaps most amazing of all, it should be reported that 86 years ago, Pomona was the second largest city in Los Angeles County.

By 1892 our citizens had become so aware of their city's importance that they were seriously considering the necessity for more and better highways to facilitate the comings and goings of those who wished to visit, and more than likely even settle in, this Southern California garden spot. And although 81 years ago they weren't participating in new freeway dedications and ribbon cuttings, they were actively engaged in promoting additional roads that would more adequately connect the various communities throughout this area. In fact, in 1892, the valley was all agog over a proposed new road to be built across the hills between Lordsburg (now La Verne) and Spadra. When completed it was to be known as the Lemon Short Line.

Then, by 1896, our progressive forefathers really had something to which they could point with pride. It was the city's telephone exchange located in the rear of Armour's Drug Store, which served all of 24 subscribers.

But it was in the year 1904 that civic promotion in Pomona undoubtedly achieved its finest hour. On June 27 the editor of The Pomona Daily Review took his trusty pen in hand and wrote this paean of praise about his beloved city:

"The people who have seen Pomona Cemetery prosper from a 10-acre shadeless melancholy, sun-baked waste into the attractive, prettily planted abode of the dead it now is have reason to believe that someday the local cemetery will be the most fitting spot in Southern California for the final repose of our loved ones."

Tick-filled cellar difficult to clear

DEAR DR. MILLER: We are having terrible time with ticks. Again. Last year we had to move Rinky from the basement to an outside doghouse because he was picking up so many ticks down there. But we thought we got rid of them all. We had planned, now, to move him back into the basement this winter. He hates the outside doghouse. But now he is bringing in more ticks and, like last year, these powders and baths don't really do a good job on them. Is there stuff that can be used, say, like with a bath, that will kill the ticks once and for all? — W. D.

Dear W. D.: Yes, your veterinarian or a pet shop can dispense tick preparations. (Unfortunately, many products made for fleas and lice are not particularly effective against ticks.) Then, too, even though you kill the ticks "once and for all," this often fails to solve the problem. There are often other ticky legions lurking nearby. Consider the common known dog tick, Ripicephalus saguineus, the gravid female who, after engorging on a half cc. or so of fresh dog blood, drops off her host and crawls into a cozy corner or climbs the nearby wall to lay from 2,000 to 4,000 eggs. Then, remember the entire life cycle from birth to egg-laying adult, may, under ideal conditions, be completed in three months or less. Finally, consider the young may wait around for a victim for a year and a half and the adult for as long as two years (before starving). You can see why that basement, if it has not thoroughly fumigated, might still be a poor refuge for Ricky.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Twelve pounds doesn't seem like a bad weight for a poodle but, drat it, the doctor insists that this particular toy poodle should weigh only six pounds. If I follow the doctor's instructions closely, can I expect him to lose a pound a week? — P. N.

Dear P.N.: Your doctor could best determine that for you though it doesn't sound like a realistic figure, when you consider a pound a week is a good weight loss for a human to achieve, and that two pounds for a human is maximum under most conditions. Why not just follow the doctor's dietary instructions and see just how rapid it does come off? Even if your baby blimp loses only a pound a month, he should be in comparatively good shape to celebrate the new year.

Safety in handling tools

By MR. FIX

With labor costs higher and higher, the average homeowner is not likely to hire someone to do small jobs around the house, and therefore finds himself handling tools more than ever before.

Someone hitting his thumb with a hammer may seem funny until it happens to you. Dull tools are likelier to cut you than sharp ones.

Before tackling any job, large or small, remember these basic rules — use the right tool for the job, use the tool propertly, keep the tools in good condition.

For the basic tools you are likely to be using here are some basic rules.

Hammer — When you strike the nail, strike it with the full face of the hammer. Striking it at an angle causes the hammer to slip off the nail. Hold the nail between thumb and forefinger. Hold it near the head, not the point. Hammer handles should be smooth and free of splinters. Use a hammer heavy enough so that pounding is at a minimum, but not so heavy you can't heft it. Make certain the handle is tight in the hammer head. Don't use a hammer if the face of the head is dented or nicked.

Screwdriver — Have an assortment. One size won't do every job. The right size is one in which the bade tip can be seated firmly and squarely against the bottom and sides of the screw slot. Don't substitute a screwdriver for a chisel or prybar. Don't hold the work in one hand, the screwdriver in the other. That's a way to gouge a hole in your hand.

Saw — A sharp saw cuts, a dull one slips. Support your work on a sawhorse. Start the cut on the back stroke and keep an even steady pressure while sawing. If you are cutting metal with a hacksaw, fasten the work in a vise.

Pliers — Have several types; there's no such thing as universal pliers. Don't use pliers with worn jaws. Don't use pliers to try and loosen or tighten bolts or pipe fittings where great pressure is needed. Use a wrench.

Wrench — Again, you will need a variety. The adjustable wrench is the nearest thing to an all-purpose wrench but you will learn after a time what other kinds to get. Do not put a pipe on the handle of a small wrench to increase leverage. Use a larger wrench. For round objects you will need a pipe wrench with a movable upper jaw that tightens automatically when pressure is applied to the handle.

Power tools — Any electrical tool should be grounded before using. The exception is the new types of portable tools with insulated, nonmetal housings. If you have any number of power tools, try to run them on a separate circuit to avoid overloading.

Don't use a power saw without a guard over the blade. Check the material you are cutting for nails. Don't wear a long necktie or loose, floppy sleeves.

Storage — Have a place for your tools. Don't toss them together into a drawer or box. If you can, hang up hand tools.

Plans afoot to make lawn care a cinch

NEW YORK (UPI) — If ever you've threatened to pave your lawn with green cement, hold off! By 1980, you may be able to put your lawn mower in mothballs and hang up your pruning shears as a thing of the past.

Research programs now under way indicate that by the end of the decade, homeowners will be planting new varieties of grass that will grow only to a specified height and then stop — thus eliminating the need for mowing, says Joseph P. Sullivan, president of Estech, Inc., the chemicals and industrial products division of Esmark, Inc., Chicago.

Along with limited growth grass, Sullivan says, there are other developments in the offing that will make caring for a lawn much easier and less time consuming. Among them:

—Ornamental and shrub growth retardants that will eliminate the need for constant trimming.

—Grass seed and fertilizer combined in pellets to make the planting of a new lawn or the reseeding of an existing yard a one-step job.

—Sprinkler systems that automatically dispense fertilizer and weed killers as needed during an entire spring and summer growing season.

—Long-lasting fertilizers that will work for two years or longer once they are placed on a lawn.

—Special packages that will be used to dispense grass seed and fertilizer and then discarded, doing away with the need for a spreader.

The outlook

The outlook for change in the home gardening field is underscored, Sullivan said, by growing concern for the environment and the increasing amount of leisure time. More and more, he said, reports indicate the "green thumb" pastime is catching on as a form of relaxation.

The burgeoning demand for more efficient land use and rising costs will result in many cases in smaller home grounds and lawns, but homeowners will want to use what land is available to the fullest extent.

For the lawn of the future, Sullivan said, several universities are experimenting with a new product developed by Estech to solve some of the

Family comfort the key

By HIAWATHA ESTES

Here is an extraordinarily well-planned home that points toward a kind of utopian way of life. It emphasizes family comfort and convenience—both indoors and out—and the look of true luxury which belies its 1381 square foot size.

The dead-end living room will never have to be used as a passageway from one area of the house to another as all rooms are accessible from the entry and hall.

Every inch of the exceptionally large combination dining-kitchen was thoughfully planned to create a well-organized and efficient home. Closets extending from the floor to the ceiling—broom, pantry and water heater—are all on the bath wall. Another feature of this room is the pass-through window above the kitchen sink which allows efficient serving of both food and drinks whenever one entertains or dines on the patio.

Each of the bedrooms has a wide wardrobe closet and none of the bedrooms have a common wall. Both the family and the private master bath have pullman lavatores.

This same basic floor plan and exterior is available in both a two-and a three-bedroom design, at a different price structure, and are illustrated in our book. Distinctive Homes.

Complete working drawings for plan 41047 can be purchased for only $11.61 for the first set and $6.36 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until Jan. 23, 1974. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.06. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is $1.06. The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes — $1.33; Hallmark Homes — $1.33; Homes by Hiawatha — $1.33; Prize Homes — $1.33; Town & Country Homes — $1.33; Ranch & Modern Homes— $2.12. All six books — an $8.75 value for only $6.89. Orders for less than three books, please add an extra 20 cents per book for postage and handling. Prices include sales tax. Send all orders to: Hiawatha Estes, Box 404-P O, Northridge, CA 91324.

How to help avert future water crisis

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

Today, just about everywhere, you'll get that clear, refreshing drink. But there may be a day when there just won't be enough water for that quart or two you normally drink each day.

There's a tendency to scoff at the idea of a potable water shortage of such serious proportions it presages a national crisis, but the experts are predicting just that.

Fifty years from now, according to the U.S. Water Resources Council, the minimum national daily water requirement is expected to exceed available supply by 168 trillion gallons — unless we find the means to make more prudent use of our water resources.

Government agencies are working on plans to increase water storage capacities and seeking practical ways to make more waste water reusable. But government and industry efforts and desalinization won't provide the whole solution. People must help.

American-Standard, manufacturer of plumbing fixtures, acknowledges that in the home the toilet is the largest single source of water consumption. Faucets — particularly the leaky kind — are culprits also. But, a toilet doesn't flush itself and a leaky faucet can't repair itself. It's people that waste water.

The United States now uses more than 250 billion gallons of water every day, with the average citizen accounting for about four times his weight, or 60 gallons.

American-Standard suggests simple but important ways each family can conserve water in the home — and cut its water bill to boot:

— Use the toilet only for the purpose for which it is intended: sanitary disposal. Flushing cigarettes and facial tissue is extremely wasteful. Equip the bathroom with ashtray and waste basket. More water is saved, American-Standard says, by flushing only when necessary than by using artificial water-saving gimmicks. Conventional toilets are not designed for them. Ploys to reduce volume — bending the ball float rod or inserting a brick in the tank — can backfire.

The only proper way to reduce the amount of water in each flush is to install a toilet that is especially designed to use one-third less water than conventional models, but make sure it conforms to commercial and government sanitary regulations.

— Make sure the flush valve is properly seated after each flush. If water seepage occurs, jiggle the lever until it stops.

— Commercial glass cleaners are easier to use and do a better job than water.

Waiting for repairs can be costly

If you are thingking about major improvements in your home, it might be a wise idea not to wait for "next year."

Alcan Aluminum Corporation, major supplier of aluminum building accessories for the home, reports that most contractors are at their busiest during the summer months for outdoor work and during the winter months for indoor improvements.

A contractor who installs aluminum siding, for example, will be at his busiest from April to September. Consequently, during the late fall, you may be in store for both savings in cost and more individual attention than you might get when the contractor is at his busiest.

Alcan suggests investigating the advantages of aluminum siding for installation during late fall. The siding will prove to be a worthwhile investment. Aluminum siding is sespecially weather resistant and can bring you an immediate bonus with the added insulation that siding brings

Ideal place for family accounting

By STEVE ELLINGSON

No matter how small your home or apartment is, it can accommodate a complete "executive center" for running the household, handling family accounts or catching up on correspondence. The handsome desk shown here with actress Sue Burnett is 46 inches high by 34 inches wide (when closed) and projects only 22 inches from the wall.

You will notice the desk has spaces for keeping office supplies of all kinds, together with a vertical filing system. There are adjustable shelves for ledgers, more files, books, a typewriter and countless other home office requirements. The large pull-out writing surface doubles as a typewriter table. You couldn't find a more ideal item for those who want to stay organized for work or study at home.

Here's a project that can be undertaken by any amateur with confidence when he uses our easy-to-follow pattern. The pattern lists the needed materials along with lots of pictures showing the various stages of construction.

Cancer team to check agent in meat coloring

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Agriculture Department established an advisory committee Friday to determine if cancer-causing agents are formed as by-products in curing processes used for ham, bacon and other meats.

Recent studies have brought nitrite under suspicion because of reports indicating that nitrosamines —known cancer-causing agents, or carcinogens —are produced when sodium nitrite reacts with acids contained in meat.

Dr. Michael Jacobson, codirector of the Washington-based Center for Science in the Public Interest, has said that bacon may be one of the most dangerous foods in production because nitrites are used in its curing process.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said that the government is worried about the safety of nitrite as a curing agent. Earlier this summer the Food and D r u g administration banned the use of sodium nitrite with spices after discovering that the mix contained nitrosamines, apparently produced by a chemical reaction.

The FDA ordered meat processors not to use such spiced curing mixes, used in production of lunch meat and sausage, but approved the use of the agents so long as they were handled separately.

There is now "a great deal of information in our hands," Butz said. "This panel will study the material and make recmmendations as to what action needs to be taken."

The advisory committee will be composed of Dr. Cecil H. Edwards of Howard University; Dr. Leo Friedman of the FDA's bureau of foods; Dr. Richard A. Greenburg of Swift and Co., Oakbrook, Ill.; Dr. Aaron E. Wasserman, of the Agriculture Department's Agricultural Research Center in Philadelphia; and Dr. John H. Weisburger, of the American Health Foundation in New York.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Service stations by the hundreds locked their gasoline pumps in Northern California Friday to protest the Nixon administration's Phase IV economic controls.

The open stations reported long lines of motorists seeking to fill their tanks so their cars will not be immobile during the weekend.

Policemen in many north state cities were called in to help traffic at the clogged stations.

The California State Automobile Association headquarters here reported that 90 per cent of the stations in the Bay Area were closed. And, a spokesman said, those still open were rationing their gas at between five and 10 gallons per visit.

The California Highway Patrol headquarters in Sacramento reported late in the day that officers have not come upon large numbers of drivers whose vehicles were out of gas.

But, officials said, all patrolmen were being alerted as to what stations were open so they could refuel their cruisers and give the information to drivers.

The closings were conducted by independent owners who rent their facilities from the oil companies. The independent owners met in Oakland Thursday night and agreed to participate in the boycott at least through the weekend.

The reason for the protest was this:

Dealers have been forced under Phase IV to cut their pump prices from one to three cents and, at the same time, absorb up to a penny wholesale increase imposed in the last two weeks by just about all of the major oil companies. The dealers charge that this has cut their profit margin. They want a complete eradication of all Phase IV guidelines.

They waved signs reading: "Let's Go Fishing," "Pump Power vs. Nixon Power" and "Food Stamps for Dealers."

Joe Huemmrich, executive director of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, told the dealers that his organization could not endorse the protest.

But, Huemmrich said, "if I see a damn service station open tomorrow, I'm going to be awfully disappointed."

Libyan jets strafe Italian warship

ROME (UPI) —Libyan jets strafed an Italian warship guarding fishing boats in international waters off the Libyan coast Friday, slightly injuring two sailors, Italy's foreign ministry said.

The Italian news agency ANSA said a member of Libya's ruling Revolution C o m m a n d Council expressed his "profound regrets" over the incident to the Italian ambassador in Libya, Aldo Conte Marotta.

The agency said Libya had informed Italy that the attack had been a mistake and that Libyan aircraft have been instructed not to disturb the fishing boats and their escort ships.

Libya's official Tripoli Radio made no mention of any incident.

The warship, the De Cristofaro, a 246-foot Corvette-class vessel built in 1965, suffered only very minor damage in the attack, the foreign ministry said.

Emergency landing fails

Search plane catches fire; all six aboard die

PORT ARANSAS, Tex. (UPI) —A Coast Guard plane searching for a man who fell off a fishing boat Friday caught fire, crashed during an emergency landing in the water and sank with six people aboard.

Coast Guard rescue workers recovered the body of Aviation Machinist Mate 1-C Harold D. Brown Jr. of Stonington, Conn.

Five other victims included Lt. Cmdr. Francis W. Miller, 31, of Needham, Mass., the pilot; aviation structural mechanic 2-C Benjamin R. Gaskins Jr., 24, of Buxton, N. C.; aviation electronics technician 2-C John F. Harrison, 24, of Washington; aviation electronics technician 2-C John P. Pledger, 24, of Salt Lake City, and Ens. Gerald Mack, 25, of Irving, Tex., the copilot.

Dave Cipra, spokesman for the Coast Guard headquarters in New Orleans, said two helicopters, two rescue boats and the cutter Point Baker were conducting the search.

"We had a helicopter and 44-foot rescue boat already participating in the search for the man overboard and they were diverted to the scene of the crash," Cipra said.

The pilot of the aircraft, a HU16E amphibious, two-engine craft, radioed the headquarters at Port Aransas and said there was a fire aboard. There was no opportunity to explain the nature of the fire.

"They said they would have to ditch," Cipra said.

The plane crashed in trying to make the emergency landing. Cipra said the seas were choppy, but the water would have provided no difficulty under normal circumstances.

"We won't know just what happened until we can retrieve the wreckage," Cipra said. He said the wreckage would likely be recovered by a barge crane.

The first body recovered was floating in the area of the wreck, perhaps thrown from the craft on impact. It was flown to the Naval Air Station hospital in Corpus Christi.

TUNNEY'S 'POOR MAN' DIET

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., on Friday began a $1.25 a day food diet for two weeks "to personally experience for a limited period what hundreds of thousands of Americans experience day in and day out." Tunney will introduce legislation next week aimed at helping stabilize food prices. For lunch he had an apple, celery and a cheese sandwich.

Projects discussed

G.M. holds talks with Russians

NEW YORK (UPI) —The overseas division of General Motors Corp. said Friday it was discussing a broad range of projects with Soviet government officials in hopes of developing commercial relations with the country.

Spokesmen for the General Motors Overseas Corp. declined, however, to confirm or deny a published report that negotiations are directed specifically toward construction of a large truck manufacturing complex in Siberia.

"A group of General Motors executives and engineers visited the Soviet Union in April this year to deliver technical presentations on GM products and to explore the possibility of developing commercial relations," said a spokesman for the overseas division.

"Discussions are still in the preliminary stage, and there are no specific agreements," he said. "There are discussions in a number of areas."

Business Week magazine said Friday that General Motors was involved in negotiations toward building a truck manufacturing complex in Siberia that would be even larger than the Soviets' $2 billion Kama River truck plant.

The Kama River plant, which is scheduled to begin production next year, is the biggest truck manufacturing complex in the world. Several American automotive supply firms are participating in the Kama River project under government licensing.

The General Motors spokesmen said current discussions with Soviet officials had ranged over a wide variety of products from refrigerators to electric locomotives and the means of putting them on the Russian market.

Three years ago Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., visited the Soviet Union and opened negotiations for Ford to build a truck plant there. The plan was dropped later in the year, however. Ford said the project was not feasible at that time, but there were reports that the Nixon Administration wanted the project halted.

Reagan to sign death measure

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan will sign legislation restoring the death penalty in California Monday in Los Angeles, his office said Friday.

Those invited to attend the ceremony at the Marriott Hotel include the measure's author, Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, Attorney General Evelle Younger and Assemblymen Mike Antonovich, R-Los Angeles, and Joe A. Gonsalves, D-La Mirada.

Action defended

Under Soviet law, manuscripts must be approved by the government before being sent out of the country.

2 more U.S. missionaries scheduled to be released

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Chile's junta government Friday released four imprisoned Americans including two graduate students held on subversion charges and plans soon to release two detained Maryknoll missionaries, the U. S. Embassy reported.

Released were Adam and Patricia Schesch in Chile working for the University of Wisconsin land tenure program, and John Ceretti, 22, and Henry Warlow, 22, occupations and hometowns unknown. All had been held in the National Stadium along with several thousand other persons being investigated for alleged subversion.

The embassy said that the government had asked the Schesch's to leave the country promptly and said they would depart today.

Release of Catholic missionaries Brother Joseph Dougherty, 29, and Seminarian Francis Flynn, 27, is "imminent," the embassy said. The spokesman had no information, however, on two other detained Americans, identified only as Carol Nesso and David Cusack.

The junta's president, Gen. Augusto Pinochet, announced Friday that the Marxist parties which formed Marxist President Salvador Allende's governing coalition had been outlawed.

In a wide-ranging press conference, the 57-year-old army commander also said that neither the U. S. or any other f o r e i g n goivernment had advance knowledge of the violent Sept. 11 coup which overthrew Allende.

"Not even my wife knew what we were going to do," Pinochet said.

Allende was ousted by the armed forces Sept. 11, and an official police report reiterated Friday that he had committed suicide while besieged by tanks and jet airplanes in the downtown La Moneda presidential palace.

"(The) death of Salvador Allende Gossens (was) caused by two suicidal shots in the chin..." the report said, adding that he killed himself with an automatic rifle given to him as a present by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

5 Stanek infants growing stronger

Doctors said the condition of the four boys and one girl born Sunday night seven weeks premature was the best it had been since birth. They were fed milk kept cool by a Red Cross ice chest.

"All five of the infants are in stable condition," said obstetrician Dr. Tibor Engel. "There has been some steady improvement. We can't say yet everything is all clear but it is very encouraging.

"The problem is they can go momentarily from being great to a moment of crisis. We're grateful for every quiet moment that passes."

Edna Stanek, 34, who took fertility drugs before becoming pregnant, made her third visit to the obstetrics ward nursery to peek at the children. She said she thought they looked good, Engel said.

A medical bulletin issued by the University of Colorado Medical Center said the eldest child, John, was in good condition and was fed a halfounce of milk ever three hours. Stephen, Jeffrey, Nathan and Catherine all were listed as satisfactory.

The sixth sextuplet, Julia, died Tuesday night of hyaline membrane disease which prevents the lungs from furnishing oxygen to the blood. All the survivors except John and Jeffrey showed traces of the sickness earlier in the week but doctors said their vital signs — blood pressure, pulse and body temperature —had stabilized.

Suicide disputed

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A Chilean refugee said Friday he was told by officials in the toppled government of President Salvador Allende that Allende "died fighting" troops as they attacked the presidential palace and did not commit suicide.

The exiled former official, Edgardo Arrive, was among 74 Chilean refugees who arrived in Mexico City Friday, the third airlift to this country since the coup by the junta.

Arrive, who said he had been executive secretary of Chile's nationalized pharmaceutical industry, said officials still trapped at the Mexican embassy in Santiago had said they witnessed Allende's death and that he did not kill himself, as the junta has announced.

Waiting for county decision

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

CHINO — A municipal court may be created to replace the existing Chino Justice Court here within the next two months.

County officials have stipulated the district's population now exceeds 40,000, which requires a municipal court.

"The only thing not determined is when that change-over will be made," said Paul Grube, deputy county counsel.

The order is now on a "hold over" basis while negotiations between him and county officials are being conducted.

"We have agreed in substance that the population requirement has been met, that the justice court be converted to municipal court, and that the incumbent judge be the new judge," said Reher.

"When the county pin-points the source for funding, they should be able to tie down the commencing date. I had hoped for an Oct. 1 date, but I would be happy if we are in gear by mid October."

Grube said he will stipulate with Reher next week on the date of the change-over.

"Changing to a municipal court means a higher judge's salary, a court reporter will be required on some proceedings, and the jurisdiction will be higher," he said.

Once a stipulation has been made with Reher, there will be only a legal formality of a Superior Court judge signing the order, said Grube. The change-over may occur within the next 30 to 60 days, he added.

Philip Schaefer, who was appointed justice court judge last July to replace Ben Burrell, is expected to transfer to the new municipal court.

Officials have indicated the municipal court will be located in the justice court building until a new court building is completed in a county city complex next year.

Praises Texas system

California prisons are failing: Richardson

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIMAS — Sen. H. L. Richardson criticized California's penal system Friday during a visit to San Dimas. He described it as a "failing system" that lacks security and lets idle men spend their time watching television instead of doing constructive work.

Richardson, R-19th Dist., told members and guests gathered at a breakfast forum of the San Dimas Chamber of Commerce that he made surprise visits to the California Institution for Men at Chino, and Folsom and San Quentin prisons on Sundays and late weekday afternoons. He also took a series of slides that he showed at the meeting.

His slides revealed unkept California prisons occupied by inmates who were standing or sitting in groups watching television.

Richardson said inmates, for the most part, wander about with little work to do in California prisons. He said Folsom Prison even puts television sets outside in the yards for inmates, and some prisons are permitting inmates to have individual sets in their cells.

He said some of the cells are furnished like motel rooms and showed slides of youth authority buildings that he said "appear to be more like college campuses than prisons."

The senators said he felt the 35 murders in California prison last year were the result of the freedom given to inmates. He said some prisons, including the Chino facility, offer swimming, shuffleboard and rehabilitation programs that include deep sea diving and the care of exotic birds while the grounds are overrun with weeds.

Richardson showed slides of a ladder that was learning on the outside of the fencing to the Chino prison and unguarded fences near the men's dormitories that could, he said, give easy access to persons who wanted to throw drugs over the fence to the inmates.

In comparsion, he showed slides of Huntsville Prison in Texas which is the oldest penal facility in the state. The slides showed an immaculate and smooth running operation that keeps inmates busy working a 40-hour week manning the many operations that keep the prison self-sustaining. Richardson said inmates raise all materials for food and make clothing and dental care items. They even make saddles for the horses that are used by guards on the prison property, he pointed out. They also operate all the computer record information for the state, make all boots and shoes for state institutions and repair all school buses in the state.

Richardson said this is not only a tremendous saving to the state but is rehabilitative to the inmate. He said each inmate leaves the prison with at least an 11th grade education.

"They are told if they don't want to go to school they can spend some time in the hole until they are ready to."

He said each inmate in the Texas facility has to work six months in the fields and can work up to another job from there. He said the working inmate system is succesful in Texas and it is supplemented by high moral standards and church attendance in the prisons.

Richardson said California once had a system that kept the inmates busy with constructive work with those similar to that of the Texas program, but he said these have been dropped in recent years.

He said he is working to "educate" the people of the problems that now exist in the system. He will introduce legislation to try to resolve some of the current problems.

He said California spends four times as much on its penal system program as the State of Texas. "There is very little that is rewarding about our penal system," the senator said.

Astronauts expect to have safe return

HOUSTON (UPI) —Skylab 2 mission commander Alan L. Bean said Friday he was fully confident that his crew would bring their crippled Apollo spacecraft back to earth safely Tuesday and that all three astronauts would walkout of the rocket ship unaided to the deck of the recovery carrier.

Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma completed their last earth resources survey and sun photography and in the first televised press conference of man's longest space flight, said they would "dearly love" to extend the 59-day mission two more "I don't think there's any question about the fact we could go more than 59 days," said Lousma. "We could go on working up here almost indefinitely. I feel we could do this and request to do so."

Bean said, "this would be the the perfect job if you could go home every night to your wife."

"We're certainly not bored," said Garriott, a scientistastronaut. "I would dearly love to have another two months in the spacecraft, with absolutely no requests from the ground, to do just the things that I would like to do myself."

Plan confirmed

Controls to end on soybean exports

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government Friday formally confirmed its plans to lift all export controls on soybeans and related high-protein livestock feeds on Oct. 1.

The announcement from Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent had been expected. He had announced his intention to lift the export restrictions Oct. 1 —as promised repeatedly by other officials —in a statement several weeks ago.

Sharp protest

The export controls, imposed early this summer, produced sharp protests from buyers in Japan, Europe and other areas who import American soybeans and related products to feed their livestock. Officials here took the action after soybean prices zoomed to record levels more than triple the year-ago rate.

Despite strong misgivings by some officials, the administration decided at the time it would be safer to risk foreign anger than a domestic supply crunch, adding more fuel to inflation in meat and poultry prices for U.S. consumers.

Lift controls

Almost from the start, however, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other top officials were promising that the controls would be lifted this fall unless the 1973 soybean crop was disappointing. Recent estimates have put that crop at a record 1.6 billion bushels, which Butz's aides estimate will be more than enough to meet all foreign and domestic demand in the 1973-74 marketing season.

The agriculture secretary, despite pressure from some processor groups who want exports limited in order to help hold down domestic food prices, has pushed hard for a free export policy.

Butz maintains heavy exports are needed to help protect the dollar's value and pay for growing imports of fuel and other products.

48 million see tennis match on television

An ABC spokesman said a 26-market survey by Trendex Inc. showed that the Thursday night telecast attracted 52.4 per cent of the audience during the 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. EDT time slot.

The Columbia Broadcasting System televised the original Riggs-Margaret Court tennis match on a Sunday afternoon and, since it took a chance with that telecast, it expected to get the King-Riggs match, too. But CBS was outbid by ABC.

To try to counteract the tennis match billed as the "Battle of the Sexes," CBS ran the highly popular and critically acclaimed movie "Bonnie and Clyde" opposite the match Thursday night.

CBS said it did not have national statistics on how many viewers watched "Bonnie and Clyde," which was being shown on television for the first time, but said it did have regional figures for the New York and Los Angeles areas.

CBS estimated 27.7 per cent of the audience watched the movie in the New York area where it ran at the same time as the tennis match, and that 43 per cent of the audience watched it in Los Angeles. But in Los Angeles the movie was shown after the tennis match had ended.

Jury being selected in strangulation case

POMONA — Jury selection is under way in the second Pomona Superior Court trial of a young man accused of murder in the strangulation Jan. 19 of Cheryl P. Brown here.

The panel was being selected this week in the court of Judge Glenn M. Pfau with expectations that it might be complete by the first of next week. Lengthy arguments are expected then on defense contentions that the defendant, Lee Donald Lakey, 22, wasn't properly warned by police that statements he made after his arrest might be used against him.

The trial is expected to take about three weeks compared to five weeks consumed by the first trial. That case ended June 4 in mistrial when the jury could not agree on a verdict. Pfau presided over that trial as well.

Lakey, a bus boy, is accused of garroting the young woman in her new apartment next door to his. It was to have been the first night she spent there after moving from her family residence in Chino.

Miss Brown's body was found by her sister who went to the apartment at 759 E. San Francisco Ave. to see why Miss Brown hadn't arrived at their mother's home as had been planned.

Nader rapped by GOP, Demo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic chairman and ranking Republican of a House committee both Republican lectured Ralph Nader at a hearing Friday, calling him "ignorant of the legislative process" and prone to "tirades."

Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, and Rep. Frank Horton, RN.Y., criticized Nader for half an hour as he testified on a bill that would establish an independent federal consumer protection agency.

Nader said a bill Horton and Holifield proposed "isn't worth passing" as presently designed because even though it would create an agency responsible for protecting consumer interests in other federal agencies, the new body would not be allowed to intervene in informal proceedings where decisions are made on many consumerrelated issues, including auto safety.

Lawyer asks $10 million in damages

President named in law suit for Watergate burglars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has been named in a $10 million lawsuit filed by the former lawyer for four of the convicted Watergate burglars, who claimed his clients were pressured into pleading guilty.

Henry Rothblatt said he was fired when he refused to go along with the proposal.

In a suit filed Thursday in Suprerior Court for the District of Columbia, Rothblatt said the guilty plea strategy was designed to "obstruct justice by assuring that no testimony concerning the Watergate break-in would be offered at the trial" of the four defendants.

This was to prevent White House officials, including Nixon, from being implicated in the scandal, he said.

Rothblatt represented Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez, Bernard Barker, and Frank Sturgis —all of whom pleaded guilty at their trial in January.

But Rothblatt claimed his clients believed the Watergate break-in was committed in the name of national security and was not a criminal act.

Because of this, Rothblatt said he entered the original plea of innocent, which was later changed after he was fired as counsel.

In his suit, Rothblatt asked for $10 million in damages for "malicious interference with an attorney-client contract," plus $113,000 in fees he claimed his clients still owed him.

According to Rothblatt, Nixon and his subordinates must assume financial responsibility for activities undertaken in their name.

Also named in the suit as defendants were the Committee to Re-Elect the President, former Attorney General John Mitchell, President Nixon's personal attorney Herbert Kalmbach, and former White House special assistants, H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and Jeb Magruder.

Rothblatt also named as defendants G. Gordon Liddy, and E. Howard Hunt, who were convicted as Watergate conspirators by a jury.

Student, 17, stabbed during fight at school

POMONA — One Garey High School student was stabbed in the back and another arrested for assault with intent to commit murder Friday afternoon following a mid-day altercation on the school grounds.

Robert Reyes, 17, suffered a pair of two inch deep stab wounds in the back, but escaped serious injury. He was treated and later released at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Arrested and charged with assault with intent to commit murder was Samuel Davila Villeareal, 19, of 1893 Matthews Place, Pomona. Bail was set at $1,500

According to police, the stabbing followed a fight between members of rival Mexican-American gangs set off when a brick was thrown from the school grounds at Reyes' car.

Police said another juvenile student was arrested for possession of a switchblade knife.

Hatfield urges welfare reform

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (UPI) —Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., called Friday for the federal government to take its hand from the "people's pocketbook" and give control of welfare funding to local government.

During a news conference at Geneva College, Hatfield said welfare funds could be better administrated by decentralizing the power structure to what he called an "American town hall concept."

Some home costs up $50

By PAUL HILL
P-B Staff Writer

ETIWANDA — To err is not only human, it's also costly as residents of this small foothill community are presently learning.

Due to incorrect meter readings taken some time ago by an employe of the Southwest Water Co., many residents are now faced with abnormally high water bills.

The bills reflect not only the usage and charges for the current billing period (June 22-Aug. 29), but also for the time when the mistakes were apparently made.

As a result, the residents here have banded together and plan to flood the State Public Utilities Commission in Los Angeles with their payments and letters of protest on Oct. 1.

"Each person is going to write a separate complaint, make out a check to the PUC, and then seal the envelope," said Clarence Myers, who is coordinating the efforts of the angry residents. "I will pick them up between the 27th and 30th of this month, and then I'm going to mail them on the first.

"Our intention is to flood the office of the commission with letters all on the same day. We figure to have 300-400 letters when the time is up. Even the people who received small or normal bills are behind us."

He estimated that "at least 90 per cent of the Etiwanda community" had received the bills, which average about $50 more than normal. He said that he had received a water bill of $82.98, compared to bills for $18.72 and $23.85 he had paid previously.

Myers, who has lived at his present address for only eight months, claims that he and others are possibly being charged for water consumed prior to the time they moved into their homes.

However, Ken Dietz, a spokesman for the water company, said the meters were "underread only once," and that was during the previous billing period, which covered the month of May and most of June.

When asked how such mistakes could happen, he said, "The reader did not read what the meter indicated, but he read something less than that."

Dietz said the obvious increased differences in the bills were due to the hot summer months, when water consumption is doubled and sometimes tripled. He promised, however, that the company would "analyze each individual account."

"It's a very unfortunate situation, and we regret that it has happened."

Dietz also claimed that the water company has a right to adjust its bills to the correct meter reading under PUC regulations.

Residents first learned of the company's mistake when they received their bills early last week. Enclosed with each bill was a letter of explanation which said in part:

"Our company has recently replaced the regular meter reader in your area with a new meter reader. It appears from the large difference between the June 1973 reading and the August 1973 reading that your meter may have been underread during the last several months. Consequently, the current bill may reflect usage and charges from prior months as well as for the billing period June through August 1973."

Since then, the group has been actively pursuing course of action, which is to send letters of protest to the PUC.

"I don't know if this will work," Myers admitted. "But we do have to pay for the water or get it shut off."

And if it doesn't work, what then?

"We would go back around to the same people," Myers said, "and we'd ask them to donate about $5 each. With that we would be able to hire the best attorney in the state to fight them (the water company) again.

SAN DIMAS — The city's purchase of the former San Dimas Elementary School property for a park site got no close to reality Friday as state, school and local city officials again delayed any decision about the property.

Mayor Thomas Nuss said the gathering resulted in a discussion of the problems involved with the property but the sale price wasn't mentioned.

Nuss said the meeting was "very friendly" with each side listening to the other's viewpoint. He said the city now has the alternative of condemning the property or waiting until the new general plan for the city sets the zoning for the property.

The state board apparently won't change its opinion of what the land is worth which it values at $75,000. The city had offered to buy the land for $53,000, but that was before a fire destroyed the auditorium of the school Aug. 28.

The school district says it can find a buyer for the school property if the zoning is industrial but the city has taken a stand agreeing with residents near the school property who don't want a factory use there.

Nuss and Lough both said after the meeting that they don't want a manufacturing use at the school site.

"The school district has a problem. It wants to get as much money as it can out of the property to reduce its indebtedness. We also have a problem in what we feel is the best use of the land," Nuss said.

Johnson said the school district is "frustrated" by the property that he said is a maintenance problem for the district. He said vandals had broken into the property since the Aug. 28 fire and the buildings have to again be boarded up.

City Manager Robert Poff said he doubts that the city would condemn the property because of the cost and delay involved. Zoning for the school site will be determined when the general plan is completed in late October.

Lough said he has only a small hope that the city would continue with its plans to purchase the school site after Friday's meeting with state and school officials. He said he is still working with Parks and Recreation Director Bryce Bailey on a project to find suitable park sites in the neighborhood surrounding the school. Bailey selected seven possible sites and showed them to members of the Parks and Recreation Commission earlier this week.

The City Council will receive a report on Friday's meeting when it meets Monday night at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall.

FUN AND GAMES

Jamie Lowe, 3, left, and Wendell Chambliss, 3, right, work on paints and crafts with a little assistance from teacher-director Rae Harris of the Pomona Community Nursery School. The school will have open house Monday through Friday mornings from 9 to 11 for parents and preschoolers.

School grievance plan for Claremont elusive

CLAREMONT — Two years after a Claremont Unified School District teacher group requested development of a grievance policy, the school board and the Certificated Employe Council still do not agree on who should serve as a neutral reviewing panel.

Back in March 1973, Supt. Richard Kirkendall reported to the board that he and the CEC had reached agreement on all areas of the policy except the "third party" reviewing group.

Kirkendall said that the CEC had recommended the American Arbitration Association, and that he recommended that it be a panel of district personnel.

Monday night Kirkendall reported that the teacher group still objects to the provision of review by a panel of district people. Kirkendall explained that the CEC wants an AAA review, that it occur before a review by the school board, and that it be binding.

Kirkendall also noted that both the CEC and a California School Employes Association (classified employes) committee were concerned about the length of the policy.

Walter Blair, president of the Claremont Faculty Association which occupies all the seats on the CEC, told the board that the proposed policy is a complicated item, and "it is hard for teachers to understand."

He explained that teachers who had worked on drafting the proposal 14 months previously "didn't recognize it." "It seems like working on a horse and it comes out a camel," Blair said. "We've tried to work on the best alternatives available."

As to the "disinterested" third person idea, board member Beverly Shacklett asked Blair, "Are you saying you don't have confidence in this board as to grievances?"

"There could be circumstances where there might be differences of opinion," Blair said.

"The courts have said that when you don't have a policy you are derelict, and we're two years behind," said board member Robert Stafford.

Blair said Thursday that he has received replies from 123 of the 321 district teachers regarding their opinions of the proposed policy. "Besides being cumbersome to read, some think that there should be some one to appeal the board's decision," he said.

Nursery school in Pomona will hold open house

POMONA — The Pomona Community Nursery School will conduct its annual open house Monday through Friday from 9 to 11 a.m. for parents and preschoolers throughout the Pomona Valley.

The school is located at 951 E. Philadelphia St.

The nonsectarian, nonprofit school is owned and operated by parents who assist the full-time teahcer-director Mrs. Rae Harris of Chino in the daily program. Mothers assist at school once a week and also attend an adult education class at the school once a month.

Visiting youngsters will be encouraged to participate in the activities at the playhouse, sandbox, water table, tricycle area, work bench and the two classrooms used for art, music, pupets, puzzles, literature and science.

The school offers enrollment for two, three or five mornings a week for children who are 2 years, 9 months to kindergarten age.

The school is now in its 18th year and is affiliated with the Pomona Unified School District through its adult education course in raising and educating preschool children.

The school is now taking applications for the fall semester. Thos wishing additional information should call the school, 627-4918; Mrs. David Chinn, 629-4740; or Mrs. Ronald Foreman, 624-8848.

POMONA — Two Pomona youths, arrested in the gang violence opening night at the Los Angeles County Fair, will be petitioned to Juvenile Court, police here said Friday.

The violence, confined to the Fun Zone, resulted in the stabbing of four youths. The incidents were blamed on continuing gang rivalries involving Mexican-American youths from Pomona, Chino and Ontario.

Most seriously injured was Michael Parra, 19, 13582 Central Ave., Chino. Para suffered a stab wound in his left chest, near his heart, and wounds in one arm. He was confined for awhile in Pomona Valley Community Hospital's intensive care unit, underwent surgery and was released earlier this week.

The youths arrested in the stabbing are 15 and 17 and were booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon — the charges they will face in Juvenile Court. One was seized by police who saw him kick Para as Para lay wounded near the zone's roller coaster. Ten other youths fled immediately after the incident.

Two Ontario men and a 17-year-old Pomonan were stabbed the same night in apparently related incidents, authorities said.

The victims were Anthony Villasenor, 20, 326 W. California Blvd., Ontario, Jose A. Salazar, 1o, 1027 E. Philadelphia St., Ontario, and Steven M. Garcia, 17, 867 W. Monterey Ave., Pomona.

Villasenor was stabbed in the side and was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Salazar was cut on one arm and in one side and was treated at County-USC Medical Centerm Garica was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. He had a stab wound in his lower abdomen.

Police said that in most cases, victims in such cases are uncooperative and do not supply investigators with much information about their attackers.

MSAC may lose sky-class identity

WALNUT — Mt. San Antonio College may soon lose control over the now nationally known phrase "Classroom in the Sky," because United Air Lines has reportedly applied for a government trademark, registering the name as its own.

College trustees reflected wistfully Thursday that the school should have applied for registration of the name a long time ago, and now admit that it is probably too late to begin a legal scramble for the ownership of the name.

Instead, the college is hoping to convince United, which has been used by the district as a charter carrier for "Classroom in the Sky" since it began in 1965, that it would be mutually beneficial to have MSAC connected with the registration in some way.

Both board chairman William Temple and college president Eldon E. Pearce said they preferred "not to jeopardize the relationship" which the college has built up with the air carrier over the years.

However, Temple said he felt the registration of the phrase should include a notation such as "as originated by Mt. San Antonio College, Walnut, Calif."

He said United has been in touch with the college, and a United official has suggested that in any "classroom in the sky" program the college might have a say in the type of material that is to be used.

The MSAC "Classroom in the Sky" received worldwide publicity last June and July, when it took students around the world in a chartered United plane.

The MSAC trustees now feel that United wants to use the phrase to offer several such flying programs a year under the same name but not under MSAC sponsorship. Their concern is that if the program is not properly monitored, its quality may drop.

But the board concluded that as long as the college could have a say about the material that will be used, and the registration could include the college as the originator of the project, it would not place any obstacles before United's plans to acquire the name.

Claremont school guess misses by 1

Kirkendall had projected that 6,528 students would be enrolled at the end of the first month of school, and the enrollment Monday was 6,529.

Enrollment on the sixth day of school in September 1972 was 6,767, a significant decrease of 238 students this year.

Following are comparisons of enrollments Monday by various groups of grades: kindergarten, 317, down 11 from last year; grades 1 through 3, 1,065, down 118; grades 4 through 6, 1,487, down 130; grades 7 through 8, 1,195, up 93; grades 9 through 12, 2,190, down 106; and San Antonio High, 115, up 26. Special education classes had 160 students enrolled, up 8 from last year.

City manager explains main purpose

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — City Manager Bob Fast pleaded a "prime need at this time for additional space in promoting the proposed new Civic Center to a gathering of 22 local businessmen friday.

Fast discussed the need of the Civic Center in a breakfast meeting sponsored by the Chino Valley Chamber of Commerce at Narod's Restaurant. The event was coordinated by Marv Patton, chamber vice president.

In a slide presentation with assistance by George Varela, administrative analyst, Fast explained the recent decision by the City Council to ask for a 25-cent tax increase per $100 assessed valuation in a tax override election on Oct. 23.

"Expansion is necessary to house those governmental facilties needed to provide services for not only the City of Chino, but for the entire rural community surrounding Chino," Fast began.

The Civic Center will house both city and county offices and be located west of Central Avenue on D Street. The city's first increment will cost between $1.5 million and $1.8 million with funds derived from revenue sharing, redevelopment and the tax override. The 25-cent override, if passed, is expected to raise $100,000 per year and would be implemented in the 1973-74 fiscal year.

The present center east of Central was built in 1953. The manager pointed out that parking is inadequate for both downtown workers and the visiting public. The Community Building at 10th and B streets currently serves as Planning Commission and City Council chambers; and meetings there are complicated by problems of acoustics and air conditioning.

Over crowding exists throughout city facilities with the worse situation existing in the police department, Fast said. He cited examples of this as duplicating machines in storage rooms, narrow hallways, a squad room too small and adjacent to the detective and juvenile office thus enterfering with official and confidential business at times, and lack of space for filing and storage of records.

The fire department has no room for additional fire equipment, including an aerial fire truck now on order and expected to arrive sometime next year, he said. There is also a need for additional dispatching with new business and industry moving into Chino, according to the manager.

Fast said administrative offices in each department suffer from lack of space and doubling up. "There is no uncrowded space. With the exception of one place, there is no conference room for general meetings. The annex (for the planning and engineering departments) is costing the city $6,500 a year. And already this building is overcrowded." he said.

The advanatage of locating the new Civic Center in the old downtown area, from 6th Steet to Central on D, is that redevelopment will occur, said Fast. The master plan for the city is projected to the needs of the year 2000.

The present city hall could be inexpensively converted into a community activity and recreation center, he noted.

The fire department would move into the existing police department and utilize every available square foot, he added.

The city tax rate of $1.55 has not increased since 1969-70. In response to a question by John Kropp, principal of the Community Adult School, Fast reported that the cost to each Chino citizen, if the override passes, would be a range from 40 cents to not more than $1.50 per month for a probably period of 25 years.

Harold Wilson, noting the plan would be done in phases, asked, "Does that mean the hat will be passed around later for another override?"

"The present council cannot predict what future councils will do. The intent is that this should in fact do it. As the base of the community expands we will be able to meet the needs with the 25 cents. . .Chino has developed only 25 per cent now of its expected expansion to the year 2000. It would be foolhardy for the city to totally build facilities for the year 1973. So it has to be a phased project. Within our best knowledge now this will be it," replied Fast.

Eileen Carter, president of the citizens committee for promotion of the override election, distributed cards to the businessmen for endorsements and donations. She reported that Sunday was the deadline for registering to vote.

Claremont to enroll in recreation classes

SAN DIMAS — Registration will be taken Tuesday from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. at City Hall for fee and charge classes for the fall, winter and spring recreation programs.

Instruction will be given in ballet, ballroom, folk, modern jazz, tap, polynesian and square dancing, acrobatics, backpacking, baton, children's theater, dog obedience, guitar, painting, sing and dance, sketching, ski, slim and trim and tennis.

People of Hungary determined to keep faith alive--Mindzenty

MONTREAL (UPI) —Cardinal Joseph Mindzenty is 82 years old. He has spent 23 of them either behind bars or in hiding.

In Montreal this week, on the first leg of his North American tour, the primate of Hungary spoke about the "undying determination of the Hungarian people," with the personal determination of a man who has been alternately jailed and persecuted, first by the Nazis in World War II, then by Hungarian Communists.

"Even though our priests and our sisters have been expelled from Hungary, and mental patients and other needy people go without the care of the church, the undying determination of the Hungarian people has allowed them to keep the faith alive," the cardinal said.

Asked if he could compare the Russian invasion of Hungary in 1956 to the recent military coup in Chile, Mindszenty replied, "I do not wish to make comparisons between world situations.

"But the ravages of the Second World War, in which the great powers sought to put an end to colonialism, were followed by an equally disastrous peace in which 120 million people in central and eastern Europe were sold into the worst form of colonial repression possible."

Mindszenty's slightly tanned face is bright, and his eyes clear and piercing. He likes to point and make emphatic gestures as he speaks —more than two decades of persecution seem to have left no mark on him.

His sermons to his Hungarian congregations —one of the reasons he was persecuted — repeated again and again man's right to "freedom of religious life and education, the right of political self-determination for the Hungarian people and dignity of the human person."

Wednesday he reiterated these "basic rights of man," and called the Hungarian government a "regime led by hatred," with the equanimity of a man who feels no hatred himself.

Mindszenty, the son of a Hungarian farmer, was arrested first by the Nazis in 1944 and jailed until the end of the war for running an underground railroad for Hungarian refugees.

Shortly after his liberation he was appointed primate of Hungary, but only three years later on Dec. 26, 1948, he was arrested by the Hungarian Communist government and sentenced to life imprisonment for "activities against the state" —running another underground railroad for refugeees from Communist purges.

He remained in prison until 1956 when he was liberated in the abortive revolution against the Communist regime. When Russian forces crushed the insurrection, he took refuge in the American embassy in Budapest, where he remained in total isolation until September of 1971.

At that time, the Vatican reached an agreement for Mindszenty's safe conduct out of Hungary, and he left his room in the American embassy, home for 15 years, to take residence in Vienna.

Finally, a free man, Mindszenty wrote his memoirs dealing with the difficult years of his enforced seclusion and the charges of the Hungarian regime. They are scheduled to be published next year.

The Hungarian ambassador to Italy has protested to the Vatican, saying the memoirs publication is against the agreement made for Mindszenty's release.

Asked about the protest Mindzenty's said "every man has a right to defend himself when he is attacked. I think even a cardinal has the same right."

Other stops in his tour of Canada, before he goes on to the United States, will be Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A government-sponsored entertainment program, intended to raise money for a cultural center, ended as a $30,000 financial failure.

The Southeast Community Cultural Center spent $70,000 to stage a gospel and rock concert recently at Candlestick Park and took in just $40,000 at the gate, Charles Countee, an official of the Model Cities Program, said Tuesday.

"We don't judge the success of this sort of thing in terms of money alone," he added, saying that those who did attend had a "lot of fun."

A weak promotional effort and a ticket price of $6.50 appeared to have resulted in the poor sale although the show had such stars as Ike and Tina Turner.

The center spent $21,600 renting the stadium and hiring guards, $32,000 for artists' fees and $16,400 for advertising.

Opposite sex dress ban struck down

CHICAGO (UPI) — Citing the violation of the equal protection provisions of the United States Constitution, a youth court judge Thursday struck down an ordinance forbidding persons from wearing the clothing of the other sex in public.

Judge Jack I. Sperling knocked down the 1943 statute in dismissing charges against four youths accused of violating the statute.

Sperling said "I take very seriously my responsibility to rule on constitutional matters. Where this may be a matter of laughter to some people it is a very serious matter to these defendants. I very much want a decision to be made by a higher court, because this could become a landmark case.

Sperling said his ruling would warn police not to bring such cases to his courtroom.

"We're concerned with serious crimes here—murder, rape, aggravated battery. I don't believe cases like this should be in the courts at law. We don't care whether a person wears lipstick or rouge on their face or what the person's style of clothing or hairdo might be," he said.

Authorities said the four defendants, ranging in age from 17 to 20, were arrested when they entered a police station dressed in women's clothing to file a complaint about a beating in a bar.

A spokesman for the defendants said the youths filed the complaint after they were accosted by patrons and employes of a South Side tavern when they entered the bar dressed in miniskirts.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Arthur Mooradian said no decision was immediately made on whether to appeal the ruling, but he said the decision could be overturned by another judge ruling in a similar case or through an appeal to a higher court.

Police seek identity of body in car

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Police are seeking to identify the murder victim found in the blood-spattered trunk of an abandoned car about 15 miles north of this gambling center.

Officers said Anthony Thompson of North Las Vegas was target shooting about a half mile west of the Apex turnoff near Interstate 15 when he sighted the vehicle.

The trunk of the 1955 Buick was partially opened. When Thompson investigated he found the body of a man covered with blood.

The victim, described as a white male in his 30s, apparently had been dead longer than 48 hours, officers said.

Thompson said the car which contained the body was in the same area as long as a month ago. Thompson said previously the abandoned vehicle was turned upside down in the desert area.

Rattles & straws

Make love, not war

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

I'm certainly glad the war is over and that we won.

Many people are not aware of it, but the United States of America was at war with the Sovereign County of Forgotonia recently, and after a spirited exchange of public relations bulletins, the enemy nation surrendered. Not only surrendered but vanished. Neatest trick of the week.

Forgotonia was the proposed 51st state of the Union, a loose amalgam of 16 western Illinois counties miffed because they weren't getting their share of federal funds for roads and recreation. The farmers figured if they united and marched on the state captial with harvesters and combines, they would be defeated and regarded as an—er, defeated nation and given all sorts of loans and war surplus pitchforks.

"Why shouldn't we surrender?" asked Neal Gamm, self-appointed governor of the would-be state. "Look what happened to the Japanese and German economies."

(Something in what the chap says, you must admit. Here are our two bitter, unconditional-surrender enemies booming with our aid and support, prospering, flourishing—while our recent Allies, England and France, are postively floundering.)

The nonwar started (and ended) in Concord, Ill. last week when Gamm fired a ceremonial shot. Whether he hit anything or not, the press reports did not make clear. After the opening barrage, he handed out a mimeographed release announcing the armistice, truce, terms of the surrender and bid for a foreign loan.

"After the stalemate in Korea and the disaster in Vietnam we decided the United States needed a clearcut victory, so we surrendered," Gamm said. Certainly lucky for us. If the world's most powerful nation can't subdue a passel of Orientals, I hate to think of them taking on the farmers, insurance salesmen and used-car dealers of western Illinois.

Sure, our ROTC boys would race into the wheatfields and pasturelands, shoot a few cows, capture a barn or two, and make out with the farmers' daughters, but it might be another case of bury my knee at Wounded Heart. "Here once the embattled farmers stood . . ." That was Concord, too, if my eighth grade American history course is to be credited.

Anyway, I'm glad the war is over and we got the boys out of the irrigation ditches by Christmas. Illinois can have its "reconstruction funds" and the ROTC chaps from Southern Illinois University won't have to miss the homecoming game.

It was a beautiful war while it lasted.

Should she tell folks about Luke?

By JEAN ADAMS

LUKE: (Q.) I don't know how or whether to tell my parents about Luke. We only see each other about twice a week, and it's so hard to say goodby each time.

My parents think I am too young to even date. Seeing Luke is more than just a date to me. It is everything. Please help me.—15 in Virginia

(A.) Meeting Luke secretly is making you feel guilty. And if you keep on doing so it may lead to something much worse than guilt feelings.

Tell your parents about him. Ask them to meet him. They may like him as much as you do, but in a different way. Ask them to let him visit you at home until they think you are old enough to go out with him.

What I am suggesting is the positive, honest way for you and Luke. The road you are now taking is negative and dangerous.

INTRUDER: (Q.) My brother can't leave my things alone. He plays my records on my stereo without my permission. He ruins or loses the records. He takes his friends into my room and shows off.

He takes anything he wants and loses it, ruins it or uses it half up. How can I make him stop? He is 8. I am 14.—Bothered Brother in Massachusetts

(A.) You say nothing about your parents. To insist that they help you cope with your bothersome little brother wouldn't be either tattling or behaving in an unmanly manner.

Lay all the facts on the table for them and ask them to set up some rules that will keep your brother out of your room and away from your possessions except with your permission.

Political defeat led to Agnew's rise to present post of Vice President

By United Press International

Spiro Theodore Agnew could be hearing divorce cases in a Maryland county court instead of holding the nation's No. 2 job as vice president—if he had won the only election he ever lost.

Twenty years ago, Agnew was defeated in a race for judge. The loss carried him into a political career based on crusading that eventually hurtled him from local office to within a heartbeat of the presidency in three years.

Agnew's rise in the rough-hand-tumble world of Maryland politics led to a struggle in his second term. A federal grand jury, examining political corruption —especially kickbacks paid by state contractors and consultants to elected officials —asked Agnew for personal financial records while he was governor of Maryland.

Give records

Agnew gave U.S. Attorney George Beall his bank books and other records, but he and many of his close friends and political supporters were accused of irregularities in news stories with little attribution. It was hinted that Agnew would be indicted. He reacted by proclaiming his innocence and vowing to fight.

Then, in another unattributed story, The Washington Post reported that Agnew had discussed resigning with a 'senior Republican' who tried to talk him out of it. Agnew would not respond —"it's not my practice to comment on stories from undisclosed sources," he said —and some of his friends felt the story was leaked by the White House.

To quit would imply guilt, said his press secretary, J. Marsh Thomson. "He's not a quitter. What would he do without a base of power? It would be a foolish move from one who is determined to win."

Agnew's criticism of the media, their "instant analysis" of presidential speeches and unattributed stories which led to the revelations of the Watergate scandal changed him from the "Spiro Who" that greeted him on his nomination and made him one of the most controversial —and well known —vice presidents in years. He was considered a contender for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination and it was not known whether the allegations of political illegality in Maryland hurt his chances.

Spiro Agnew's beginnings were humble—the son of an immigrant Greek restaurant owner named Theodore S. Anagnostpoulos. He married brunette Elinor Isabel Judefind in 1942, after dropping out of Johns Hopkins University to fight with the Army in World War II. On his return, Agnew worked his way through night law school at Baltimore University.

The young lawyer became a Baltimore County official in 1958, and won his first elective office, county executive, four years later in his first crusade.

Baltimore County was a Democratic stronghold, but despite its GOP minority, Agnew was elected. In 1936, Agnew was again running against the odds. But a split in the Democratic party put him in a three-way race and he won the governor's mansion.

When Richard M. Nixon set his sights on the 1968 GOP nomination for president, Agnew, who had originally backed Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, switched his support to Nixon and Nixon had fixed on Agnew as his surprise running mate.

Brazil road workers

How to meet Indians related in booklet

The 10-page booklet, illustrated with simple photographs, is part of the National Indian Foundation's (FUNAI) campaign to lessen the negative impact of a new Amazon region road on the estimated 20,000 Indians whose lands it will bisect.

The "Northern Perimeter," as the road is called, will run for more than 3,125 miles along Brazil's northern and western borders. Most of the Indians in the region have never had contact with civilization before.

Learned things

FUNAI Vice President Gen. Ismarth Oliveira said, "We learned some things during the construction of the Transamazonic Highway that we want to avoid this time".

FUNAI's responsibility during the road-building phase runs for 65 miles on either side of the construction line.

There will be FUNAI workers accompanying the construction crews to give advice as well as handle most direct contacts with tribes that are discovered.

Nevertheless, FUNAI recognizes that many of the road builders, who are often illiterate, will be coming into independent cohtact and thus the booklet.

Incidents during the building of the Transamazonic Road included several armed encounters. One road worker was wounded in the chest with an arrow.

The booklet the construction workers will receive is written in extremely simple language. Examples of the advice:

—Respect. "It is possible that the Indians will make a friendly visit to your camp. On these occasions they come accompanied by their women and children. But they also are very jealous of their wives. Because of this, do not stare at the Indian women and talk only with the men."

...s defense

—Vaccinate yourself. "The Indian does not possess defense organisms against civilized diseases. You should therefore be vaccinated."

—Do not hunt. "The Indian has a need for his land and does not like the presence of strangers without his permission. Therefore, do not venture into the jungle to hunt. That is the Indian's last way of getting food."

—Understand. "If during a visit to your camp the Indians begin taking away tools, food, etc., do not impede them. They might not understand your attitude and become irritated. Keep all topographic instruments and other valuable equipment in closed boxes."

—Be calm. "If by chance an unfriendly encounter with the Indians takes place, don't strike back. Indians are by nature a gentle people and many times they are only testing the courage of the civilized man. If you strike back, the consequences can be worse.

—Clothing and disease. "Do not give clothing to Indians. Without knowing it, you may transmit some disease. A simple cold can provoke the death of many indians in a tribe."

Fight military

Diplomat says Chile won't accept coup

ROME (UPI) —The ambassador to Italy of former Chilean President Salvador Allende predicted today that millions of Chileans "will not accept the imposition of an ignominious tyranny" and will fight the military men who toppled Allende.

Ambassador Carlos Vassallo Rojas denounced the army coup in a statement at the airport where he met a group of Chilean leftwing politicians who flew in from Moscow.

Vassallo, who said last week he would refuse to leave his post unless and until Italy recognizes the military junta, declined further comment on his own position.

"On a day when the flag of our fatherland flies at half mast because of the tragedy hitting thousands of Chilean families, we are certain that... millions of citizens will not accept the imposition of an ignominious tyranny and that, inspired by the heroic sacrifice of President Allende, they will not give up the fight to defend out natural wealth and bring back to Chile legality, democracy and freedom," Vassallo said.

He said he canceled celebrations of today's 163rd anniversary of Chile's independence because "a day of rejoicing has turned this year into a day of national mourning. The democratic regime of Chile, the pride of the national and an example to Latin America, after more than 150 years of stability.

Russian art historian bares threat

MOSCOW (UPI) -- A Soviet art historian said that the secret police have threatened to jail him for sending manuscripts to the West.

In an outspoken statement in which he admitted sending underground articles, photos and poems to the West, historian Yevgeny Barabanov defended his action in the name of human freedoms.

"The West granted the sole opportunity to save these documents and preserve them from physical extermination." the 29-year-old art specialist said in a statement sent to Western newsmen.

Barabanov said the KGB, the Soviet secret police, searched his apartment Aug. 24 and called him in for questioning three days later.

You don't duck in grand slam

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Eric Murray and Sammy Kehela of Toronto are one of the best pairs in the world. Today's hand shows them playing against one another in a mixed pair event.

Sammy found himself on lead agains Eric's seven no-trump contract and opened the king of diamond just as any expert or beginner would.

Eric looked at dummy for a couple of seconds, showed my his hand and asked, "Do I make it or am I down one?"

It took Sammy even less time to reply, "Yes, you make it."

He put his hand back on the board, but East wasn't satisfied and wanted Eric to play it out.

There was nothing to the play. Sammy's lead had marked him with the queen of diamonds. Eric would win the first trick with dummy's ace of diamonds. You don't duck when in a grand slam.

Then he would cash dummy's ace of spades and proceed to run off all the hearts and clubs. This would leave him with two cards. Sammy would have to come down to two cards also. One would be the queen of diamonds; the other a spade.

The play wouldn't work if East held three spades. In that case Sammy would have told Eric he was down one.

TURLOCK, Calif. (UPI) — Mayor Enoch Christofferson, who has not missed a City Council meeting in his 17 years at the post, kept his record in tact even though he had to fly half way around the world to do it.

The mayor, in Edinburgh, Scotland for the Full Gospel Businessmens' Association, flew from Great Britain to Los Angeles on a Polar flight Tuesday and then caught a B & B Flying Service flight to Turlock, arriving with two hours to spare before the council session.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Tony Perez slugged a three-run homer in the top of the 10th inning Friday night, his fifth hit of the game, to break a 1-1 tie and send the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The victory increased Cincinnati's lead in the National League West to 5½ games with seven remaining.

Phil Gagliano led off the 10th inning with a bunt single and Charlie Hough replaced starter Claude Osteen. With one out, Joe Morgan singled and Perez, who went 5-for-5, hit his 25th homer into the left field stands.

The Dodgers scored in the second inning when starter Jack Billingham gave up a pair of walks and Von Joshua's ground rule double drove in Willie Crawford. The lead stood up until the ninth when George Foster led off with a home run to send the contest into extra innings.

Osteen was charged with the loss to make his record 16-11. It was his fifth straight defeat since Aug. 28.

Tom Hall, who took over for Billingham in the seventh inning, gained the victory in relief to make his mark 8-5.

WOLF AT THE DOOR

Claremont High halfback Joe Hillstock darts through the Bonita defensive backfield Friday night on the Citrus College field. Despite Hillstock's footwork, Bonita avenged last year's loss to the Wolfpack with a 14-0 victory in the season opener for both schools

Bonita defense stifles Wolfpack

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

AZUSA — A light is finally glimmering at the end of Pete Lopez' tunnel.

The second-year Bonita High head football coach has spent the off-season living with the memory of seven losses. His Bearcats erased one of the bigger memories off the ledger Friday night at Citrus College.

Two touchdown runs by Richard Ortega gave a consistently impressive Bonita defense all the scoring it needed to guarantee a shutout victory over the defending San Antonio League champion Claremont Wolfpack, 14-0.

It may not have been the same old Wolfpack that was beaten Friday, but by the same token it was not the same old Green Machine that got kicked around a year ago.

Claremont coach Esper Keiser brought a squad to Friday's game that for the most part had not earned its letter yet. That was the exact situation Lopez faced in '72.

Despite a strong game from 'Pack running back Joe Hillstock, the Bearcats consistently denied Claremont access to the end zone.

The first act of defensive heroism coincided with the first Claremont possession. Quarterback Kent Stalwick had the Wolves on the move after the opening kickoff and was on the Bonita 47. A third-down pitchout was knocked awry by a hand sticking out of a crowd of Bearcats, and sophomore Scott Johnson fell on the rolling football on the Claremont 38.

Claremont's Curt Vonder Reith recovered a Bonita fumble a few minutes later, but the mold for the game was set.

The two squads wrestled around for the remainder of the first quarter, but Bonita's junior quarterback Harold Drake got a drive put together on his second possession of the next 12 minutes.

Starting from his own 43, Drake alternated between Ortega, Bob Rees, and himself on the ground before Ortega plunged in from one yard out for the first score of the game. Drake made the biggest gain of the drive on a 13-yard keeper. After gaining the 'Pack 24, Reese made a pair of nine-yarders, and a short one-yard gain to get to the five.

Drake carried twice to set up Ortega's TD, and then kicked the extra point.

Stalwick got Claremont dangerously close in the third period. Moving from his own 38, Stalwick hit Matt Weinberg with an 18 yard pass, and Hillstock contributed an 11-yarder on the ground. The 'Pack was on the Bearcat 22 before the defense stiffened and stalled the drive.

Lopez didn't start breathing easier until early in the fourth quarter when Ortega put the game on ice, breaking off a spectacular 29-yard touchdown run.

Claremont was in the middle of a desperation drive within the Bonita ten when the final gun went off.

A similar drive had failed at the end of the first half when defensive back Marty Schroedter picked off a Stalwick pass on the Bonita five.

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

LA VERNE— San Dimas continues to be amazing in its season openers.

The Saints, who stunned the valley with a 33-27 upset over Damien in the season opener last year, did it again Friday night.

A 23-yard field goal by quarterback-place kicker Dave Maloof in the first quarter, and a three-yard run by running back Jerry Levreau in the fourth gave the amazing Saints a 10-7 win over favored Damien in the 1973 season opener.

Not only did the San Dimas victory make it two in a row over the Spartans in the openers, but it also spoiled Damien's opening night in its newly lit stadium and ruined Spartan coach Ron Smedley's debut at the parochial school.

The winning touchdown came with a little under seven minutes remaining in the game, after the Saints were given a little life following a Damien pass interception.

San Dimas started the drive on Damien's 29 yard line after the Spartans were forced into a bad punt.

Minutes later, Maloof connected with his tight end John Brahs for 28 yards to put the ball on the one yard line. But a five-yard penalty pushed San Dimas back to the six, and it looked as though the Saints would have to settle for its second field goal.

On the fourth-down play, San Dimas coach Bob Baiz went for broke and had Maloof go for a pass in the end zone.

The pass dropped incomplete, but accompanying the incompletion was a red flag charging Damien with pass interference.

The penalty gave the Saints the ball on the three yard line with a first down. And on the first play, Levreau plunged over the goal line.

Starting at their own 48 yard line, the Spartans moved down to within the 30 yard line in San Dimas territory. But Saint defensive back Jim Richards picked off a Damien pass to give San Dimas possession at its own 30 yard line with only a minute and ten seconds left in the game.

Right then it looked as if the Saints had wrapped it up, but Damien wasn't through. A San Dimas fumble on its own 38 yard line with 34 seconds remaining gave the Spartans another shot at pulling off a come-from-behind victory.

Smedley sent in Larry Pekarcik in hopes his pass accuracy could get another six points for Damien. But there wasn't enough time on the clock as Pekarcik threw for only one completion.

Neither team could really do any damage for the first 18 minutes of the first half.

San Dimas started a drive on its own 33 yard line and marched to the Damien 13 before fumbling the ball to the Spartan defense.

The key play on the drive came when Maloof connected with Brahs for a 30-yard pass play to put the ball deep in Spartan territory.

Damien, taking over on its own 13 after Tony Allen recovered the fumble, failed to move the ball and was forced to punt after four downs.

Vikings, Brea play to 20-20 tie

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

BREA — The Garey Vikings were fit to be tied Friday night at Brea-Olinda High School—and that's exactly what happened, as the host Wildcats scored a last-minute touchdown to leave the 1973 opener for both clubs in a 20-20 standstill.

The game also marked the coaching debut for Garey's Lawson Bush and, as promised, the Vikings this season will be a more exciting club to watch.

Specifically, the game featured the fine running of speedster Derrick Daley, who scored two TD's for Garey; a tremendous performance by defensive middle guard John Jones, who was constantly wrapping his arms around the Wildcat ball carrier; and the "do-a little-bit-of-everything" style by Scott Roque (rhymes with croquet) who handled the quarterbacking job, did all the kicking and also threw the Brea quarterback for major losses on four occasions from his defensive end position.

Garey, which suffered a 26-7 opening defeat against Brea last season, started quickly Friday as sophomore Stanley Webster sprinted around left end, broke a tackle at the line of scrimmage and then raced 75 yards to a score, the first time he handled the ball in high school. The game was just 54 seconds old but already people could see the speed that had been advertised on the Garey squad.

One of the most glaring Viking weaknesses also came to light at this moment—the lack of a strong kicking game, as Roque's extra point was low.

Brea, whose strongest point is the kicing game, pulled ahead on a 27 yard field goal by all-CIF performer David Donk, and a 4-yard scoring pass which was set up when Roque suffered his first of three interceptions.

But following the touchdown, Daley started the Brea fans by taking Donk's kickoff on the five, slipping slightly on his takeoff, and then slipping through the entire Brea team for a 95-yard scoring scamper which gave Garey the lead at the half, 12-10. This, despite the fact that the Vikings had only two first downs in the opening 24 minutes.

The third big play for Garey came in the middle of the third period after Greg Johnson recovered a loose ball for the Vikings. On a second and one situation at the Wildcat 24, Roque crossed up the defense by using Daley on a quick pitch reverse with the senior speedster dodging the only man in his path for the score.

The only extra point for Garey turned out to be an important one as Dana Hutchison ran over for two points, giving Garey a 20-10 lead.

But from there on it was a matter of trying to hold on, and the Vikings couldn't quite do it as Donk connected again from the 32 and then with 40 seconds remaining, Steve Seeba, the hard running fullback for B-O smelled the goal line and rammed over from the two with Donk's extra point knotting the score.

MIAMI (UPI) —Three Texas fumbles led to three touchdown plunges by junior tailback Woody Thompson Friday night and the upstart Miami Hurricanes upset the fifth-ranked Longhorns, 20-15.

In addition to all the Miami scoring coming off drives that began with recovered fumbles, a last-ditch Longhorn drive died when quarterback Marty Akins fumbled.

Miami rolled to a 20-6 third quarter lead on touchdown bursts of one, eight and one yards by the 214-pound Thompson. Fiery Hurricane quarterback Coy Hall engineered the marches.

UCLA wants redemption against Iowa

LOS ANGELES — When the Big Ten and Pacific-8 Conferences get together in football, it is either in the Rose Bowl or an important intersectional test.

Well, tonight at 7:30 before some 35,000 to 40,000 fans Iowa and UCLA hook up in a crucial early-season meeting in the Los Angeles Coliseum for both the visiting Hawkeyes and host Bruins.

The Bruins hope to redeem themselves for their disappointing 40-13 opening loss to Nebraska two weeks ago; ditto for the Hawks following their inaugural 31-7 setback to Michigan last week.

Both coaches, UCLA's Pepper Rodgers and Iowa's Frank X. Lauterbur, have indicated earlier this week that they have high hopes their respective teams have re-grouped and are ready for improved performances.

The Bruins are the solid favorites, but the underdog Hawkeyes have lots of incentives to put together a big one, including the prime objective of beating UCLA for the first time ever. They've met four times previously, with their last meeting coming 18 years ago in 1955 when the Bruins won to give them a 4-0 series lead.

Both teams hope to come up with more balanced attacks than they flashed in their openers. Iowa outpassed Michigan, 115 yards to 35, but couldn't contain the Michigan backs who netted 440 yards to only 118 for the Hawks.

The Bruins' powerful Wishbone ground game netted 251 yards to 324 for Nebraska. But their passing attack is expected to be much better tonight than their 2 of 9 for only 20 yards against the Huskers.

In other words, the Hawks have been working on their running game, the Bruins on their aerial attack. Iowa's big rushing threat is fullback Phil Hayman, who averaged 6.4 yards per carry against Michigan.

As for the Bruins, quarterbacks Mark Harmon and John Sciarra have been passing well in practice while Kermit Johnson and James McAlister, of course, are two exceptional running backs. The former averaged 8.2 yards against the Cornhuskers, including one for 43 yards; the latter 3.7 per carry even though the Huskers keyed on him all day long.

Giant Wishbone rips Azusa, 25-7

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Ganesha High, running from a Wishbone-T offense, slashed Azusa, 25-7, Friday night in the season opener at Cal Poly University.

The Giants of head coach Garry Norvell ripped the Aztecs for 248 yards on the ground, and an additional 64 through the air, including two touchdown passes from quarterback Tracy Cowger.

It was a fine opening for the Giants, who are early season favorites to win the San Antonio League title.

With a lean and mean offensive line opening holes in the Aztec forward wall, running backs Jim Maniaci, Ron Jacques, Rick Sanders and Rob Garrish chopped out chunks of real estate enroute to the victory.

"I didn't think we looked too bad for an opener," said Norvell. I hadn't planned on doing much passing, but it worked pretty well, didn't it?"

Maniaci was the leading ground gainer, carrying 10 times for 93 yards and a touchdown — the first score of the evening, with 0:59 left in the first period.

Jacques set it up with a 42 yard run from the Giant 28 to the Aztec 30. Maniaci got the call on the next play and he took it in from there. Dave Segura booted the extra point.

On the first play from scrimmage following the kickoff, the Giants had the ball again at the Azusa 32 on a fumble recovery.

The Giants moved on the ground to a first down at the 20, where Cowger threw his first pass of the evening, complete to Brian Thornbaugh, who took it into the end zone for a touchdown, and a 13-0 lead.

Ganesha iced it in the third quarter, running, and passing when it had to, on the first series of the second half.

Cowger clicked with Paul Madrigal for 36-yard gain through the air, and Maniaci churned for 16 on the ground to set up Cowger for a four-yard touchdown pass to Cameron Rawlings on a fourth and goal situation.

The drive used up almost half of the third period, and the 19-point lead looked better than healthy.

The Giants added an insurance score midway through the fourth period, as fullback Nick Petersen and Sanders threw key blocks for sophomore Rob Garrish, who scampered down the north sidelines, 35 yards for a TD with 7:32 left in the game.

Azusa took advantage of a Ganesha fumble to set up Jeff Snyder's two-yard TD run with 3:07 remaining. Keith Potts kicked the point to make it 25-7.

McKay claims spread, 'wrong'

ATLANTA (UPI) —Southern Cal Coach John McKay has been trying to convince his topranked Trojans that the oddsmaker was wrong when he made them 21-point favorites for today's game with Georgia Tech.

"Georgia Tech should be much better than Arkansas (17-0) loser to Southern Cal)," McKay insists. "Even though they got off to a bad start against South Carolina (which beat Tech 41-28), I would be surprised if they are not one of the better teams in the country by the time the season ends."

McKay also insists that Atlanta weather may be in Tech's favor.

Walnut uses aerial attack for 30-24 win

By TOM FAHEY
P-B Correspondent

LA PUENTE — The Walnut Mustangs used a devastating aerial attack to defeat the Nogales Nobles, 30-24, Friday night at Nogales, in the season's opener for both.

Lance Parrish piloted the Mustang attack completing 18 of 36 passes for 325 yards and five touchdowns. Most of his passing came in the wild first half when he threw for 237 yards.

Nogales set the stage for the evening on their first play from scrimmage. Noble quarterback Walt Stahl hurled a 41-yard touchdown pass to Napolean Sparks.

Walnut however was not to be outdone and came back in a blitzkriege. Parrish started hitting on his passes, and as a result, the Mustang marched down the field with ease.

Parrish hurled a 20-yard pass to Kirk Christ on a fourth-and-goal situation to ignite the Mustang attack. From then on, the ball was always to be found in the air whether it be Walnut's or Nogales'.

Tight-end Mike Pfeil found out what it was like to score as he caught his first three receptions for touchdowns of 56, 46 and 8 yards respectively.

Nogales quarterback Walt Stahl also had a productive night, tossing for 239 yards, although he was only 9 for 24.

The fact that it was the first game for both teams was quite evident as 155 yards worth of penalties were called, 75 for the Nobles, and 80 for the Mustangs.

Walnut also fumbled twice and threw away four interceptions. The Nogales offense was responsible for four fumbles and three interceptions, two by Mustang Linton Nolan.

Huskies trip Chino

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Correspondent

CHINO —South Hills High converted two critical penalties to score a fourth-quarter touchdown, breaking open a tight 7-6 defensive battle and paving the way to a 21-6 victory over Chino High here Friday.

Lady Luck play a major role in the season's opener for both schools, as fumble recoveries set up the two first hall scores. Cowboy quarterback Jerry Belmudes fumbled on the second play from scrimmage in the game, and Huskie lineman Mark Vargas pounced on the loose ball. South Hills signal caller Brian Bethke struck pay dirt in a hurry, as he lofted a 25-yard scoring strike to wide receiver Rex Fehr, Bethke's coversion giving the Huskies a quick 7-0 lead.

Chino had some trouble getting its' offense untracked, but got a break of its own when Scott Richartz recovered a Huskie fumble on the Huskie 16 on the last play of the 1st quarter.

A running play lost a yard for the Cowboys, but on the next play quarterback Belmudes found running back Rick Riedel in the open and hit him for a 17-yard TD. Stan Surina's PAT attempt was wide, but Chino's defense held and the Cowboys went into the locker room down by a slim 7-6 margin.

Both defensive units played tough in the third quarter, South Hills losing its only scoring chance when Mark Roberts of the Cowboys recovered a Huskie miscue after South Hills had penetrated inside the Chino 20-yard line.

South Hills cashed in two big fourth-down penalty calls against Chino to finally break open the defensive struggle in the final quarter. After it looked like the spirited Cowboy defense has stopped the Huskies on the 40, a roughing the punter infraction gave South Hills new life on the Cowboy 25.

Once again the Chino defense stiffened, but on fourth down a pass interference call gave the Huskies the ball first and goal at the three. From there quarterback Bethke punched it across in two tries, the missed PAT leaving the court at 13-6.

Huskie John Bates closed out any hopes of a Cowboy comeback with his twisting 85-yard punt return for a TD late in the last quarter. Bethke and receiver Fehr teamed up for a two point conversion on a pass play to close out the scoring for the evening at 21-6.

Glendora nips Upland in final 21 seconds

"We beat ouselves with penalties," said Upland coach Bob Holycross after the Highlanders had dropped a close 21-14 decision to Glendora Friday night.

Glendora's Tom Reck scored on a 21-yard pass from quarterback Tim Hopkins with 21 seconds left in the game to spoil Upland's 1973 grid debut.

The Highlanders jumped off to a 14-0 first period lead on touchdown runs of one and two yards by Jim Christensen and Mark White, respectively. Dean Kawasaki added the extra points.

Upland was still holding its 14-point advantage when Glendora erupted for a pair of scores in the third stanza.

Halfback Joe Baldwin tallied on a 44 yard run and Reck and another six-pointer on a 52 yard pass from Hopkins. Jim McCadden added the PAT's to knot the game at 14-all late in the third period.

End Russ Feaster recovered two Glendora fumbles for a lot on defense for Upland. and.

Ontario Christian made its 11-man football debut a success Friday night as the Knights downed the California School of Deaf in Riverside 14-6.

Jim Van Hofwegen scored two first touchdowns on a run of 55-yard and a nine-yard scoring pass from quarterback Bob Miersma to lead OCHS and head coach Ed Werkhoven to the win.

Chaffey High started the campaign on a bright note with a 15-14 win over Anaheim at Graber Field Friday night.

Christensen, in completing five of 13 passes for 91-yards, connected on six-pointers to Don Warren (2 yards), Ron Schweinsberg (13 yards) and Marcus Monson (3 yards).

Don Hall led Roman rushers in accumulating 110 yards on carries while Christensen added 21 yards on the ground.

Penn State faces former assistant

By United Press International

"George Welsh had as much to do with the success of the Penn State football program as anyone."

The man who made that statement was Joe Paterno, Penn State head coach. He was talking about his longtime assistant who was leaving. And ordinarily, those words probably would make George Welsh feel a great sense of pride— except that this weekend he may have to eat his old boss' praise.

Welsh, you see, left Penn State last spring to return to the Naval Academy where he still ranks as one of the greatest players in Annapolis history. And last week, as his Middies were opening up his initial season as head coach with a 37-8 whipping of VMI, it almost seemed like 1955 again— the year that quarterback Welsh directed Navy to a 6-2-1 record and a 21-0 win over Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl.

Unfortunately, however, VMI isn't Mississippi and 1973 isn't 1955. And Penn State is coming to Annapolis this weekend just in time to show Welsh how much he did for Paterno's program at University Park. The oddsmakers like Penn State by three touchdowns.

Elsewhere around the country, top ranked Southern California is a 24-point pick over Georgia Tech, No. 2 Nebraska is favored by 21 over 16th-ranked North Carolina State in an interesting inter-comference matchup, No. 4 Alabama is a 24-point choice over Kentucky, No. 6 Michigan is rated 21 over Stanford, No. 9 LSU is listed 17 over Texas A&M and No. 10 Tennessee is likewise rated 17 over Army.

Welsh, who served as Paterno's backfield coach at Penn State for six years and had a hand in developing the likes of ex-Nittany Lion standouts as Franco Harris, Lydell Mitchell, John Hufnagel and Charlie Pittman, is well-acquainted with Paterno's latest edition which opened up last week by sacking Stanford 20-6 on the west coast.

Of particular concern to Welsh will be fullback John Cappelletti, who scored two touchdowns against Stanford and is expected to receive a lot of attention from the All America selectors this year.

Welsh has a back to matcm Cappelletti though. That would be Cleveland Cooper, the 5-foot10 speedsters who broke all of Joe Bellino's one-year Academy rushing marks last season. Cooper ran for 172 yards against VMI and scored two touchdowns to earn a piace on UPI's backfield of the week.

Sadly, Welsh does not have a quarterback of the calibre of George Welsh. Fred Stuvek, the first string signal caller for Navy for two years, is still out with an ankle injury, leaving the job to Al Glenny, who performed better than adequately against VMI while Cooper was running wild.

No doubt, should Penn State's always-stingy defense led by linebacker John Skorupan (who scored the final TD against Stanford with a 32-yard interception) begin to wear down the Middies along about midafternoon as the oddsmakers predict, Welsh will indeed remember one particular day in that 1955 season. That was Oct. 15 and Navy beat Penn State 34-14 as Welsh passed for 285 yards, completing 15 of 20 attempts.

Hand wins for Angels over Texas

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) California's Rich Hand allowed his former Texas teammates just four hits in seven inning Friday and got relief help from Aurelio Monteagudo to hand the Rangers their 100th defeat of the season, 6-1.

Hand, traded to California in May, got two run-scoring doubles by Bob Oliver in pushing his season's record to [illegible] Hand allowed Ranger runners no farther than second base through seven innings but was hited in the eighth when Alex Johnson and Bill Sudakis got back-to-back hits. Johnson scored on Monteagudo's wild pitch after the reliever had gotten the first two outs.

Ironically, opposing pitcher Dave Clyde pitched the farthest he had all season but lost for the first time to the [illegible] who he had beaten twice. He was pulled with two out in the ninth inning after Oliver's second double and had his record drop to 4-7.

California backed Hand with three runs in the first three innings and came back for three more in the ninth. Second baseman Bill Parker rapped a run-scoring double in the second, and Oliver doubled in another in the third after Frank Robinson's fielder's choice drove home Mickey Rivers.

POMONA — Sledge Stable's Eagle In Flight, four-to-five in the wagering, ended a long streak of losing favorites by scoring a hard-earned victory in the $11,075 Beau Brummel Stakes Friday.

With jockey Ismael Valenzuela getting his first stakes win ever at the half-mile oval, Eagle In Flight hit the wire a length in front of the speedy Port Of the Sea. Another length back at the wire was Five Crowns. Final time was 1.11 3-5.

Eagle In Flight paid $3.80, $2.80 and $2.20 to give relief to the favorite players who had seen six straight public choices—five of them less than even money—go down to defeat. The favorites in the Appaloosa and quarter horse races also were unsuccessful.

Port of the Sea, the second choice, paid $3.40 and $2.80, and Five Crowns returned $3.60 to his backers in the crowd of 8,663.

Port of the Sea, starting from the outside post, broke to the outside coming from the gate but had enough speed to take the lead going to the first turn.

Valenzuela moved Eagle In Flight up on Port of the Sea's flank in the run down the backstretch and then raced him into defeat in the final quarter-mile.

Five Crowns, still looking for the first win of his career, ran a powerful race as he was forced very wide on the first turn and then closed several lengths in the last quarter.

The odds-on choices who couldn't find the winner's circle were Irish Mafia (second at 3-5), Ann of Loveridge (second at 1-5), Roman Envoy (second at 4-5) winner but disqualified and placed third at 4-5, Koyli Winds (second at 4-5) and Jeff David (third at 1-2).

Amazin' Mets take first

By United Press International

Tom Seaver, backed by a 13-hit attack, including home runs from John Milner, Wayne Garrett, and Rusty Staub, pitched the New York Mets into first place in the National League's East Division Friday.

Seaver won his 18th game as he allowed but five hits in a 10-2 win before a standing room crowd of 53,718. The win was the Mets fourth straight over Pittsburgh and moved them half a game ahead of the Pirates.

Elsewhere, The Chicago Cubs defeated the Montreal Expos 3-1, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Philadelphia Phils 12-3, and the San Diego Padres eliminated the San Francisco Giants from the Western Division pennant race, 3-1, in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

Bob Locker got his 17th save for the Cubs as Montreal suffered its fifth straight loss. Rookie sensation Steve Rogers (9-4) was charged with the loss.

Rick Wise picked up his 14th win against 12 losses as the Cards slugged the Phils. Joe Torre belted a three-run homer, his 13th of the season and 1,999th career hit.

Bill Greif, with relief help from Mike Caldwell, threw a five hitter at the Giants to mathematically eliminate them from contention. The Padres scored all five runs in the sixth off losing pitcher Jim Barr (11-16).

In the American League, Glenn Borgmann doubled in three runs as the Twins beat the Athletics 8-3. Minnesota now has won 11 of 15. Ken Holtzman (20-13) got the loss.

Andy Etchebarren drove in three runs and Bob Reynolds saved Mike Cuellar's 17th victory as the Orioles outscored Milwaukee 7-4 and reduced their magic number to two.

John Hiller set a major league record for saves in a season, 38, as he took over for Jim Perry (14-12) and saved a 5-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Hiller, who only started pitching in July of '72 after suffering a heart attack two years ago, has a 9-5 record and an earned run average under 1.50.

The Chicago White edged the Kansas City Royals 6-5 in 12 innings and thereby cut the Oakland A's magic number to two. The game was delayed 27 minutes by rain after the ninth inning. John Jeter slammed a two-out, two-run double scoring Buddy Bradford with the winning run in the 12th.

Will the real Cal Poly team show up?

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — "I'm anxious to see which Cal Poly team shows up tonight," said head coach Roy Anderson. "The team that beat Fresno State or the squad that lost to Southern Utah."

Anderson will be attempting to put his team back on the winning track tonight when the Bronco football team opens its home schedule against Sacramento State in a 7:30 p.m. kickoff at Kellogg Field.

After a stunning upset of Fresno State, 17-9, two weeks ago in the season opener, the Broncos suffered a 35-18 loss at Southern Utah State College for a 1-1 record.

Tonight's foe, Sac State, has dropped its first two encounters, 22-0 to Pacific and 47-0 to the University of Nevada at Reno, but the Hornets are still regarded as a strong, aggressive and physical team with a good running game.

The Hornets, of the Far Western Conference, posted a 2-8 mark but were considered to be a hard luck club after narrow losses to Santa Clara, Humboldt, and UC Davis.

"This year should be one of rebuilding," said head coach Ray Clemons who is starting his 13th season at the SS helm.

Among the Hornets' problems is that of finding a passing QB. Senior Mike Teresa is a rabbit runner, but his arm is lacking. He hit only on 33 of 88 passes a year ago and yielded eight interceptions.

Clemons is in need of a passer to take the pressure off his triple option offense. He's got some horses in Joe Perez, 5-9 175, Steve Cobine, 6-3 215, and Teresa.

Defensively the Hornets are in trouble. Despite the presence of All-FWC cornerback Bobbie Jackson, 6-9 210, most of the linebackers have departed along with five deep backs.

Quarterback Jim Zorn has shown the ability to be a capable leader. The southpaw has completed only 17 of 49 aerials, while yelding two interceptions, for 267 yards and four TD's.

He has also run the option well totaling 109 yards on 22 carries for a five-yard average . . . tops on the club.

Cruz has netted only 89 yards in 23 carries while Robinson has gained only 41 yards on 26 totes. Cruz has also caught three passes or 13 yards and a touchdown, while Robinson has grabbed four for 28 yards.

Ron Tatum leads the receivers with six catches for 136 yards and three scores while Joe Fabian has plucked down four for 90 yards.

Defensive corner Paul Russell may have finally reached his expectant 'star' form. The kick return specialist has totaled 100 yards on six returns and didn't allow a pass reception in his zone in the Southern Utah game.

Zorn is doing better than expected in punting for a 30.7 yard per kick average. Dennis Amador and Lonnie Mahi have one interception each while Tatum leads the Broncs in scoring with 18 points.

Anderson is hoping the kick will be back in the Broncos tonight.

Mounties face tough test

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT Mt. San Antonio is going to find out what it's made of tonight in its home debut against Golden West College of Huntington Beach.

Head coach Mal Eaton knows it, and therefore is taking lightly the first weekly community college grid poll which lists the Mounties No. 5, and GW No. 8.

"One corn stalk doesn't make a corn field," Eaton advised. "We haven't proven anything yet. We'll really find out what kind of team we have against Golden West."

In seven previous meetings between the clubs, GW has a 5-1-1 edge, including a 33-21 victory in 1972. Most of the games have been high scoring affairs, with the average point-spread being 38-18.

This year's contest should be no exception. The squads are remarkably similar, and both expect to do big things this year.

MSAC will field approximately the same starting lineup it did last weekend against Citrus. A new guard, Keith Keating, a 6-4, 240 pounder, who prepped at Bishop Amat two years ago and spent a year at Washington State, is expected to see action tonight. Keating was a late arrival and has been working with the team for only about two weeks.

GW has a quarterback who can run and pass in Danny Accamando. He gained only 37 yards on the ground, but they were key yards last week. Through the air the freshman completed 8 of 18 attempts for 196 yards.

Of course, the Mounties have a proven thrower in Steve Myer, a sophomore who led the nation's community college quarterbacks in passing a year ago. Myer passed infrequently, but effectively against Citrus—7 to 12 for 39 yards and two short touchdowns of five and six yards.

Myer is likely to go to the air more this evening if 1972's returns are an indication. Myer, playing in only his second game, completed 22 of 35 passes for 230 yards and a touchdown last year against GW.

But a strong running attack, which the Mounties put together against Citrus, may be the most effective weapon against GW.

The Mounties can match that with sophomore tailback Teddy Farmer (15 carries, 97 yards) and his understudy John Huston (9 carries, 59 yards, 1 TD) operating out of a new I-formation offense that gained 197 yards total on the ground a week ago.

'Free football' opens college football season

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

Both the Claremont-Mudd and Pomona-Pitzer season openers will be open gate affairs with no admission being charged. C-M takes on the University of San Diego at 1:30 p.m. and Pomona-Pitzer hosts Whitman College at 7:30 p.m.

Meanwhile La Verne travels to Whittier for another dual season and conference opener at 7:30 p.m. Azusa Pacific is at home to Occidental at 1:30 p.m. Redlands is at Cal Lutheran to round out the schedule.

The 5-11, 185 Schoenlaub is listed as a probable starter tonight at defensive end against the Sagehens. He said he is not very selfconscious about playing his first collegiate game before hometown fans.

"I'm not worried as much about playing a terrific game as I am about just playing at all," he said. "I want to play as much as I can and help the team to a maximum."

Schoenlaub said that for the Wolfpack last year he "almost never left the field" while playing center, linebacker, and being on the kickoff, punting, point-after-touchdown, and field goal-kicking units.

"I may not be playing as constantly in college as I did in high school," he said. "But I'm helping the team and that's what counts."

Jensen brought some bad news for Sagehen coach Walt Ambord. "One reason I've been looking forward to the trip and start of our season is because we have one of the best football teams at Whitman since I've been here," he said.

But Jensen added quickly, "Pomona always plays tough football, especially early in the season. I can remember when Hastings (Neb.) College traveled to Pomona early in the season. Hastings lost."

This afternoon, John Zinda unveils the 1974 Stags. Billy Nash, who ran for 822 yards last year, leads the ground attack. Sophomore Jaime Opatrny, in his first start, directs the C-M aerial and overall attack.

A year ago USD lost its opening game to Riverside and then rebounded to stun the heavily-favored Stags 14-6. This year the Toreros opened with a 20-16 loss to UCR and again are playing C-M in the second game.

Quarterback Bob Dulich again directs coach Andy Vinci's multiple set offense led by tailbacks Rich Paulson and Sammy Croom. Paulson had a 73-yard touchdown jaunt against Riverside. Croom picked up 30 yards to break the career rushing mark with a total of 1,207 yards.

Play begins tonight in Mission loop

Citrus and Chaffey colleges open Mission Conference play tonight in games against Palomar and Saddleback. The Owls face the Comets at Escondido High, while defending champion Saddleback hosts the Panthers. Both games get underway at 7:30 p.m.

Citrus is coming off last week's 34-0 loss to Mt. San Antonio, while Chaffey was a 31-7 loser to Cerritos.

The Owls got a 94-yard rushing performance from tailback Doug Hopper in the loss to MSAC, but will have to erase turnovers to stay in tonight's game.

Both Saddleback and Palomar were winners in Season openers. Saddleback back topped Cypress, 24-0, and Palomar up-ended Glendale, Ariz. 16-7.

Progress-Bulletin PREP PREVIEW

Montclair vs. Alta Loma at Upland, 8 p.m.

No one disputes the Braves' ability to win. Under question is their ability to do it week after week. Alta Loma was brilliant sporadically last season and a more consistent showing this year could result a trip to the CIF playoffs.

Last year's game represented one of three Montclair victories, 13-7, but the Cavaliers hope tonight will be the start of better things. Transfer Ken Green in the backfield supplements an already strong array of Filbert Gonzales, John Surby, and Mike Hartsfield.

Montclair has definitely improved over last season, but then so have the Braves.

Rowland vs. Yucaipa at Nogales, 8 p.m.

The only was the Raiders can go is up following last season's 1-6-2 season.

Coach Gary Rawls is optimistic about Rowland's fortunes for '73 and has a good young crop of gridders to work with. Quarterback Flavio Garcia and tailback David Pearce leading the offense.

Rowland opens its season tonight at Jack Jolley Stadium against a team it tied last year, 7-7.

Other top returnees will be split end Don Pearce, and Lance Little, Tom Chambers and Rich Dubo is on the offensive line.

VCT scores hit with 'Butterflies'

By VONNE ROBERTSON

POMONA — To open its 1973-74 season, Valley Community Theater has chosen an excellent play and presented it superbly with a talented, well-rehearsed cast.

"Butterflies Are Fee" by Leonard Gershe has been produced as a prize-winning motion picture and stage play. It adapts itself especially well to the small community theater with a cast limited to four, and a single set which avoids the often-distracting set shuffling sometimes associated with theater-in-the-round like VCT.

Thurman Brown, a veteran actor, director and producer, directs this play with a skillful blending of humor and sensitivity, never letting either district from the other.

Opening night's performance was flawless. No missed cues or stepped-on lines. It would indicate hours of rehearsal and concentration.

Ed Abry plays Don Baker, a blind young man seeking to break the bounds of a protective mother by moving to his own apartment in New York City. Abry is convincing and expremely skilled in the portrayal of a difficult role. He uses his hands and feet to guide himself about the stage with the blend of grace and awkwardness typical of the sightless.

The role of Jill Tanner, a blond divorcee who lives in the next apartment is played well by Judy Kellem. In the play Jill describes herself as an aspiring actress who "would have gone to UCLA but couldn't find a place to park." She hasn't succeeded at much else in life, either, it appears, until she meets Don.

As Mrs. Baker, Martha Fuller turns in her usual excellent performance. A versatile actress, Mrs. Fuller can always be counted on to do a good job. In this play, the role is well-written, and Martha handles it with sensitivity. The mother is not a witch, but rather a devoted woman with a handicapped child who needs to seek his own life.

Tom Schultz, as Ralph Austin, represents a play director who offers Jill a role in his off-Broadway show. His part is small, but nicely handled.

"Butterflies Are Free" will be presented tonight and on the next few weekends at 8:30. If Valley Community Theater continues the caliber of show it has opened this season with, it should be a highly successful year for the group.

The theater, located at 132 E. Third St., is being renovated with the addition of new sound and lighting equipment. Reservations may be made by calling 622-6954.

Gallery to present 'Cheaper'

ONTARIO — Gallery Theater at C Street and Lemon Avenue will present the comedy, "Cheaper by the Dozen," at 8:30 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays for eight weeks beginning Oct. 5.

Gallery Theater is currently showing the musical, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," playing at 8:30 Friday and Saturday nights through next weekend. Reservations can be made at 982-5357.

BLONDES PREFERRED — Carol Channing stars in the musical comedy, "Lorelei," opening Oct. 10 at the Shubert Theater in Century City. Jule Styne has written 17 new songs for the show, a remake of the musical, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," in which Miss Channing gained stardom on Broadway.

Seven performances are scheduled featuring top magicians from around the world.

Headlining this 20th edition is the former star of America's first television show about magic, Mark Wilson. He appeared for five years as the star of "The Magic Land of Allakazam," and on many "Magic Circus" specials.

From Holland comes Fred Kaps, considered by magicians to be the slickest sleight-of-hand master. England's contribution to the festival is Jerry Bergman, who delights audiences with his comedy and baffles them with his magic at the same time. Other top magicians will be announced later.

Tickets for "It's Magic" may be obtained from the Wilshirt Ebell box office, all Mutual and Liberty ticket agencies, or by writing "It's Magic," care of The Magic Castle, 7001 Franklin Ave., Hollywood 90028.

Performances are nightly at 8:30 and at 7:30 on Sunday. Matinees on Saturday and Sunday are at 3:00 p.m.

'Mikado' plans move to Ivar

HOLLYWOOD — "The Incommunicado Mikado," Watergate satire based on the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta which had its world premiere recently aboard the Queen Mary at Long Beach, will reopen Oct. 12 at the Ivar Theater.

Masks caricaturing current political personalities are worn by the cast of young Southland singing actors and actresses.

In the spotlight at the Ivar will be Ned Romero as the Mikado; Jack Mette as Jo-Jo, the Lord High Attorney General; Nick Davis, as Sam-Sam, Chairman of a Senate Select Committee; and Darrell Sandeen as Pooh-Bah, Chief of the Domestic Council.

Tickets are available by mail order for opening night and subsequent performances at Blackfriars Productions, 6533 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood 90028, and at Wallich's Music City and all Mutual and Liberty agencies. Ticket and group sales information may be obtained by calling (213) 877-1054.

Tennis courts bigtime TV with Billie-Bobby battle

By RICK DU BROW

No matter that the whole shebang was one grand stunt — it was still great show business, a harmless yet enticing entertainment that allowed televiewers to put aside their mundane doings for a while and have some marvelous fun. At the same time, although traditional tennis purists may have been cringing at the atmosphere of the match, the Riggs-King showdown dragged the sport, in one night, out of its essentially country club image and into the domain of popular mass appeal. Without television, that wouldn't have happened.

Just as Riggs' easy victory over Margaret Court really didn't prove much—except that he was, and is, a super hustler —neither did his decisive loss to Mrs. King prove to be of any enormous significance in terms of topflight tennis competition. But the quality of tennis wasn't really the important thing in all the puffery and nonsense preceding the Thursday match at the Houston Astrodome— after all, in both the Court-Riggs and King-Riggs contests you had a 55-year-old man playing women a quarter of a century younger. And there isn't much doubt that Stan Smith could dispatch them all in a day.

No—what was happening amid all the razzmatazz, amid the absurd claims of a "Match of the Century," amid the manipulation of public emotions because of a "Battle Of The Sexes," was that tennis had finally found its key to mass popularity via television—and played the game beautifully. This was Joe Namath making the upstart football league a contender; Bobby Fischer putting chess on page one; Muhammad Ali, then Cassius Clay, getting people interested in boxing even though they weren't interested in boxing.

Riggs was, of course, the key. With a hustler's feel for the right vibrations, he capitalized on the themes of Age vs. Youth, Men vs. Women and Traditional (male superiority) vs. Madern Thinking (women's liberation) —and hit paydirt, touching public chords more profitable than probably even he imagined. He achieved the hustler's dream—building the pot to the point where it was so big that, win or lose, he could cash in very handsomely. And it might be noted that, by doing so, a lot of people, now and in the future, are going to make a lot of money because of him.

That is the bottom line. And if ABC-TV's spot ratings reports Thursday night should stand up, the network--and tennis—will have achieved a rather amazing audience for the once-exclusive sport. And the quality of ABC-TV's coverage would surely be a factor. The network's cameras caught all of the circus atmosphere at the Astrodome preceding the match—the huge (for tennis) crowd, the band playing as if at a football game, the earthy printed signs that one would usually expect to see at a New York Mets' baseball game in Shea Stadium, the show business celebrities with their usual useless chatter. Gorgeous.

Brisk business

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Dennis Piatt made one mistake when he closed his service station in a protest against gasoline price controls—he forgot to lock the pumps.

Four hours went by before police discovered the brisk business going on at the unattended self-service operation.

Rosh Hashanah . . .

By DAVID HENDIN

Celbration of the Jewish New Year or Rosh Hashanah, is a far cry from the celebration that takes place during the final hours of every Dec. 31.

We celebrate the calendar New Year with scores of soon-to-be broken resolutions, parties where booze flows like water from open hydrants (later manifested in thousands of traffic deaths) and the strains of Auld Lang Syne.

It is a time of merriment and mischief, midnight kisses and caviar on saltines.

The holiday of Rosh Hashanah, on the other hand, is one of the holiest days in the year for observant Jews throughout the world. It is a time of prayer and meditation. Services in the temple or synagogue are marked by deep solemnity.

The closest parallel to any music at all is the blowing of the shofar, or ram's horn. Its call is sounded as a summons to the worshippers to look within — to search their consciences and then to come to sincere repentance.

For to Jews of the world, Rosh Hashanah is considered the annual Judgment Day. On this day all men, like sheep before their shepherd, pass in review before the all-seeing eye of God.

This year, the New Year on the Hebrew calendar will be brought in on Wednesday evening. It is the New Year of 5734.

While the Old Testament does not specify that New Year should be celebrated on this day, Jewish tradition holds that this is the day on which God created the world. The Bible states, "In the seventh month, in the first day of the month shall ye have a sabbath, a memorial of blowing of trumpets, an holy convocation."

There has been some change in the exact time of celebration of Rosh Hashanah. In the ancient Israel, during Biblical days, the holiday was celebrated for one day only. But when the Romans put an end to the ancient Jewish State and its inhabitants were scattered across the world, the Talmudic sage, Yohanan ben Zakkai, added a second day.

This was done because of the great time differences throughout the world. He wanted to insure that all Jews would be able to observe together at least one day of this true holy day. Today Reform Jews everywhere, as well as the Jews living in Israel, have returned to the old custom of celebrating only the first day of Rosh Hashanah.

The Jewish New Year is also the first day of the Ten Days of Penitence. Jews believe that on Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement) nine days later, the celestial book of accounts will be closed and judgment reached.

Hence the traditional Rosh Hashanah greetings are exchanged: "Leshanah tobah tikkathebu," — "May you be written down (in the book of life) for a good year!"

It is a heartfelt and healthy greeting, and one that would benefit all of us if it were offered not only among Jews, but among all people of this Earth.

Thoughts

From the living Bible

God formed a man's body from the dust of the ground and breathed into it the breath of life. And man became a living person. Then the Lord God planted a garden in Eden, to the east, and placed in the garden the man he had formed. The Lord God planted all sorts of beautiful trees there in the garden, trees producing the choicest of fruit. At the center of the garden he placed the Tree of Life, and also the Tree of Conscience, giving knowledge of Good and Bad.

Genesis 2:7-9.

Episcopalians plan counseling service

ONTARIO — Christ Episcopal Church will establish a counseling service that will provide in-depth counseling, seminars and workshops to help family life.

The Rev. Dan Bacot will be director of the counseling service, according to Edward White, senior warden of the parish. The new director has served as an episcopal priest for the past 25 years.

In recent years he has been a student at the School of Theology at Claremont in the counseling program. He has taken courses and attended seminars in counseling and related subjects at UC Riverside.

He is a licensed marriage, family and child counselor and holds a license as an instructor in parent effectiveness training.

Fees for the service will be based on income and family responsibilities. Requests for interviews can be made by calling 983-1859 or 982-0959.

Two courses will be offered this fall in addition to the private counseling. The first will be an eight-week course on the theme "Parent Effectiveness Training." The course will begin Oct. 2 at 7 p.m. at the church.

Fee for the course is $65 per person or $100 per couple. Reduced rates are available to those who demonstrate their need, according to the director.

Another course will be offered using the theme "Awareness and Meditation." The six-week course will be limited to 15 persons. It will begin Oct. 15 at 7:30 p.m. at the church. The fee is $3.

Traditional family fighting seen for Episcopal parley

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The intramural bloodletting, officially known as the 64th General Convention of the Episcopal Church will take place in Louisville, Ky., Sept. 29 through Oct. 11.

On hand will be about 200 bishops and 896 elected "deputies," half clergy and half laity, representing the 112 Episcopal dioceses of the United States.

About 30,000 other Episcopalians will show up to lobby for pet causes, attend side meetings of women's and mission groups, or simply to watch the action.

The most important business will be transacted away from the convention floor, in smokefilled hotel rooms. It is the choice of a new Presiding Bishop of the church —the American equivalent of England's Archbishop of Canterbury.

A nominating committee headed by Bishop Robert F. Gibson of Virginia will suggest three incumbent bishops as possible successors to the Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, who is retiring after ten stormy years as "P.B."

Hines has been an ardent exponent of church involvement in social problems and the use of church funds for such causes as promoting economic and political power among blacks, Indians, Chicanos and other minorities.

His attitude toward social action has not endeared him to conservatives who will make a mighty effort at Louisville to insure that his successor will be of different kidney. Thus the lines are drawn for a major battle between two equally militant factions which favor and oppose social action.

Unfortunately from the viewpoint of Episcopalians who would like to minimize the tearing and rending, there is no one outstanding bishop whose claim to election as Presiding Bishop is so clear as to make him the obvious choice.

Ambassadors hosted

WALNUT — Members of the On Going Ambassadors for Christ, a youth organization of 30 Lutheran churches, are spending this weekend at Christ the King Lutheran Church.

The young people will participate in Bible study, witnessing and will canvass the community.

The Rev. Ben T. Bauer, pastor, will speak on the topic "Young People Are Priests, Too" Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. worship service.

The annual church picnic will be held at Cortez Park, West Covina, at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

He served for one year as a chaplain at the County-USC Medical Center for the Churches of Christ.

Before moving to the Pomona Valley in 1972, Mr. Reynolds hosted a television program titled "A More Excellent Way." He was also the host of a religious program on an evening radio show that is heard in eight states.

Film at Drive-in

SAN DIMAS — The film "In the Presence of Mine Enemies" will be shown Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the Valley Community Drive-In Church.

The film depicts the life story of Navy Capt. Howard E. Rutledge who spent seven years as a prisoner of war in Vietnam.

The Rev. David Ray will discuss "A Song When the Heart Sorrows" Sunday at the 10 a.m. worship service.

The two-week seminar was directed by R. Harold Hipps, Associate General Secretary, Division of Lay Ministries, Board of Higher Education and Ministry, United Methodist Church, Nashville, Tennessee and Allen J. Moore, Professor of Religion and Personality, School of Theology at Claremont.

Hipps explains that the course is designed for persons without a graduate theological degree to participate in one seminar a year for four years. Each seminar provides one unit of seminar credit toward the four required for certification as an associate in Christian education.

The four-year-cycle of seminars is designed to cover "Foundations of Christian Education," "Bible," "Theology," "Developing the Educational Ministry of the Congregation." After completing the four-year course of study the student is then certified to work with the educational development of the whole congregation in the local church and direct the church education program.

Californians get cut on income tax

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California income tax payers will be granted a $380 million "discount" on returns filed next April, under a tax rebate plan proposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and accepted by the legislsature.

The same legislation also will cut back the newly increased state sales tax to five cents on the dollar (5½ cents in Bay Area Rapid Transit District counties) effective Oct. 1. The levy will return again to six cents April 1, and 6½ cents in the BART counties.

While the tug-of-war between Reagan and Democrats over how to return an unprecedented $826 million surplus to taxpayers highlighted 1973 fiscal issues, more traditional controversy also swirled around the state budget.

Reagan signed a biggest-in-the-nation state budget totaling $9.4 billion on June 30, a few hours befcre the spending plan wa sto take effect. But first he voted $80 million from the bill sent to him by the legislature 13 days after the required deadline for enactment.

Assail cuts

Democrats assailed the budget cuts as "cheap hypocrisy" and noted the deepest reductions occurred in the areas of welfare and day care centers for children of low-income working mothers.

The same day he signed the budget bill, Reagan vetoed Democratic sponsored legislation to delay for six months the scheduled July 1 penny sales tax increase. He objected to a feature which would have provided an income tax cut of up to a maximum $200 per couple.

Democrats led by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti rejected a compromise proposed by Reagan. But lawmakers eventually accepted the proposal on Aug. 16.

It provides a onetime income tax reduction ranging from 35 to 20 per cent. It also temporarily cuts the sales tax.

The measure gives a typical family of four earning $15,000 a year a $60 tax cut, the same family earning $25,000 would save $137 while that family earning $50,000 would save $583.

Kill Reagan plan

In another tax matter, the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee killed the legislative version of Reagan's tax ceiling plan.

The legislature also passed a bill (AB6) by Assemblyman Robert C. Cline, R-Canoga Park, giving divorces and widows with children a $14 million a year income tax break.

That measure would affect unmarried heads of households with dependents-such as divorcees, widows and widowers-and would tax them at the same rate as married couples up to an income level of $6,000. Beyond that point, the rate of taxation would approach that of married couples but not to the level of complete conformity.

For example, an unmarried person with a dependent and a taxable income of $8,000 a year now pays $140 a year in state income taxes while the married couple filing a joint return pays $80. Under the bil, the unmarried breadwinner would pay a tax of $95, for a tax cut of $45.

City loses lawsuit over woman's electrocution

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — The city of Bellevue must pay $353,000 to the family of a woman who was electrocuted as she tried to rescue her six-year-old son from an electrified creek.

A jury in Pierce County Superior Court has ordered the sum paid to Robert D. Campbell and his two children.

The suit said that Mrs. Campbell suffered fatal injuries while trying to save her son, Eric, from Kelsey Creek, which runs behind the Campbell home.

Eric recovered from the shock and burns he suffered in the electrically charged creek, but Mrs. Campbell died Aug. 7, 1971.

The electricity came from yard wiring installed by a next door neighbor, George Schafer. The jury said Bellevue city officials were negligent for not ordering the improper wiring removed from the creek as soon as it was discovered.

Schafer and his caretaker, James A. Struebling, were each convicted of manslaughter and given two-year deferred jail sentences in connection with the incident.

The caretaker had inadvertently turned the power on after city officials had ordered it turned off.

Indian kivas

AZTEC, N.M. (UPI) — The New mexico community has 52 Indian kivas or ceremonial lodges, which makes it of real importance to students of Pueblo history.

The group of kivas at Aztec is the largest of all the Southwest Pueblos and shows the influence of both Chaco Canyon and Mesa Verde Pueblos. The ruins were discovered in the late 1700s by Spanish explorers and were probably built before the 1300s.

Environmental measures approved by legislature

By ROBERT E. SWEET

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The legislature passed a score of bills this year to clean up California's environment, ranging from the scenic Sierra timberlands to the smog-ridden Los Angeles basin.

One measure sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan would impose strict new logging standards on the $1 billion-a-year California timber industry to protest forests from massive overcutting.

Passage of the compromise bill by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, culminated an often bitter two-year fight between environmentalists and loggers over regulations for forest practices on 8 million acres of privately owned timberland.

New board

The measure creates a new state Forestry Board dominated by members representing the public. It also provides for specific restocking standards and on-site inspections before, during and after logging operations.

The bulk of antismog legislation passed this year was aimed at the South Coast Air Basin, including a bill to create the state's first mandatory car inspection program for pollution control devices.

If signed by Reagan, the bill by Sen. W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, would establish a pilot program which would expand to cover annual inspection of all vehicles within the six-county basin.

The vehicles' smog control equipment would have to be in top shape before they could qualify for registration.

The legislature also passed a bill by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, to establish a single pollution control district in the Los Angeles smog belt. Currently, smog is handled by six different district agencies which often conflict with one another.

The bill also would shift the cost of fighting smog in the basin from property taxpayers to motorists and to stationary sources of air pollution based on their emissions of pollutants.

A proposed constitutional amendment which cleared the legislature would help reduce automobile pollution by unlocking gas tax funds to construct new rapid transit systems.

$50 million

The legislation by Senate President Pro Tem James R. Mills would divert about $50 million a year in gas taxes, long reserved strictly for highway projects, for use in rapid transit programs. The measure will appear on the June, 1974 ballot.

Another major measure passed by the legislature would create a new statewide commission with broad powers to cite nuclear power plants and ration fuel supplies if a critical energy shortage occurs.

The Energy Resources Development and Conservation Commission also would conduct experiments to enhance the efficiency of electrical products with the aim of reducing California's energy demand.

The measure, coauthored by Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, and Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, is supported by the Sierra Club and strongly opposed by utility companies and the General Electric Co.

Under a bill by Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park, petroleum companies would be required to screen oil sumps to protect birds which now die in uncovered oil sumps. The measure is awaiting Reagan's signature.

Other bills

Other environmental bills which cleared the legislature would:

—Regulate commercial fishing of herring in Tomales and San Francisco Bay (Sen. Peter Behr, R-Tiburon).

—Provide $10 million for the state to acquire land around Lake Tahoe to prevent overdevelopment in the region. (Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento).

— Declare a five-year moratorium on dam construction on sections of the south and middle forks of the Kings River. (Sen. George N. Zenovich, D-Fresno).

Many conservation measures failed and will reappear before lawmakers when they reconvene in January for the second half of their two-year session.

Major unfinished business includes bills that would:

—Impose stiff fines on pollution-belching industries in the South Coast Air Basin. (Moretti).

Old West artifacts auctioned

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — More than 1,000 items were sold during a three-day auction of Old West artifacts at the Sotheby Parke Bernet galleries with some items going for as much as 10 times the amount gallery experts had predicted.

The auction which ended Wednesday grossed $523,650 with a six-shooter Wyatt Earp supposedly wore while tracking outlaw Curly Bill going for $20,000.

"They went crazy. It was unbelievable," said Peter McCoy, president of the galleries.

The hottest items, aside from guns and knives, were Indian artifacts, and virtually anything with "Wells Fargo," "Pony Express" or other western sounding names appearing on them.

Life and art inseparable,

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN
P-B Staff Writer

Life and art are inseparable, according to pretty Bernadette Gravette, French-Canadian artist whose life is enriched by her chubby 1-year-old son, Lindsay, and whose art has been recognized in the current show of the Traditional Artists of Southrn California, recently on display in the Fine Arts Gallery of the National Orange Show fairgrounds in San Bernardino.

"Your life, family and general happiness have a lot to do with your feeling for art," she said in a recent interview in her handsome home in Pomona's Ganesha Hills.

"I don't think you can keep from reflecting your life in your work. There's a lot of you in what you do. If I were unhappy, I don't think I could paint or draw. My life gives me a reason for doing what I'm doing."

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nye, also of Pomona, she came to the United States at the age of 9, attended St. Joseph's Elementary School in Pomona and Ramona Convent in Alhambra. She had been painting and drawing all her young life, but her first direction and real interest in art came from Sister Mary Martha at the convent. Since that time she has hardly had a paint brush or charcoal pencil out of her hand.

She continued her art work while attending evening school at Mt. San Antonio College and working as receptionist for the California Credit Union League. She dropped it briefly during a year as stewardess on PSA, and resumed it when she became executive secretary of the Claremont Chamber of Commerce.

Four years ago she married Larry Gravette, personnel director of Tex-Fi West, and with the advent of young Lindsay she became, in her words, "full-time mother and part-time artist." Now she works in a large, walk-in closet when the baby is napping, and in the evenings and on weekends.

Mrs. Gravette works in oils, pastel, charcoal and some acrylic, plus collage. Her pieces are largely still lifes, animals and children. Many of her works are done from photographs she has taken or cut from magazines. All of her work is detailed, realistic and representational.

"I don't understand modern—impressionistic—art," she admitted. "I'm primarily interested in representational works. Impressionistic, abstaract artists are saying something, but it's not for me. I like a painting that says something clearly so I don't have to study to find its meaning."

What lure does art have for a contented housewife?

"Everything!" said Mrs. Gravette, with a smile. "I find it very inspiring. I don't know if it's because I'm involved in it personally, but anyone who puts something on canvas or paper has to come away inspired."

The creation of art is both challenging and rewarding, she said.

"It's such a challenge," the artist said. "You have something on your mind and you just can't let it go. I turn to my art work because I have a feeling to do it, a yearning. It's not a substitute for anything."

Mrs. Gravette plays the piano, sings, loves to cook ("I'm a very good cook—we all love to eat!") and tends a menagerie of a dog, three cats and three goldfish ("I love animals—the more the merrier") but art is her consuming passion.

"It's with you all the time," she said. "Taking a drive, you are looking at colors, studying dimensions, always on the lookout for beauty. Everything has beauty—it only needs the recognition. To feel warm about a scene, to create that feeling and to have others feel the same way from your work is very rewarding."

The diminutive (5-2) blonde painter looked over a number of art clubs before applying for admittance to Traditional Artists. She submitted four paintings to a board of judges and was granted membership. In the six montly competitions since then, she has been judged Artist of the Month four times. To have one of her works, a soft pastel of a decanter, wine glass, grapes and old books titled "The Values of Age," accepted for the San Bernarduno showing was a thrill. Only 100 of some 400 works sumbitted were chosen for the show.

"I'm going on with my work," Mrs. Gravette said with determination. "I'm very encouraged by the reception of my paintings. Next year I want to win something. Some day I want to enter big shows and win prizes."

Talent, perception, sensitivity and dedication add up to very good chances for just that sort of recognition for the young artist who can't extricate art from life.

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

FORT-DE-FRANCE, Martinique (UPI) — It's not true that when you've seen one Caribbean island you've seen them all.

There are differences.

Take Martinique. This exotic island in the sun is as French as it could possibly be while separated by more than 4,000 miles from its mother country on the European continent.

There's good reason. The French tricolor has flown over the island —which was discovered in 1502 by Columbus — since 1635 except for three brief periods when it was ruled by Britain.

French is the official language although English is spoken in tourist spots and the islanders converse mainly in a Creole patois. The famed haute cuisine of France shares honors with delectable island dishes and modern miniskirts are as common as the traditional ankle-length petticoated gowns.

Most of the islanders are descended from French settlers, African slaves and East Indians brought in as indentured servants by plantation owners when slavery was abolished in the 1840s.

Empress Josephine, wife of Napolean I, was born in Martinique and the women of the island still have a reputation for beauty.

I made my first visit in about five years to Martinique during the maiden Caribbean cruise of the Norwegian America Line's supurb new liner M-S Vistafjord with other American travel writers and guests.

A late starter in the tourist competition, Martinique is making gains. New hotels, resorts and other facilities have been constructed to accommodate the increasing flow of visitors by air and sea.

There now are more than 30 hotels, inns and guest houses of various categories which can accommodate about 2,000 overnight guests. They include the 140-room Martinique Hilton, the 99-room Bakoua Beach and smaller hotels such as Le Lido, Anse Mitan and Calalou.

Martinique is the site also of two resort villages different in ambience from each other: the 90-room family-style Latitude-Martinique and the Club Mediterranean's Buccaneer's Club for swingers which can accommodate 600 persons.

We stopped at Bakoua Beach for a cold drink (it is reputed to have the finest dining on the island) and lunches at the Buccaneer's Club (an excellent buffet with all the wine you can drink) during a bus tour of the southern part of Martinique.

The tour also included a visit to the birthplace of Josephine at Trois-Islets across the bay from Port-de-France. There's a ferry service. Only ruins of the de la Paglue family home remain but there is a small interesting museum which houses many mementos — including love letters, paintings, her childhood bed and a death mask of Napoleon.

Lack of time — the women wanted to shop — ruled out a revisit to St. Pierre, the "Pompeii of the New World," about 25 miles north of here. It was the thriving capital of the island until Sunday, May 8, 1902 when Mt. Pelee erupted without warning. The entire city was destroyed and about 30,000 persons killed in three minutes.

A new city has risen on the ruins of the old but there's a museum which displays remnants of the day of death and destruction.

The shops and boutiques in Fort-de-France offer wide selections of the finest perfumes, crystal, china, wines, and other luxury goods from France and other countries.

Scientist feels A-blasts could free Colorado oil

CHICAGO (UPI) —Dr. Fred Holzer, director of a nuclear energy program in Livermore, Calif., told a regional energy conference that there is a "very exciting possibility" that nuclear explosions can be used to free vast amounts of oil from the underground rocks of western Colorado.

"It is really a very exciting possibility," Holzer said. "It seems to me at least that methods of processing in the ground have an awfully lot of promise."

Holzer said there is twice as much oil in a 25-mile area of Colorado as there is in the entire Middle East.

He said several plans have been tried to free the oil, but proved too expensive since the rocks had to be brought to the surface, heated, and the ground leveled again.

Using nuclear explosions, Holzer said, it is possible that the rock could be reduced to rubble while still underground. Fire could then be injected into the earth to melt the rocks, and the oil would be forced out.

He said the oil is located between 500 and 2,500 feet underground in an area 50 miles north of Grand Junction, Colo.

CLIFF KING Says:

In 1947, Walt Disney saw films of seal herds on the Pribilof Islands, taken by amateur naturalists. Impressed with spectacular results produced by such specialists, who may study one particular specie of wildlife for many years, Disney started with his True-Life Adventure movies about animals in their natural habitats.
Films have been made in almost every state and in 40 foreign countries. Subjects have included the lynx, aardvark, ocelot and many other hard-to-photograph animals. Each new story is seen by some 40 million people!
If you asked 40 million people about us, most would say they never heard of us! But around these parts, the people who deal with us are glad of it. We save you money on new RCA TV, Hi-Fi, or Stereos and we back sales with SERVICE, as we have for over 40 years. It will pay you to stop in and get acquainted.

Rush time again at Claremont Colleges

P-B staff writer

CLAREMONT — The pace of activity is building up as the six Claremont Colleges gear up to welcome some 5,000 students next week for the start of another fall semester.

To the steady drone of motorized lawnmowers and the pizzicato snippings of hedge trimmers across the colleges' 457 acres, the small groups of the 500-member faculty are in evidence as they check their offices, straighten out their class schedules and make sure the books they've ordered are on hand in the Huntley Bookstore.

The bookstore itself looks deceptively quiet. But preparations for next week have been under way since the start of summer, when orders went out for some 80,000 textbooks, most of which will be sold within the first 10 days of school by the regular staff of 12 salespeople and another dozen temporary workers.

The store's six cash registers will be jingling throughout the initial rush's 12-hour daily operation schedule. In addition to the thousands of books, student consumers are expected to clear away $10,000 of paper alone, along with numberless pens, pencils, notebooks, art supplies and just about everything else they might need in the way of class and personal supplies.

Across the street, Honnold Library's 50 regular staff members and 35 part-time student workers (who will increase to 120 by next week) have been dusting off their 900,000-volume collection and refreshing their memories on where everything is, so they can conduct twice-daily tours during the next two weeks for newcomers.

Just behind the bookstore, the colleges' 11-man security force is readying for the task of registering nearly 2,000 cars and probably as many bicycles during the first five days of school. Many of the officers will be putting in a lot of overtime as this is the first year bicycle registration is being required.

Other behind-the-scenes workers, like the 126 men who make up the physical plant crew, are busy with last-minute housekeeping details. Twenty-five groundsman are patroling the campuses — manicuring lawns and sprucing up the foliage, while 55 custodians tidy up the residence halls, polishing floors, cleaning windows and installing light bulbs.

Dorm supervisors have distributed the last of the mountain of linen that is required to furnish each room. At Pomona College, for example, washday for some 1,080 on-campus students means 4,600 sheets, 6,900 towels and 2,300 pillow cases.

Meanwhile, 46 plumbers, carpenters, electricians, painters and other tradesmen are finishing up renovation projects, refurbishing offices and classrooms, making keys and renovating athletic facilities.

A thousand or so administrative staffers are preparing to conduct class registration for freshmen on Monday and upperclassmen on Thursday. The 14 regular telephone operators and four part-timers are coping with the ever-increasing number of calls. Even the auditorium staff is busy interviewing students for stage crew, box office and 40 usher jobs in Bridges Auditorium and Garrison Theater for the year's seriees of concerts, plays, lectures, movies and other events.

The colleges' 100 food service employes are opening up 10 kitchens, 17 dining halls and five snack bars to handle some 62,000 meals a week, a million and a half during the entire year. Nearly 600 students also will be supplementing their incomes through some type of food service work.

Even as the physical facilities are being readied, plans are moving forward on a series of welcoming activities at each of the six campuses. They include orientation lectures, faculty meetings, tours and open house, dinners, parties and dances.

Preparations also extend to the community. The Claremont Chamber of Commerce will be doing its share with "Operation Brown Bag." Some 2,500 brown bags filled with gift coupons, small gift items, informational material and discount offers from 35 participating merchants will be distributed to new students at the time they register for classes. A downtown street dance is also planned next Saturday night.

A good deal of time, effort and people have gone into the preparations for the coming term. And if new students find nothing else, they'll at least find that the colleges' are ready to launch them on their educational careers.

ON THE COVER

Orlando's is tradition

POMONA — Orlando's has been helping Pomona Valley residents get married, as well as helping them celebrate a variety of other special occasions, for many years with its banquet facilities and services.

According to Ruth Stromquist, Orlando's banquet hostess, family members through different generations have set a tradition of celebrating their special occasions at Orlando's. These events include wedding receptions, anniversaries and Bar Mitzvahs.

Along with the family celebrations, Orlando's banquet facilities are used extensively by major industrial plants, service organizations, clubs and political groups for luncheon and dinner meetings, cocktail parties and hors d'oeuvre parties. If more than 25 people are served during an event there is no charge for the use of the facilities.

Various organizations hold regular monthly meetings at the restaurant which offers a public address system, piano, stage, bar facilities, dance floor and an equipped dressing room for use during fashion shows. Recently redecorated with mural wallpaper, modern lights and new drapes, three banquet rooms are able to serve a maximum of 300 people.

Banquet facilities are available Sunday through Friday for private parties. A dinner dance open to the public is featured in the banquet area on Saturday nights with entertainment by Lou Dokken.

Banquets at Orlando's, which begin at $2.85 for luncheons and $3 for dinner, feature the same entrees available in the restaurant's main dining room and the same quantity of food, according to Mrs. Stromquist. Service, also, is the same, even down to salad dressing set on the table for individual use.

Entrees at both lunch and dinner are served with a tossed green salad with a choice of roquefort, wine vinegar and oil or French dressing, a vegetable, baked potato, hot cheese bread, dessert and coffee or tea.

"We get a lot of compliments on our banquets," stated Mrs. Stromquist, "and not just on the food, but on the service, too. Many of our customers comment on our waitress' courtesy and pleasant attitudes."

The banquet hostess, who has been involved with Orlando's banquets for 10 years, stated that only the finest china, linens and glassware are used at Orlando's, and added that the food "is always hot when served."

"One organization which had been meeting each month at Orlando's left to go to another local restaurant. I knew they would come back, and within a few months they were meeting at Orlando's again," Mrs. Stromquist said.

Mrs. Loretta Rudnick, wife of the Orlando's owner, Bill Rudnick, also works scheduling the banquets. Rudnick has owned and managed the restaurant since October 1972.

Orlando's, at 1700 W. Holt Ave., is open seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. The restaurant's dinner menu features such meals as prime rib, lobster tails, beef rolls in burgundy wine sauce, and steaks as well as continental foods.

Loretta Rudnick, an owner of Orlando's at 1700 W. Holt Ave., welcomes diners to the restaurant. Mrs. Rudnick also assists in coordinating banquet events.

Symbolic story calls for restructuring of society

By LANGE WINCKLER
P-B Staff Writer

WORLD WITHOUT END, AMEN, by Jimmy Breslin, The Viking Press, $6.95

The first part of the title, the part Breslin didn't use, is a short prayer: Glory be to the Father, the Son, and Holy Spirit, as it was in the beginning, is now, and will be forever, world without end, amen. Breslin's use of the phrase is an anti-prayer, an abjuration.

If the Catholic Church continued use of its list of forbidden books, the Index, Breslin's yarn would join it with Descartes. This is a bittersweet tale of paradise lost, a story of an Irish Catholic New York cop who takes a trip to find his vaguely-remembered father and maybe find salvation. For Dermot Davey, there is no salvation.

Here is a book of two parts, the first about Dermot's shoddy career, his predestined decline to alcoholism and malformed principles. In the first part we see slumlands in the borough of Queens laid open in the eyes of a cop who characterizes everyone in the worst possible terms he can imagine: Dope-using longhairs, "nigger" women, commies, rapists, and foul-intentioned liberals. Only his corner of the world is decent—but he himself is aware of that fallacious feeling.

In the other part, we are with Dermot Davey on an Irish excursion. It is more like Dante's Inferno, every block of the Ulster cities a further circle in hell. Dermot, like Dante on his figurative tour, was guided by the only bright light in the story, a Communist-Socialist-Irish nationalist named Diedre. And, like Dante's guide, she is doomed.

This is a book to inflame passions. Each experience Dermot has is a foil to carry Breslin's message of injustice. Anyone who has strong opinions — in either direction — about racial tensions, minority oppression, police abuse of power, economic injustices, just about any of the powerful issues of this time, will find a source of anger in these pages.

There is a direct conclusion here, too. No improvement in the general condition of men in either America or Ireland will ever happen without massive social restructuring. Anyone who can read these pages and not agree, after the picture has been so well-painted, must be insensitive, according to Breslin's characters.

Well-crafted, the book pulls no punches. Breslin issues a warning partway through when he has a small boy explain, "All the stories is wrong . . . You want to read things you know is true . . .The way all the picture shows should end, the people should be all together in the house ready to live happy forever and then they should go to sleep and then the house should catch fire.

"And then all the people is burned alive."

Well, everybody burns alive. Some, however, are not aware of it, such as Dermot's companion on the force, Johno. Johno stays the same, drunk and miserable, all the way through, a figure Breslin uses to characterize those who cannot relate to the brutality in his text.

Throughout the second half of the book, Breslin's style becomes confusing. Conversations are recorded in snatches, without real attachments, to make them whole. scenes are those of the stranger, signs jumping out, smells "attacking like an opponent."

This is a special part of the author's craftsmanship, conveying very well the impact of new people, events, and places on a stranger. Anyone who has traveled much can remember that same strangeness, that out-of-place sensation.

Breslin has made an excellent start as a serious novelist with this book. He comes off the comedy circuit well-tuned for probing, bitter commentary, almost as if he were a comic on a dark night.

History of chess offered by book

By MURRAY PROJECTOR

"Many are the men who fritter away their lives making money and neglecting chess" is an old aphorism.

"The World Chess Championship" is a new history of the championship itself, of the games played in championship matches, and of the players themselves.

World champions and challengers go back over 100 years. Their common denominator for their personalities.

Some of these players have been many sided, others with only their chess skill to distinguish them from mortals. Some needed prize money, but none became chess professionals because of the money in it.

The author quotes William Steinitz, when asked why he played tournament chess at an advanced age and after a lifetime of glory. "The glory I can spare, but I need the prize money."

Then there is the anecdote about Bobby Fischer, who was offered $100,000 to advertise a hair lotion. He rejected the offer with the unanswerable argument: "I cannot do it. After all, I never use it."

These men do not fritter away their lives making money. All of them—including linguists, physicians, lawyers, engineers, alcoholics, journalists, mathematicians—they are immortalized because of their recorded chess games.

Horowitz includes over a hundred of these games, the move-by-move record that permits leisurely studying of brilliancies (and blunders) played under competitive time pressure.

This is championship chess as it is actually played "by two fallible human beings with imperfect understanding and strictly limited time at their disposal."

The World Chess Championship also explains the procedures now used for selecting challengers for the world title. Fortunately, it is not like it used to be.

Originally the world titleholders "owned" the title and chose the challengers. The best were often avoided, the second best often chosen. It was an unsatisfactory arrangement, much like the present arrangement with professional boxing.

Since 1950, however, the International Chess Federation has been in charge. There is a three-year tournament schedule for producing the logical challenger. Bobby Fischer went through this schedule before meeting and defeating Boris Spassky in 1972.

The tournament grind for selecting Fischer's 1975 opponent is well under way. By the end of 1973 the field will be reduced to eight, and by 1974 reduced to one. Then, in 1975 comes the second match of the century.

The World Chess Championship is Horowitz's posthumous publication, after a lifetime devoted to the cause of chess, as a player, columnist and author.

This final work has multiple appeal; it may be enjoyed for its entertaining biography, its brilliant chess games, or its chess history.

Aerial ripoff charged by ex-flying ace

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Dream of Eagles turned out to be somewhat of a flying nightmare for World War I flying ace Ralph A. O'Neill.

His object was to start the world's first intercontinental passenger airline — from New York to Buenos Aires in flying boats. But the airline, established finally after overcoming tremendous odds, was taken awsy from him by Pan American.

"A Dream of Eagles" is the title of O'Neill's book about this adventure, published recently by San Francisco Book Company and Houghton Mifflin Company $8.95.

Any of the three titles O'Neill first had for the book would have told the story better to those who have not opened the book. His first title was "The Shotgun Wedding," his second "Rape Of an Airline" and his third "The Hijacked Airline."

The author's airline was called the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires Line and the

Malamud stories take in wide area

By SAMUEL I. BELLMAN

It has been many years now since Bernard Malamud burst on the literary scene with his novel about a poor little New York storekeeper, "The Asstantant," and his collection of short stories about poor, downtrodden New York ghetto Jews, "The Magic Barrel."

Earlier he had done a baseball novel—The Natural—but, that one lacked a vital spark and was merely clever, allegorical tentative

Now, many books and prizes later, Malamud has produced another story collection, eight little tales that have much in common with his earlier New York pieces. But they reveal Malamud himseelf to be locked into his own tight little unhappy neighborhood, unable or unwilling (like so many of his characters) to break out into the sunlight of a larger, better world.

Probably the best story in the group is "Man in the Drawer," a sad account of a Jewish taxi-driver in Moscow who attaches himself to an American tourist—someone very much like Malamud himself.

Playing on the American's sympathies as a Jew and a writer, the taxi driver seeks his help in smuggling his unpublishable stories (they do not adhere to Soviet realism as the Party defines it) out of Russia and gettiing them printed in the West.

After many misadventures and impasses the American writer does smuggle them out of Moscow. The story ends with a summary of several of those offensive or at least officially unacceptable fictions, one of them an autobiographical account of the taxi driver's life, ending with his burning the unprintable writings, which to him means burning his integrity, talent, and heritage.

Quite possibly this typical Malamud story is an allegory of the difficulty of publishing in the U. S. A., where commercial realism, favoritism, and the vagaries of the Power Establishment determine who shall be "made" as a writer and who shall remain a nobody. Like Chekhov, Malamud specializes in lonely, solitary figures facing a bleak future. Like Dostoevsky, he has an affinity for the insulted and injured. Like Kafka, he may venture into the grotesque, writing about mythical monstrosities caught up in nightmarish situations.

The title story, "Rembrandt's Hat," is a little vignette about two neurotics, an art historian and a sculptor, who have a bitter quarrel over nothing very measurable.

Another tale is about a man whose father is dying and who lets himself get conned into paying a fortune so a rabbi can make a magic crown that will save the old man's life.

Recalling Malamud's early story, "The Magic Barrel," this one also leaves the reader wondering about the probity of the holy man who behaves so oddly and about the sanity of the normal character who gets taken so outrageously. And, like "The Magic Barrel," "The Silver Crown" seems a Malamudian concoction from bits and pieces of cabalistic lore, Talmudic footnotes, and Old Country tales his elders handed down to him.

Suggested by a line from T. S. Eliot (quoted as an epigraph to the volume of stories). "Talking Horse" is about a poor oppressed man named Abramowitz who finds himself imprisoned in a horse

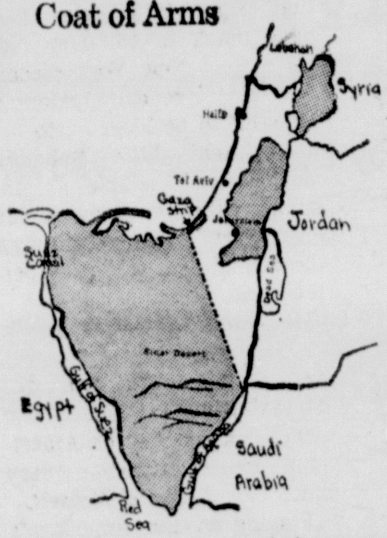
Israel Celebrates Its 25th Birthday

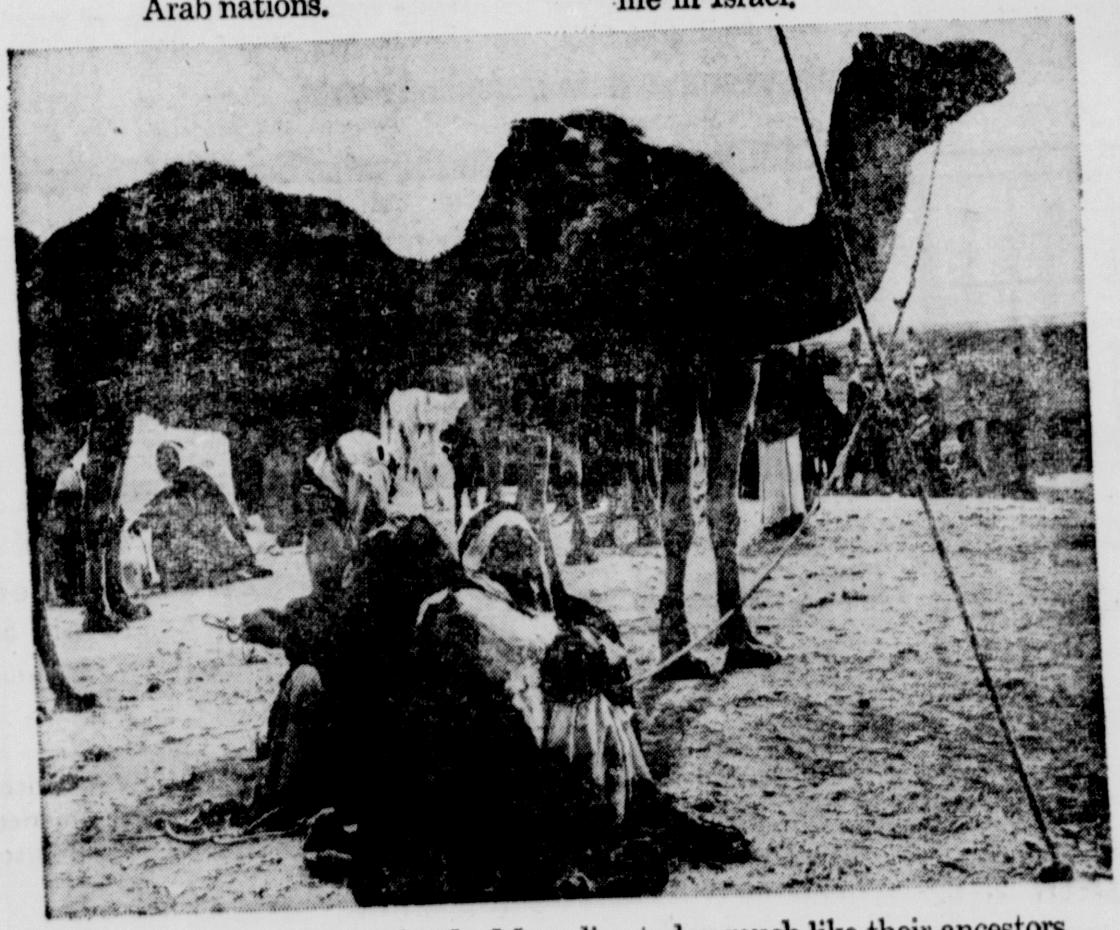
DEBNAM

The Israeli flag and Coat of Arms



The shaded part of the map above shows the territory that Israel occupied as a result of her wars with the Arab nations.

All unmarried girls of the age of 18 or older must serve in the armed forces. The Arab-Israeli conflict is an important part of everyday life in Israel.



The Bedouins are shepherds. Many live today much like their ancestors did back in the days of the Bible. They live in the desert raising sheep, camels and goats.

It has been said that the Israelis built their country with a plow in one hand and a gun in the other.

Israel declared itself an independent nation in 1948, 25 years ago. Its founding was the result of a long struggle for members of what was called the "Zionist Movement." Zionists wanted to set up a national homeland for the Jews.

Israel was created out of the country that had been called Palestine. The Arab nations did not like this. They felt that Palestine was Arab land.

The Israelis have had to fight three wars in order to save their country from Arab attack. The Arab-Israeli conflict is a part of everyday life. All men over the age of 18 must serve in the armed forces. The country must be able to defend itself at a moments notice.

The progress that the Israelis have made has been remarkable. The problems of handling many immigrants with different backgrounds is a big one. The Jewish population of Israel has grown from 760,000 in 1948 to 2,384,000 in 1968.

Today, Arabs account for about 10 per cent of the Israeli population. Most of them are farmers. They have equal rights with Jews, but they cannot serve in the armed forces. There are some Arabs who are members of the Israeli parliament.

When the State of Israel was founded in 1948, it was an agricultural, underdeveloped country where most of the manufactured products were made for local sale. Today, the country has many new factories that produce goods for export to other countries.

The Israelis have made great progress in turning dry desert land into cropland. By using advanced methods of farming, they have tripled the amount of cropland.

Jews from all over the world have contributed money to help make many of these improvements possible.

According to Prime Minister Golda Meir, the country has been concerned with four main efforts: to defend itself and survive as a nation; to become a homeland for Jews from all over the world; to develop a society that preserves the ancient Jewish values; and to develop resources to give the people a better quality of life.

Israel has come a long way in 25 years. It is hoped that the future will bring peace to the troubled area.

Would you like to live on a kibbutz?

A kibbutz is a type of community in Israel where everything is owned by the members who live there. Cows, orchards, farm machinery, houses and everything else is jointly owned. You cannot just go and live on a kibbutz. You have to be asked to become a member.

All members must work. They do not get salaries, but receive a place to live, clothing, medical attention and schooling for their children. There is one dining room where everybody eats.

Children do not live in the same houses with their parents. They live in their own part of the kibbutz. They spend the Sabbath and a few hours every day with their parents. As the children grow up, they begin to do more and more work around the kibbutz.

Education in Israel

Free education is offered to all children from the ages of five to 15. There are religious and nonreligious schools. Arab children can go to nonreligious Jewish schools or they can go to their own schools. Parents make the choice. Arabs and Jews alike must pay low tuition fees to go to high school.

Naturally, Johnny won the tournament and $35,000. It was his first major championship in four years as a professional. Johnny is a lean, blonde-haired, 26-year old who always attracts a large gallery of female fans. Miller grew up in California and earned money as a caddy. Later, he became one of the best teenage golfers around. Now he's one of the brightest young stars on the pro tour.

Claremont opens

New faces, campus changes seen as summer ends, school starts

By DAVE NIMMONS
Claremont Reporter

In spite of fervent prayer on the part of both students and faculty it has once again come to pass. School.

As of 8 a.m. Sept. 11, summer officially ended for those here at Claremont High!

As always, confusion reigns, and it's taking a while for everything to get organized. Student comment on our return ranged from: "It's so nice to be back!!" to: "AAAAAAAUUUGH!!".

Welcoming us back this year are many changes, the most notable being newly-landscaped areas. Over the summer, bushes, trees, flowers, and planting boxes magically appeared in various places around the campus.

The project, the brainchild of two CHS science teachers, John Lillie and James Trautner, is part of an effort to beautify the campus and create an atmosphere to facilitate learning.

The idea began with $200 earmarked for campus "beautification" left in last year's senior gift. This money was used to purchase plants from local nurseries. Forty-two students then spent a good part of the summer digging, raking, planting, and watering, with some help from teachers, administrators and a few of the school's maintenance crew. The Kimura Nursery in Pomona supplied some of the plants used.

The result is that we now have some greenery and color in what had been empty ground on the campus, and that students have been learning about ecological planning in the process.

The maintenance and repair work on the areas throughout the year will be done entirely by students. Says Lillie: "This all depends on the kids. The only way this will work is if they show enough interest. It's up to them." The teachers hope that the project will give students a chance to study ecological management on a small scale.

Further work in Field Biology classes is planned along this line. Campus interest in the idea is growing, and both students and teachers have expressed interest in seeing the plan expanded to other areas in the school. All in all, it's a very nice coming-back present.

Among other surprises this year is the lengthening of the school day by 25 minutes. The new schedule is intended to ease scheduling problems, and reduce class sizes. So far, the new system seems to be working well, and belive it or not, students and faculty alike are satisfied with the change. (Will wonders never cease!?!)

In addition this year, CHS has many new faces on the teaching staff. They include: Donald Brinegar, vocal music; Anne Damico, opportunities; Robert Deacon, orthopedically handicapped; Baldwin Eckel, science; Barbara Hinkle, business education; Drew Lawlor, home economics; Timothy Pike, guidance seminar; and Leslie Wessman, English.

Movie review

By ELLEN GONZALEZ
Chino High Reporter

Have you ever wondered why your parents and grandparents sometimes talk about the depression? They refer to it as the "good old days."

Watching "Paper Moon," a new film by Peter Bogdanovich, is like taking a trip back in time to the era of radio and FDR, truly showing what the "good old days" were all about.

Starring Ryan O'Neal and his daughter, Tatum, the movie follows the hilarious adventures of Moses Pray, a Bible-selling con man, and Addie, his nine-year-old apprentice. Together they cross a depression ridden Kansas, selling cheap Bibles, stealing moonshine, and generally never giving a sucker an even break.

As Addie, Tatum O'Neal steals the show, playing the precocious daughter of a dead hooker, who smokes and swindles better than any adult. Ryan O'Neal is great as the fast talking, crooked, moustachioed Moses Pray. Also excellent is Madeline Kahn who plays Pray's "winky tinking," belly-dancing girlfriend.

In order to make the film more realistic, "Paper Moon" (which was shot entirely in black and white) used professional actors for only the main characters. All grieving widows, red-neck sheriffs, and other assorted hicks are portrayed by the citizens of the different Kansas towns where the movie was filmed.

As a result, Peter Bogdanovich has captured the exact nostalgia of smalltown midwest life during the thirties.

By ELLEN GONZALES
Chino High Reporter

"But I would not feel
so all alone
Everybody must get stoned."
Rainy Day Women
Bob Dylan

We live in a drug oriented society. Anyone who doesn't believe this needs only to flip on the T.V. and watch the parade of commercials advertising sleeping pills, tranquilizers, and alcohol.

In many American families daddy drinks his Budweiser while mommy takes her "little blue pills" (to relieve excess tension).

Our society is also obsessed with polls (no, not Pollacks — a poll is a sampling and study of public opinion). The only thing is that it seems the more we sample and study public opinion on a certain problem, the less we do to solve the problem. How many polls have been taken on pollution, crime, and President Nixon?

Recently, at CHS, students were given a "Dope Poll." We were asked to fill out a form posing such questions as "Do you know one, two, three, or more people who use alcohol?" "Have you ever used marijuana?" The results of the poll: one out of every three CHS students take dope.

Why was there even a need for a poll? Anybody who wonders if we have a drug problem at CHS should walk out to our field during lunch time — and inhale very deeply. This reporter can guarantee you won't smell tobacco.

When asked if he even answered the poll truthfully, one student replied, "Nobody answered it honestly. I know I didn't. My biblical literature teacher was watching!"

Still another student said "I think you should give the teachers the Dope Poll. Would they answer it honestly?"

The administration of CHS should stop taking polls and start some positive action. A good beginning would be a complete revision of the drug education section taught.

The material the class is being taught now is outmoded and downright laughable. Intelligent books on drugs (e.g. "Go Ask Alice" and "A Separate Reality") should be required reading.

How about scheduling some rallies with speakers from Teen Challenge? Instead of merely condemning drugs, the administration should offer alternatives to drugs — religion, philosophy, music, and sports. Above all, the administration (both school and government) should realize that some kids are going to take dope no matter what ways are taken to stop them.

Not splinters, but for safety

FT. HUACHUCA, Ariz. (UPI) —A new $25,000 reviewing stand is being built at this Army post not because anyone has gotten splinters on the old wooden one but because it has been declared unsafe, a fort spokesman said.

Paul Stoll, a civilian public affairs officer at the fort, said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., was "misinformed" that the new concrete reviewing stand was being built because some generals and their wives have complained about splinters.

It was unlikely officers made such complaints because they always sat on steel folding chairs erected on the wooden bleachers, Stoll said.

first flight was made with a co-pilot, mechanic, radio operator, Standard Oil representative, O'Neil's first wife and Jane Gabraith, a former Boeing Company empoye who became the word's first "flying secretary" and later O'Neill's second wife.

These are the heroes of the book. The villains are all from Pan Am.

"Juan Trippe, Sonny Whitney and Richard Hoyt are the ones that did me in," says O'Neill, who lives in retirement in Atherton, Calif. "The political back-biting and corporation infighting were unbelievable"

"But they just used him for publicity purposes," says O'Neill. "I have no rancor towards Slim Lindbergh. But towards those others especially Trippe . . ."

O'Neill's flying boats made the 9500-mile trip from New York to Buenos Aires in six days at a time it took 18 days by ship. And he proved passenger lines could be operated between continents.

He says he would still be operating the NYRBA today if it had not been taken away from him. But if that had been the case, he would not have made a fortune in placer gold in Bolivia, as he did.

"But that will take another book," sayd O'Neill.

Malamud

This bit of foolery isn't what might be called American frontier humor of the 1970s, it is gothic allegory, a Malamudian beast fable about oppression. When poor Abramowitz finally escapes from his heartless master and from his horse's body, he canters "across a grassy soft field into a dark wood, a free centaur." Hmmmmmm.

Less easy to comprehend or even discuss are stories such as "The Letter"—which concerns a mental defective trying to get a "normal" person to mail his letter (which is blank and lacks an address)—and "notes from a Lady at a Dinner Party," about an old professior's young, seductive and unbalanced wife and her flirtation with a former student of her husband.

One of Malamud's recurring themes is the father-son relationship particuarly in terms of the ungrateful son. A little sketch about a neurotically alientated son, "My Son the Murderer," exemplifies this clearly. Loneliness (as seen in "In Retirement") is another basic concern. Where, one wonders, will Malamud go from here.

It Happened in Pomona

Historical highlights

Down through the years our pioneer forefathers had much to brag about when recounting for the edification of less fortunately situated individuals the many outstanding advantages connected with living in Pomona and the great Pomona Valley.

So just in case you are unaware of or have forgotten how important this city really was in the days of its infancy, here are a few historical highlights which should prove conclusively that early day Pomona was a city of more than ordinary importance in California's Southland.

First, and perhaps most amazing of all, it should be reported that 86 years ago, Pomona was the second largest city in Los Angeles County.

By 1892 our citizens had become so aware of their city's importance that they were seriously considering the necessity for more and better highways to facilitate the comings and goings of those who wished to visit, and more than likely even settle in, this Southern California garden spot. And although 81 years ago they weren't participating in new freeway dedications and ribbon cuttings, they were actively engaged in promoting additional roads that would more adequately connect the various communities throughout this area. In fact, in 1892, the valley was all agog over a proposed new road to be built across the hills between Lordsburg (now La Verne) and Spadra. When completed it was to be known as the Lemon Short Line.

Then, by 1896, our progressive forefathers really had something to which they could point with pride. It was the city's telephone exchange located in the rear of Armour's Drug Store, which served all of 24 subscribers.

But it was in the year 1904 that civic promotion in Pomona undoubtedly achieved its finest hour. On June 27 the editor of The Pomona Daily Review took his trusty pen in hand and wrote this paean of praise about his beloved city:

"The people who have seen Pomona Cemetery prosper from a 10-acre shadeless melancholy, sun-baked waste into the attractive, prettily planted abode of the dead it now is have reason to believe that someday the local cemetery will be the most fitting spot in Southern California for the final repose of our loved ones."

Tick-filled cellar difficult to clear

DEAR DR. MILLER: We are having terrible time with ticks. Again. Last year we had to move Rinky from the basement to an outside doghouse because he was picking up so many ticks down there. But we thought we got rid of them all. We had planned, now, to move him back into the basement this winter. He hates the outside doghouse. But now he is bringing in more ticks and, like last year, these powders and baths don't really do a good job on them. Is there stuff that can be used, say, like with a bath, that will kill the ticks once and for all? — W. D.

Dear W. D.: Yes, your veterinarian or a pet shop can dispense tick preparations. (Unfortunately, many products made for fleas and lice are not particularly effective against ticks.) Then, too, even though you kill the ticks "once and for all," this often fails to solve the problem. There are often other ticky legions lurking nearby. Consider the common known dog tick, Ripicephalus saguineus, the gravid female who, after engorging on a half cc. or so of fresh dog blood, drops off her host and crawls into a cozy corner or climbs the nearby wall to lay from 2,000 to 4,000 eggs. Then, remember the entire life cycle from birth to egg-laying adult, may, under ideal conditions, be completed in three months or less. Finally, consider the young may wait around for a victim for a year and a half and the adult for as long as two years (before starving). You can see why that basement, if it has not thoroughly fumigated, might still be a poor refuge for Ricky.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Twelve pounds doesn't seem like a bad weight for a poodle but, drat it, the doctor insists that this particular toy poodle should weigh only six pounds. If I follow the doctor's instructions closely, can I expect him to lose a pound a week? — P. N.

Dear P.N.: Your doctor could best determine that for you though it doesn't sound like a realistic figure, when you consider a pound a week is a good weight loss for a human to achieve, and that two pounds for a human is maximum under most conditions. Why not just follow the doctor's dietary instructions and see just how rapid it does come off? Even if your baby blimp loses only a pound a month, he should be in comparatively good shape to celebrate the new year.

Safety in handling tools

By MR. FIX

With labor costs higher and higher, the average homeowner is not likely to hire someone to do small jobs around the house, and therefore finds himself handling tools more than ever before.

Someone hitting his thumb with a hammer may seem funny until it happens to you. Dull tools are likelier to cut you than sharp ones.

Before tackling any job, large or small, remember these basic rules — use the right tool for the job, use the tool propertly, keep the tools in good condition.

For the basic tools you are likely to be using here are some basic rules.

Hammer — When you strike the nail, strike it with the full face of the hammer. Striking it at an angle causes the hammer to slip off the nail. Hold the nail between thumb and forefinger. Hold it near the head, not the point. Hammer handles should be smooth and free of splinters. Use a hammer heavy enough so that pounding is at a minimum, but not so heavy you can't heft it. Make certain the handle is tight in the hammer head. Don't use a hammer if the face of the head is dented or nicked.

Screwdriver — Have an assortment. One size won't do every job. The right size is one in which the bade tip can be seated firmly and squarely against the bottom and sides of the screw slot. Don't substitute a screwdriver for a chisel or prybar. Don't hold the work in one hand, the screwdriver in the other. That's a way to gouge a hole in your hand.

Saw — A sharp saw cuts, a dull one slips. Support your work on a sawhorse. Start the cut on the back stroke and keep an even steady pressure while sawing. If you are cutting metal with a hacksaw, fasten the work in a vise.

Pliers — Have several types; there's no such thing as universal pliers. Don't use pliers with worn jaws. Don't use pliers to try and loosen or tighten bolts or pipe fittings where great pressure is needed. Use a wrench.

Wrench — Again, you will need a variety. The adjustable wrench is the nearest thing to an all-purpose wrench but you will learn after a time what other kinds to get. Do not put a pipe on the handle of a small wrench to increase leverage. Use a larger wrench. For round objects you will need a pipe wrench with a movable upper jaw that tightens automatically when pressure is applied to the handle.

Power tools — Any electrical tool should be grounded before using. The exception is the new types of portable tools with insulated, nonmetal housings. If you have any number of power tools, try to run them on a separate circuit to avoid overloading.

Don't use a power saw without a guard over the blade. Check the material you are cutting for nails. Don't wear a long necktie or loose, floppy sleeves.

Storage — Have a place for your tools. Don't toss them together into a drawer or box. If you can, hang up hand tools.

Plans afoot to make lawn care a cinch

NEW YORK (UPI) — If ever you've threatened to pave your lawn with green cement, hold off! By 1980, you may be able to put your lawn mower in mothballs and hang up your pruning shears as a thing of the past.

Research programs now under way indicate that by the end of the decade, homeowners will be planting new varieties of grass that will grow only to a specified height and then stop — thus eliminating the need for mowing, says Joseph P. Sullivan, president of Estech, Inc., the chemicals and industrial products division of Esmark, Inc., Chicago.

Along with limited growth grass, Sullivan says, there are other developments in the offing that will make caring for a lawn much easier and less time consuming. Among them:

—Ornamental and shrub growth retardants that will eliminate the need for constant trimming.

—Grass seed and fertilizer combined in pellets to make the planting of a new lawn or the reseeding of an existing yard a one-step job.

—Sprinkler systems that automatically dispense fertilizer and weed killers as needed during an entire spring and summer growing season.

—Long-lasting fertilizers that will work for two years or longer once they are placed on a lawn.

—Special packages that will be used to dispense grass seed and fertilizer and then discarded, doing away with the need for a spreader.

The outlook

The outlook for change in the home gardening field is underscored, Sullivan said, by growing concern for the environment and the increasing amount of leisure time. More and more, he said, reports indicate the "green thumb" pastime is catching on as a form of relaxation.

The burgeoning demand for more efficient land use and rising costs will result in many cases in smaller home grounds and lawns, but homeowners will want to use what land is available to the fullest extent.

For the lawn of the future, Sullivan said, several universities are experimenting with a new product developed by Estech to solve some of the

By HIAWATHA ESTES

Here is an extraordinarily well-planned home that points toward a kind of utopian way of life. It emphasizes family comfort and convenience—both indoors and out—and the look of true luxury which belies its 1381 square foot size.

The dead-end living room will never have to be used as a passageway from one area of the house to another as all rooms are accessible from the entry and hall.

Every inch of the exceptionally large combination dining-kitchen was thoughfully planned to create a well-organized and efficient home. Closets extending from the floor to the ceiling—broom, pantry and water heater—are all on the bath wall. Another feature of this room is the pass-through window above the kitchen sink which allows efficient serving of both food and drinks whenever one entertains or dines on the patio.

Each of the bedrooms has a wide wardrobe closet and none of the bedrooms have a common wall. Both the family and the private master bath have pullman lavatores.

This same basic floor plan and exterior is available in both a two-and a three-bedroom design, at a different price structure, and are illustrated in our book. Distinctive Homes.

Complete working drawings for plan 41047 can be purchased for only $11.61 for the first set and $6.36 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until Jan. 23, 1974. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.06. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is $1.06. The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes — $1.33; Hallmark Homes — $1.33; Homes by Hiawatha — $1.33; Prize Homes — $1.33; Town & Country Homes — $1.33; Ranch & Modern Homes— $2.12. All six books — an $8.75 value for only $6.89. Orders for less than three books, please add an extra 20 cents per book for postage and handling. Prices include sales tax. Send all orders to: Hiwatha Estes, Box 404-P O, Northridge, CA 91324.

How to help avert future water crisis

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

Today, just about everywhere, you'll get that clear, refreshing drink. But there may be a day when there just won't be enough water for that quart or two you normally drink each day.

There's a tendency to scoff at the idea of a potable water shortage of such serious proportions it presages a national crisis, but the experts are predicting just that.

Fifty years from now, according to the U.S. Water Resources Council, the minimum national daily water requirement is expected to exceed available supply by 168 trillion gallons — unless we find the means to make more prudent use of our water resources.

Government agencies are working on plans to increase water storage capacities and seeking practical ways to make more waste water reusable. But government and industry efforts and desalinization won't provide the whole solution. People must help.

American-Standard, manufacturer of plumbing fixtures, acknowledges that in the home the toilet is the largest single source of water consumption. Faucets — particularly the leaky kind — are culprits also. But, a toilet doesn't flush itself and a leaky faucet can't repair itself. It's people that waste water.

The United States now uses more than 250 billion gallons of water every day, with the average citizen accounting for about four times his weight, or 60 gallons.

American-Standard suggests simple but important ways each family can conserve water in the home — and cut its water bill to boot:

— Use the toilet only for the purpose for which it is intended: sanitary disposal. Flushing cigarettes and facial tissue is extremely wasteful. Equip the bathroom with ashtray and waste basket. More water is saved, American-Standard says, by flushing only when necessary than by using artificial water-saving gimmicks. Conventional toilets are not designed for them. Ploys to reduce volume — bending the ball float rod or inserting a brick in the tank — can backfire.

The only proper way to reduce the amount of water in each flush is to install a toilet that is especially designed to use one-third less water than conventional models, but make sure it conforms to commercial and government sanitary regulations.

— Make sure the flush valve is properly seated after each flush. If water seepage occurs, jiggle the lever until it stops.

If you are thingking about major improvements in your home, it might be a wise idea not to wait for "next year."

Alcan Aluminum Corporation, major supplier of aluminum building accessories for the home, reports that most contractors are at their busiest during the summer months for outdoor work and during the winter months for indoor improvements.

A contractor who installs aluminum siding, for example, will be at his busiest from April to September. Consequently, during the late fall, you may be in store for both savings in cost and more individual attention than you might get when the contractor is at his busiest.

Alcan suggests investigating the advantages of aluminum siding for installation during late fall. The siding will prove to be a worthwhile investment. Aluminum siding is sespecially weather resistant and can bring you an immediate bonus with the added insulation that siding brings

By STEVE ELLINGSON

No matter how small your home or apartment is, it can accommodate a complete "executive center" for running the household, handling family accounts or catching up on correspondence. The handsome desk shown here with actress Sue Burnett is 46 inches high by 34 inches wide (when closed) and projects only 22 inches from the wall.

You will notice the desk has spaces for keeping office supplies of all kinds, together with a vertical filing system. There are adjustable shelves for ledgers, more files, books, a typewriter and countless other home office requirements. The large pull-out writing surface doubles as a typewriter table. You couldn't find a more ideal item for those who want to stay organized for work or study at home.

Here's a project that can be undertaken by any amateur with confidence when he uses our easy-to-follow pattern. The pattern lists the needed materials along with lots of pictures showing the various stages of construction.
